SUMMARY.

The German fleet was unable to return to its base after attacking Libau, being caught in its own minefield.

The warships have taken refuge between the islands of Gothland and Oeland until a passage can be cleared.

The British steamer Olivine has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the Channel.

The Italian steamer Luigi Parodi, from Baltimore, is regarded as lost.

Her loss is attributed to a German submarine in the Atlantic.

Field-Marshal Von Der Goelz is at Vienna, on his way back to Constantinople.

The "Cologne Gazette" publishes an account by a German officer of the bombardment of the Chanak forts in the Dardanelles.

The writer claims that it was the forts that sank the battleships Bouvet, Irresistible, and Ocean.

The Russian fleet near the Crimean coast exchanged shots at long range with the Goeben and the Breslau.

The French captured three successive lines of trenches south-east of St. Mihiel.

The "Daily Chronicle" says that an almost continuous battle has been raging in the Champagne district for three weeks.

Terrible struggles have occurred in the enemy's trenches, and the melee is said to be indescribable.

A German army corps has left Flanders to assist the Austrians in the Carpathians.

A large number of troops have been withdrawn from the Tyrol to assist in stopping the Russian advance.

Desperate fighting has occurred in the village of Okna, north of Czernowitz. The Russians took 1000 prisoners.

The "Times" military correspondent estimates that seven German army corps are directly supporting the Austrians.

This fact, he says, indicates a fear on the part of Germany that the Austrian defence is breaking down.

A memorandum by M. Venezelos explains that Roumania was unwilling to co-operate with Greece and Servia without Bulgaria.

The United States has despatched a friendly Note to Britain and France on the neutrality question.

America, it says, is unable to admit the right of the Allies to place an embargo on all commercial intercourse with Germany.

King George has directed the immediate banishment of wines, spirits, and beer from the Royal household.

Jess Willard defeated Jack Johnson, in the 26th round, at Havana, for the world's heavyweight championship.

The funeral of the late Sir Francis Suttor yesterday—a State one—was largely attended, all sections being represented.

A short service was held at St. Mark's, Darling Point, and the service at South Head Cemetery was conducted by Archbishop Wright.

Mr. Hall finds that wheat is not coming forward at a sufficiently rapid rate.

He thinks the farmers are withholding it, and a warning has been issued that they "must deliver forthwith."

Owing to the steady rain which fell yesterday, the attendance at the Royal Show numbered 6000, as against 28,000 last year.

The ring was almost a quagmire, and several of the events had to be postponed.

In the high jump Emu Plains and Sunbeam cleared 6ft 6in. They failed at 6ft 9in, and divided the prize.

The water jump produced some exciting moments. The performance of Thumbs Up, the winner, was very good.

At the stock sales there was a fair demand for Clydesdales. Native Chief realised 280 gns., and Ronald's Lad 250gns.

The principal buyers at the thoroughbred yearling sales hailed from Victoria, but Queensland was well represented.

The top price was 1300gns., which was paid for a colt by Mountain King—Lady Mostyn.

The lots sold totalled 117, for 17,160gns., an average of nearly 147gns.

The Federal Attorney-General states that no fresh legislation dealing with alien enemies is contemplated.

Colonel C. W. Rankin and Mr. H. A. C. Douglas were sworn-in as Cabinet Ministers in Brisbane yesterday.

Colonel Rankin is Minister for Railways, and Mr. Douglas is a Minister without a portfolio.

The quarantine authorities stated last night that the R.M.S. Morea would be released from quarantine to-day.

Five first-class and nine second-class passengers will remain in quarantine.

One of a set of three boilers at the Central [illegible] Colliery exploded yesterday.

It was blown bodily out of its bed, taking with it the roof of the building. No one was injured.

A deputation asked Mr. Cann to have the [illegible]-Werris Creek railway constructed from the Werris Creek.

The Minister gave a favourable reply, and pointed out that the work would be covered by the Norton Griffiths scheme.

Special rules applicable to all the collieries in the State are to be drawn up.

Nearly 300 delegates to the annual conference of the Catholic Federation attended Mass at St. Mary's Cathedral yesterday.

The conference decided to protest against the taxing of hospitals and charitable institutions under the Local Government Bill.

Excursion trains are to be run from the country on the occasion of the official send-off to the next contingent.

Steps are being taken to form a committee to establish a fund for the relief of distress in Poland.

A deputation of irrigation settlers which waited on Mr. Ashford at Leeton made allegations as to land trafficking.

Alderman J. M. Sandy returned yesterday from a tour through India and Ceylon.

He says he was greatly impressed with the manifestations of loyalty everywhere.

The railway passenger traffic on Easter Monday showed a large falling off as compared with last year.

There was also a decrease in the tramway traffic. Wet weather was mainly responsible for the falling off.

The Norton Griffiths scheme was debated at the conference of the Political Labour League last night.

A motion declaring the scheme to be unsound and that it should not, therefore, be adopted, was lost by 99 to 60.

Over eight inches of rain have fallen in Sydney so far this month.

The rain in the city yesterday caused a cessation of work on the wharfs, and a number of steamers were delayed.

The pastures and crops on the South Coast have benefited by the rain. Winter prospects are improved.

Much damage has been done by storms in the Parkes district.

Fences that had withstood the storms of a generation were washed away. The railway line at Nanardine was flooded.

At a conference of timber mill employees at Christchurch it was stated that employers had reduced wages.

The South Island (N.Z.) band contest and marching competition was won by Wanganui.

First-grade butter was sold at 126s per cwt. yesterday, though the Government proclamation provided for 124s.

The agents consider that they are entitled to charge 1s 6d extra for boxes and 6d for cartage charges.

The grocers take a serious view of the position, and have addressed a communication to Mr. Hall on the subject.

The wholesale quotation for superfine butter in Melbourne has been raised to 1s 4d per lb.

In the general markets yesterday business had not settled down after the holidays.

The rain caused an optimistic tone, and it was generally felt that the demand for many lines would improve.

Trade generally in Sussex-street was quiet after the holidays.

Forecast.—Further unsettled and showery weather over the greater part of the State; SE to NE winds.

TWO WEEKS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

THE PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION is now open. Forty-one Nations represented at the Exposition emphasise its International Character. It is the most colossal of Expositions the world has ever seen; and its interest to the man of business and to the tourist is something that may not be duplicated for many years. Like Niagara Falls, this great Exposition, which has taken years to prepare, cannot be adequately described, but we have literature on its wonders which will be sent to you on application.

SEVEN WEEKS IN ALL.

Approximately from Sydney to San Francisco and back occupies 7 weeks—5 at sea, 2 on shore. In these 2 weeks you can see the Exposition, the Yosemite Valley, the Grand Canyon, Rocky Mtns., etc. No other line has so fast a time-table, but our return tickets are interchangeable with the other trans-Pacific Companies. Our route is via Honolulu going; Honolulu and Samoa returning.

PEAPES' ECONOMIC TAILORING—

IT'S ADVANTAGES EXPLAINED.

There are three big departments devoted to Clothing at the House of Peapes—Ready-to-wear, Economic Tailoring, and High-class Tailoring.

The Economic section is the intermediate department, having its own cutting staff, well-equipped workroom, and extensive range of materials.

By ordering a Peapes' Economic Suit you obtain garments made to your own individual measurements.

The Suit will embody dependable BRITISH materials, and will be made entirely under close supervision on our own premises.

For this reason we can incorporate better quality, more stylish cutting, and careful workmanship, giving each Suit an admirable hand-finished effect.

The standard of our Economic Tailoring really justifies a higher price—but, having the facilities for production, we quote

£3 3s TO £4 4s.

We advise early ordering this season on account of the anticipated difficulty of obtaining further shipments of materials at unadvanced prices.

Patterns and self-measurement form, with catalogue, on request.

BELTING USERS will appreciate the economy which such a result as the following proves by using the Genuine Balata, manufactured by Messrs. Dick, of Glasgow. Not only is economy in belting to be considered, but the absence of loss usually occasioned by stoppages to machinery, etc.

"The Dick's Balata Bel. I showed your representative when last here has been running in these works as a main driving belt for the past 16 years. During the greater part of that time, it has been running night and day on three shifts.

"Originally it was a 7in x 4-ply. I have just taken off one ply and put in driving a box mill. The belt being so well preserved, it was but joined in the usual way."

Yours faithfully,

"Pioneer" Leather Belting NEVER does, for it transmits the maximum of power at the minimum of expense, that has been proved time and again. Read what one "Pioneer" user says:—

For upwards of 30 years I have been using Belting for Sawmilling purposes constantly, and for the last 15 or 16 years have used a considerable quantity of your "PIONEER" DOUBLE LEATHER, COPPER SEWN, WITH CANVAS INSERTION, and can say with the greatest confidence that I find it better for heavy work, and cheaper in the end, than any other brand I have used—and I have used many.

TALKING ABOUT PEACE.

Women are naturally peaceful creatures, and all efforts made towards a peaceful solution of world quarrels have a great attraction for them. Hence arise these "movements" of which we have been hearing of late. The Countess of Aberdeen was the first to express "officially"—if one may use this rather too heavy an adverb—the longing that is in the hearts of all women, for this dreadful war to cease, and not only this war, but all war for evermore. As world's president of the International Council of Women, the Countess holds a place which gives value to her utterances, and surely this latest pronouncement of its official head must chime with the feelings of all members of this important council of our sex. At the recent welcome home to Australia given to Mrs. Henry Dobson, the letter of Lady Aberdeen was mentioned, and all present felt that it was an echo of their own thoughts. The Countess said that women should try to cultivate a feeling of friendliness among each other, irrespective of nationality, and do everything in their power to discountenance military methods and organisations, teaching all their children, boys and girls alike, the wickedness and unnecessary waste of war.

The National Council of Women in Victoria is taking up this topic, using Dr. Anna Shaw's letter as a subject for discussion, as will be learned from "Veronica's" Melbourne notes, urging that mutual knowledge among women will do much to foster the peace spirit, and that a deep sense of the iniquity of the murderousness and carnage of war should be inculcated. Arbitration is to be held up as the goal of all desires, and the means of bringing on the time when the war drum will throb no longer.

Cynics may sneer and say that this is a counsel of perfection, but it is in tune with the present state of affairs. We must talk war, and since we grow more and more sad as we think of all the horrors going on every day, to which we are, alas, becoming quite accustomed as we read them in the morning papers, surely it is better for us to set our faces towards that longed-for time when we shall not have to be saying "good-bye" in fear and trembling to our men as they go off in the troopships. Everybody hates war, and this is one of its most poignant aspects. We women feel this pinch more than any other—this dreadful anguish of farewell. Is it any wonder that we meet and talk about peace, futile talk it may be, quite helpless and hopeless, but comforting, and also helping to enlarge our sympathies to our sisters in suffering. No, not altogether hopeless is this counselling together, for it serves the good purpose of instilling the habit of hoping for the best.

Women talk bitterly at times; an extreme instance of this bitterness was found in the complaint made by a workman's wife regarding concessions for workmen's wives between Broken Hill and Condobolin. This letter of complaint, which was published, wound up somewhat in this fashion:—"Surely we, the mothers of men who are needed for cannon fodder, should be consulted" (or words to that effect). There the bitterness lurking in the minds of some mothers found full expression. There is in it a touch of the sentiment which is making for the popularity of a play now running in New York called "War Brides," by Mrs. Marion Craig Wentworth, wherein the attitude of women as women is taken for the dramatist's purpose. Mme. Nazimova's acting in the principal part makes the fortune of the drama, so it is said. She is so very strong and emotional. The plot is worth noting, because it is so very modern, and deals with ideas which belong to 1915. A year ago these ideas were not thought of. The heroine refuses to become a "war bride," because she is unwilling to marry solely in order to carry on the race. She does not wish to become the mother of a soldier's child, just to make good the wastage of war. There is the usual "line" calculated to win applause, "Only for love would I do this." It is a very emotional play, and the climax is said to be fine. The heroine declares that she refuses to marry and have a child "until the Emperor shall declare peace." All this is, [illegible], silly claptrap, but attractive claptrap, and just the sort of thing that some women would rave over. It serves to show how some women—and men, too, of the hysteric order—manage to convey in their talk about women's attitude to war, a kind of detachment, as if she stood on a lofty pedestal and it was hers to allot the destiny of the future. This is in reality the outcome of the modern plan of taking "the woman's point of view" on every conceivable question, of which there has been so much—too much—of late years, that the wonder is that women as a whole have immediately grasped the vital truth that towards war there is only one point of view, and that is common to both men and women.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Etiquette.—Mauri asks:—"Is it the correct thing to say 'Thank you' on stepping out of a lift?" Yes, certainly it is. If there is any doubt as to whether it is correct to say "Thank you" or not, say it. [illegible] used to say, "When I do not know whether [illegible] or not, I fight." So, like our national hero, give yourself the benefit of the doubt.

[illegible].—E.H. (Granville): Your letter deals with a proprietary article.

Pure Milk.—For "one who believes in pure milk for children": Most dairymen add preservatives to milk, but they are bound to supply milk pure, if they are asked. If they use them they are bound to tell consumers, if the latter ask for information, how much preservative is used. You are advised to apply at the Government Health Department, Macquarie-street north, where detailed information on this subject will gladly be given. Individual dairies could not be named on this page.

Widow's Weeds.—"Widow" wishes to know the correct period for mourning. Deep mourning should be worn for 18 months at least. Your dress as you describe it is quite correct. Excessive drapings of crape are now quite optional. You may retain your husband's [illegible] as before. It is confusing to change initials. A widow very often must use her own Christian name in signing documents, just as a married woman whose husband is alive must do; but, in ordinary use, the wish "to cling to the old name" is allowed. In formal use women's names form a rather perplexing little problem. There ought to be some general agreement on the matter, as mistakes are constantly occurring. A woman's signature gives no clue to the proper way to address her in reply to a letter unless she puts first "Mrs." or "Miss," which is very awkward. Then again, a woman may sign "Jane Smith," being the wife of "Mr. Albert Smith." How is a stranger to know if "J. Smith" and "Mrs. A. Smith" is the same person. It is better to keep to the one way of signing as much as one can.

Decorations.—A Belgian Sympathiser: Without flowers you could make your supper table pretty and characteristic with the colours in gauze or ribbon, using the black sparingly. A little goes a long way in "national" decoration, the idea being just to indicate the sentiments. Asparagus fern is easily obtainable, and used in silver vases with little Belgian flags stuck in among the greenery, would brighten your table. But scarlet salvia is very plentiful just now. In salvia and yellow daisies tied with black ribbon you could get your effect very cheaply.

Coffee Mill.—"Simple Life": A small coffee mill is indicated. It is easily obtainable at any ironmongers. It would grind nuts, but not as well as an ordinary mincing machine.

Casserole Cooking.—Several correspondents will be answered in full next week in the "Home Affairs" column.

Screened Wheat.—Names of firms cannot be mentioned. But ring up any flour milling firm and inquire.

FASHION AS SHE IS.

HOME FROCKS.

The "robe d'interieur" promises to be one of the most popular garments this season. These frocks can hardly be excelled for their useful qualities alone, and it is difficult to imagine how we should do without them. There are so many fascinating designs at the present moment, that it is rather a difficult task for a woman to decide on the most alluring. In choosing a frock to be worn indoors, a woman has the opportunity of showing her own individuality in dress. There are, of course, ever so many women who will in a sense submit to any torture to be in the fashion; but everything depends on the circumstances, time, and place. If more women would realise this important fact, they certainly would not find any difficulty in designing or choosing a garment of afternoon indoor wear. The choice of colour, style, etc., is not restricted by any set rules, and there are many beautiful materials and fabrics to choose from. The picturesque designs in the frocks also vary. The simpler in tint, the more up-to-date the frock. Fur helps to decorate many of these afternoon dresses. It gives a soft, finishing touch to any toilette. Especially is it seen to advantage on the clinging chiffon or ninon bodices or blouses, which are worn with pleated or tunic skirts in gaberdine or ratine. Among the many ideas for an afternoon frock is the much-favoured "redingote" design. It is simple and comfortable for indoor wear, especially when carried out in some soft material, such as silk taffeta, crepe-de-Chine, gaberdine, etc. A fascinating example was carried out in a soft and becoming oyster grey silk taffeta, made perfectly straight at the back, and caught into rather deep folds at the sides. A military collar stood high at the back, and was thrown open in front, leaving the neck bare. Soft skunk trimmed the collar, having a softening effect on the face of the wearer. The long, tight sleeves were finished with tiny buttons, kilted frills showing beneath a strip of the fur. The deep pleated belt was of the same silk as the frock, and was decorated with a serried row of the small buttons. The front of the bodice was scooped out in a kind of oval, and was filled in with soft ivory coloured silk tulle, frilled and piped. Below the opening, the bodice was fastened with the buttons. Another pretty model worth mentioning showed a full tunic on either side of it. A unique idea was introduced in the way of simulated pocket flaps. These resembled long slits. They were bound with taffeta silk on either sides, and studded with buttons of the taffeta. The very deep waist belt was also carried out in taffeta. It was scalloped on the side, where it fastened with three large buttons. The bodice was adorned with the same taffeta buttons, while a wide collar of the silk showed a square sailor shape. The sleeves were inserted into square armholes, and reached well over the hand. This square design in the armhole is very new.

Velvet is another material playing a large part among these afternoon frocks. A charming little masterpiece was fashioned of mole-coloured velvet; the underskirt was of cloth, carried out in the same colour; over it fell a tunic of soft mole velvet. The tunic had long cloth kilts inserted. The cloth belt was wide, and a sailor-shaped collar of the mole cloth fell over the velvet bodice, showing up the contrasting materials. A dainty touch was given to the dress by a soft front of very fine creamy lace. There are more elaborate afternoon frocks for home wear, made of lighter and more delicate fabrics, such as ninon, soft satin cashmere-de-soie, and lace.

I see by one of the latest papers Paris has launched forerunners of the fashions for 1915. One of the main features is the return of the waist-line. We have become accustomed to a low waist line; in fact, it was gradually becoming lower and lower, until it has quite disappeared, and now a definite waist line is to be seen once more. It is neither a high waist nor a small waist, but just a normal waist-line. Boleros, Zouaves, short coatees, all these will be worn with the new cut. But this change is too far ahead for us yet, as we are quite contented with the present fashion of the sacklike frock, with the fully pleated tunic, which may be in fluted and pleated folds, or even in smooth straight lines, but the important point is it must be full; these ample proportions are obtained by a bias cut at the top and at the seams. Let us make the most of these new full skirts, for one never knows what fashion may have in store for us. There is one thing, I am sure of, and that is we need not be afraid of the crinoline—that, I think, has been left behind for good and all. So I may say, with assurance, that when, in due course, the garments and gowns of this year come to take their proper place, they will have a special and continuous triumph, both as regards the colouring and contour.

THE BELTED COAT.

The broad belt is still holding sway where the waist decoration is in question. This belt is in most instances carried out in the same material as the dress itself. It may be worn with absolutely plain coats, high to the neck, and showing a serried row of buttons down the front. This belt adorning the coat is deep and plain, and it is placed a little lower than the actual waist-line. It may be fastened with buttons to resemble the coat. A good example for a navy walking dress was seen in the favoured serge. The coat was buttoned from the neck, the buttons continuing on the broad belt, which was bound by a flat fold of velvet. The buttons were covered with the same velvet. The high military collar and cuffs were also of velvet. The effect was good and attractive. The belt need not necessarily be fashioned of the same material as the garment. In some instances it is in a contrasting shade and material, and shows many folds. For the afternoon frocks these broad belts or sashes are a conspicuous feature. They help to decorate many of the newest models. Some are rather high at the back, and dropped twice round the figure, and loosely tied at the side or front, the long ends reaching well down over the tunic skirt. The ribbon belt gives a touch of colour to a one-toned frock.

HATS.

Our hats have little trimming. In fact, the success of the hat entirely depends upon the way it is put on the head, and not on the way it is trimmed. Many are meant to be placed roguishly on one side of the head, rammed rather well down, but at the same time allowing the hair to be well exposed on the left side. These small hats are in black panne velvet. In some instances a strip of soft fur is seen at the top. The crown that is limp and pliable is still in favour. One of the most popular of hats is a modified form of a soldier's forage cap, in a three-cornered shape. The helmet shape is also seen a great deal. The sailor model is certainly not on the wane; it is as popular as ever, in moire, velvet, silk, or satin, black, of course, taking precedence of colours. Coloured hats are not worn very much, in fact, I may candidly say, black alone is favoured. White felts are among the morning hats or sport hats. They look well, but unfortunately are overdone, the fault with anything new. Ribbon takes a foremost place where hat decoration is concerned, great loops may be noticed on some of the millinery, tartan holding a firm place; black corded ribbon, or black velvet ribbon, is also conspicuous on some of the new models. Touches of fur and tiny posies of dainty flowers are still among favoured hat trimmings; they must be used very sparingly, otherwise they lose their chic. Pleated cockades help in some instances to finish a plain and serviceable little hat. Black and white hats are always up to date, and are chosen by many a smart wearer. But the velour hats are carrying all before them. Some of the latest are blocked and exquisitely light in weight; in some instances they have a tendency to introduce two colours, the contrast either of velour or straw forming a lining to the brim and being further emphasised in some trimming round the crown. The travelling or sport hats of to-day are becoming affairs of real beauty; they are in no sort comparable to the shapeless things of stitched tweed or suede that we used to wear last season or so. There is a distinct "ligne" in every one of the new shapes, and yet they are at the same time just as practical as their predecessors.

MAISIE.

WOMEN'S WORK AT THE SHOW.

Women's work at the R.A. Show, as compared with men's big attempts and results, is "as water unto wine," a little quotation which "man, the tyrant," often hurls at us in his superiority. "Look," says the haughty masculine person, "at your one poor little collection of industries as compared with the vast agglomeration of man's energy and skill." Quite just and fair on the surface is this remark, and yet not at all fair when sifted to its finest grains of fact, for the Easter Show represents all kinds of professional and trained work—not only agricultural—while the women's industries are not really "industries" at all. The fancy work, the knitting, the jam-making, and the rest of them are all the result of amateur effort. To put the dressmaking, say, on the same plane as any of the big exhibits, the most prominent and fashionable modistes in the city would be displaying their 20-guinea "creations," whereas we see only a few neatly-made frocks and hats by home dressmakers, not even by the suburban "costumieres." Nearly all the classes in the Woman's Hall are filled by exhibits of work done as a pastime merely, and not "to earn a crust," though sometimes this kind of needlework helps to buy butter for a crust, or gloves, or theatre tickets, or other little luxuries.

Women's work—real hard toil and energy—is to be seen in other departments of the great show. This year, in particular, the Red Cross exhibits, which are attracting attention and admiration. Then, again, nobody can deny that Mrs. Stace, Miss Dolly Fogg, Miss Morton, and their fellow-horsewomen, are showing some fairly good women's work just now, while the soldiers' tent is largely the outcome of a woman's initiative, for Dr. Mary Booth has really slaved to get her idea of a soldiers' club fairly started. Women are doing good work outside the Women's Industries section.

With regard to the Red Cross exhibits, the model of the scheme of operations, from the battlefield to Netley Hospital, made and presented to the Red Cross Society by the kindergarten children, is an immense attraction, and the ladies in charge explain the exhibit to the crowds who examine it. Here are shown the wounded being given first aid on the field, and then carried to the dressing stations, then passed on to the clearing hospitals, then by motor ambulance to the hospital train; and then the much-loved "silver streak" is reached, and crossed by the little white hospital ship guarded by convoys, and the poor suffering wounded at last safely find themselves at Netley.

ON OVERLAPPING.

Great is the power of theory. Set forth with vigour, it may wreck a cause, break a heart, spoil a life, and may be, after all, mistaken. Every theory, therefore, deserves suspicion until it has been proved by practice, for theory is the theory of practice, as practice is the practice of theory.

The theory that "overlapping" is unwise has lately been set forth, and an authority has said that no association should attempt to do any part of the work that another association is already trying to do. This dictum has been proved in some cases—in the distribution of charitable aid, for instance, in which we all know that overlapping increases the moral harm continually done by unconsidered charity. But is it therefore true of all public work? For example, the extreme overlapping of the numerous associations brought into existence by the war. Any one who thought at first that overlapping in that case would be harmful must have long ago changed his opinion, and must be ready to acknowledge that each separate effort has increased the total result, while it has in no way diminished interest.

Our immediate consideration lies nearer home. We have been told, with some authority, that the work of the Citizens' Association overlaps that of the Health Society, and that the Town Planning Association is too near akin to both. It is true that each association was formed to foster interest in civic affairs. But between the question of how best to lay out a garden city, and that of how to induce the woman who lives in a back lane to keep the lid on her garbage tin, there is a wide and varied field, which may be viewed from many different standpoints—a field so wide and varied that it could not possibly be dealt with by one association. Of this assertion, the Health Society itself, after its many years of excellent work, offers sufficient proof.

Among men and women with unnumbered shades of temperament, and different measures of ability, there must always be divergence of interest, and various ideals of method. Else might we as well be slaves, or jelly-fish? One may make health his watchword of reform, while another dreams of beauty, and a third of order. One may prefer to work by means of lectures, and another by encouraging observation and study. One may desire intelligent helpers, willing to spend and be spent, and hope thereby to reach his ideal, while another may wish to draw into a wider circle the ignorant and the poor. By many diverging pathways all may some day reach the distant goal, but the forest is thick, and almost unexplored, and it is surely hardly worth while to grumble at those who see a slightly different gleam of the kindly light that leads them all on.

Some one has objected that different societies must have many presidents and secretaries—too many officers. Is that a disadvantage? Not one is paid; it only means that so many more men and women are giving freely of their time and trouble to a movement for the common good. It means, too, that when a wrong has to be nailed to the gibbet, three or four presidents and several committees will stand ready to strike for the right. Three blows from three well-directed hammers will drive a nail deeper than will one.

There is an infinite variety of wrong to be righted. Suburbs are growing beyond knowledge. Roads are reaching out into what was within easy memory almost untrodden bush. We have forty-one municipal councils, with hardly an expert among them. Houses are being built on pocket handkerchief allotments; foul smells defile our most beautiful streets; children play among the filth of dirty lanes. Why continue the tale? There is surely room for every individual and every association. Health and beauty, comfort and economy, are everywhere in danger, and we need more societies, not fewer, and more, not less, energy.

JAPANESE RED CROSS

A contingent of Japanese Red Cross ladies, accompanied by superintendent nurses, and doctors, recently arrived in England to give their valuable assistance in nursing the wounded. The incident has naturally caused much interest to be taken in the work of our Eastern Ally in this direction, in which the Japanese are acknowledged to be at the top of the tree for skill and organisation. In war time, their Red Cross, instead of being outside the army altogether, becomes part and parcel of the medical department of the army and navy. The superintendent nurses rank with physicians and pharmaceutists as military officers, chief nurses as non-commissioned officers, and ordinary nurses as privates. During the training of the nurses, which is undertaken by the society, they are subjected to military discipline. Three thousand nurses are always kept mobilised, being under oath to respond to the call for service in time of war or national calamity. Strict rules for conduct and etiquette are laid down, and as might be expected, personal appearance is taken into consideration as a large factor in the work. The virtue of gentleness is insisted upon, and probationers are taught that as frozen ice melts before the soft zephyrs of spring, so anger is softened by gentleness, but it is also laid down that woman must strive to acquire courage and avoid weakness and vacillation. With regard to feminine vanity, a regulation published shows that "good looks" are as much valued by Japanese women as by ourselves. The official mind strives to ignore the possession of mere prettiness, and extols instead "neatness," and "tidiness." "Good looks," it runs, "are of no importance, but the mind should be cultivated like the blossoms and the manners polished. Tidiness in dress and coiffure is a cardinal virtue in women, and still more so in nurses wearing uniform. Nurses must not powder or paint, and must never forget to put their gloves on. Decent appearance makes one's mind decent."

MELBOURNE NOTES.

Associating herself with the work of the Albert-street Conservatorium of Music, Madame Melba will commence on April 8, by hearing every vocalist whose name is on the books of the conservatorium. After which, on alternate Thursdays, she will teach in class, giving her valuable services in order to help young singers.

At the last meeting of the National Council of Women, a letter was read from the Rev. Anna Shaw (America), urging the women of Australia to form peace societies on the same lines as those adopted by American women leaders, a coincidence certainly that the new movement known as the Sisterhood of International Peace had been established a few hours before at the Australian Church to carry out the suggested measure. The purpose of the society is to promote mutual knowledge of each other by the women of different nations, to arouse people to a full sense of the wickedness and waste of war, and to work for the substitution of international justice.

Following the lead of many other musical enthusiasts, Miss Jessie Masson left Australia for Germany about two years ago. After spending some time in Berlin, circumstances over which she had no control, decided that her musical education should not be completed as she had planned. Miss Masson, after a lengthy visit, left Paris in December, and returned to Victoria, after spending a short time with a brother in San Francisco.

At present on a visit to Melbourne is Miss Martha Burns, who has been recuperating in Tasmania, after having returned by way of America and New Zealand from France, where she was actively employed in the first four months of the war as nursing sister and dental surgeon at Lady Dudley's Hospital at St. Nazaire. Miss Burns intends to return to Brisbane.

Besant Hall, in the Centreway, Collins-street, was converted recently, for a time, into an artists' salon, with Miss Esther Paterson as hostess. Sketches, portraits, and posters graced the walls, and masses of blue gum foliage supplied the decorative scheme. Mrs. Andrew Fisher and Mrs. G. F. Pearce, and several other prominent people were present. The Savage Club secured a skit on the matinee idol called "Her Hero," and Mr. and Mrs. James Dyer were fortunate in their purchase of two sketches, "In the Cathedral," and "Carmen." The artist was complimented by many, and taken from a financial and artistic point of view, the display was an undoubted success.

We are having a newspaper controversy on the subject of "Sex Education." Several letters have been published, for and against the suggestion. The Victorian Council of Sex Hygiene and Morality, established nearly two years ago, has not made very rapid progress in attaining its object, which was to secure co-operative action in advancing this cause. A meeting was held last week in the board-room of the Civil Service stores to discuss the question. Among those present were Miss Weekes and Miss M. Douglas, representing the Victorian Lady Teachers' Association; Mrs. W. R. Paling, Rev. F. Spencer, Sister Eva, and Sister Mary Lockwood. Miss Flynn will act as hon. secretary for the new movement.

AUSTRALASIAN LEAGUE OF HONOUR.

Lady Helen Munro Ferguson has consented to become the patron of the newly-constituted League of Honor for Women and Girls, which has been established under the auspices of the Y.W.C.A., working on the same lines as the league in England. The aim is "to bind together the women and girls of the Commonwealth and Dominion in a service of Government and Empire at this time of danger." Any girl over fourteen years of age may join by enrolling her name at the Y.W.C.A. headquarters or other recruiting centre, and paying the membership fee of 3d. The badge is the field daisy; black and yellow centre, white petals, tipped with red, worked over dark blue ground, the colours of the Allies. Members make a promise to make a special effort during the war "to uphold the honour of our nation by furthering the cause of righteousness, purity, and temperance at home."

WASTE PRODUCTS.

Nothing that can be made of any use is common or unclean to the analytical chemists, who have done marvellous things and incidentally made large fortunes, either for themselves or for others, out of products which up to the time of their "discovery" were just rubbish. So now we are finding out that much of what we formerly regarded as valueless, can be turned to account. Economy itself used to scorn things like, let us say, old stockings, odd bits of carpeting, scraps of cretonne, torn and worn old blankets, the arm pieces of worn-out long kid gloves, the backs of old short gloves, faded and soiled table-covers, past the dyeing stage, shabby great-coats, old newspapers, and all that kind of rubbish, which to our careless eyes looked of no account. But now these "waste products" of home have become endowed with an extrinsic value. Let us take them one after the other, and see what can be done with them. There is not an atom of stingy miserliness in thus putting on our considering cap, for if it had nothing else to recommend it, strict avoidance of waste is the fashion, and "everybody's doin' it."

Imprimis, as they say in the old plays, how do you think clever fingers are transforming old stockings now? Well, to make a long story short, they cut these old hose into soft house-slippers for poor children and hospital patients, sewing them to soles made of carpeting or felt or drugget. They do this in some of the big workrooms in London, and, though I hope we shall never need to do this here, yet on a small scale the hint is worth taking. Gathering up the fragments is one of the fine arts of the day.

Much more appealing to the lover of pretty effects is the old blanket transformed into a dainty quilt. I, myself, saw a gay little counterpane large enough to cover the foot of a bed, made out of several folds of a clean and worn blanket, too fragile for use in the ordinary way; the blanketing was folded smoothly and tacked here and there to keep it in place, and then covered with a pretty cretonne, all rosebuds and green garlands (6½d per yard), properly made, the top and bottom pieces being joined with a piping. Then the coverlet was quilted on the machine, in just a few widely-separated lines of stitchery—and behold, a very passable imitation of an eiderdown. For the benefit of amateur quilters, let me say that the long lines should be done in opposite directions to keep the stuffing even. Does that sound confusing? What is meant is the first row is done from the top edge to the bottom edge, then the second row is done from bottom to top, the third from top to bottom again, and so on. The cushions on an ancient rocking chair were covered with the same cretonne, and a clever girl thereby made her bedroom into quite a charming apartment.

Another item on the above list is the old kid glove, which I shall not discourse upon, for everybody knows that workers are using old kid gloves to line waistcoats for men in the trenches. Nor does it require a great stretch of imagination to predict the probable fate of old covers and curtains which may be used like old blanketing. (I forgot to say that eyelet holes should be worked here and there in these coverlets for ventilation). But what about old great coats? Well, now we are e'en copying the saving methods of dear Grandmamma, who used to cut out the most manly little garments, out of "father's old coats." The small boy is set up for the winter if he has one of these cut-down coats. The military patterns lend themselves to the scrappy treatment necessary to the case. Raglan sleeves help greatly in the effect of smartness.

Finally, and in conclusion, what can be done with old newspapers, now the butcher will not buy them? Of many uses, one is to burn them. There is now so great a scarcity of firewood in England that instead of kindling wood, which has, I believe, become almost prohibitive in price, people are putting long twists of newspaper in the grate with the coal to help "start" the fire. Paper is wood-pulp, and it burns well. Rag-paper is of no use as fuel, except in La Boheme, where burning the MSS is the first cause of some very pretty music; but wood-fibre lights up cheerily, and except for the fact that it ultimately smothers the fire in its own black char, would be of much more practical use as a "waste product" in the home than it now is.

MARTHA.

Miss Nora Long, who received most of her musical training at the Wellington Convent (N.Z.), received an ovation last month at the Shaftesbury Theatre, London, when she appeared in the leading part in "The Tales of Hoffman," under the name of Nora d'Argal.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

Forcemeat, made with meat—beef, mutton, pork, or veal—can be, and usually is, an elaborate and expensive dish, but it is not proposed to consider it in any way in this column to-day. Rather shall place be given to the simpler variety, called by many, not forcemeat at all, but merely "stuffing." Stuffing, or forcemeat, made without meat, lends itself easily to the manufacture of scores of dainty entrees, and although we may not really rank it among the meat-substitutes containing the valuable properties that animal foods yields for our benefit, yet we may so blend and cook it that it can serve excellently as a substitute for meat upon our meatless dinner days. The following is a good recipe for the making of one of the simplest kinds of forcemeat—To 6oz of breadcrumbs add the grated rind of a small lemon, a tablespoon of finely chopped herbs (dried ones will do if fresh are unobtainable), some pepper, salt, and a little grated nutmeg, and lastly two tablespoons of finely shredded suet, or an equal amount of butter. Mix all these ingredients together thoroughly, and bind them with two well-whisked eggs.

With a supply of forcemeat made in accordance with this recipe a cook has the foundation of quite a delightful number of the dainty dishes so popular in the average family. Necessarily, there are various forcemeats for various joints, etc., and every cook should learn the correct one to use; but that recommended in this column to-day will be found good for many purposes besides the one of serving, as stuffing for various kinds of meat, poultry, and fish. It is excellent formed into balls and dropped into soups and stews. Hard-boiled eggs, shelled and thickly coated with it, then fried a warm brown, and served with gravy, make that favourite luncheon dish, known in some cookery books as "birds' nests." Tomatoes may be cut open, robbed of their seeds, and filled with the forcemeat, then surmounted with dabs of butter, placed in a baking dish, and baked. So cooked, served in a border of rice and haricot beans, and accompanied by good brown gravy, they make an excellent substitute for butchers' goods. Or we may use a large old cucumber advantageously with the forcemeat. The method of procedure is as follows:—Peel the cucumber, cut off the ends, and parboil it. Then cut the centre, making a hole large enough to allow the seeds to be all scooped out, and the stuffing filled in. Roll it in a cloth, boil it, and serve with a rich melted butter sauce. Vegetable marrows may be treated in the same way, or they may be baked. In either case, they must be parboiled before being cut, robbed of their seeds, and stuffed. When stuffed, they need to be firmly tied together with string. They are improved by being coated with egg and bread-crumbs before being baked.

Another method of dealing with the forcemeat is to turn it into a savoury pudding—or into curried balls. For the savoury pudding, it is better to use butter instead of suet, in the making of the forcemeat, and to separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs; the yolks should be mixed in first, then the whites beaten to a stiff froth, be stirred in last of all. The mixture should then be poured into a well-buttered pie-dish, and baked for half an hour. Served with mushroom sauce, this savoury pudding is excellent. Curry balls are made by using suet instead of butter in the forcemeat mixture—and by slightly lessening its quantity—thus, three dessertspoons instead of two tablespoons to the 6oz of bread-crumbs, will be an ample allowance. While the mixture is still dry a small dessertspoon of curry powder should be stirred in. Then one egg will usually be found enough to make the forcemeat of such a consistency that it can be formed into balls while the second egg may be well beaten and brought with bread-crumbs into the service to egg-and-bread-crumb the balls. They need then to be fried and served in a border of boiled rice with gravy. Enough has been said thus far to indicate a few of the uses to which this simple kind of forcemeat can be put, and she is but a sorry cook who cannot evolve many more recipes for herself as she goes along.

Butter is this week 1/3½ a lb, eggs, alas, have soared to the uncomfortable price of 2/6 a dozen, and one knows there is no hope of them becoming cheaper for many weeks.

Notwithstanding the drought, the display of fruit and vegetables at our Agricultural Show this Easter was so splendid that most city folk came away proud of what the Australian orchardists and market-gardeners can do. Surely finer apples in greater variety could be shown by no other nation. Not even by America. The pears, also the lemons, and all the citrus fruits were equally fine, while the bananas from the Northern Rivers were of so good a quality that one feels sure the demand for Fiji bananas is doomed to grow smaller and less insistent.

The shops are charging us 9d, often 6d a dozen at present, for River bananas—1/6 and 1/ for those from Fiji. Lemons run from 6d, apples and oranges from 9d a dozen, up to 1/6, 3/ and 2/6, respectively. Grapes are abundant at 8d a lb, a rather tasteless variety at half that price. Strawberries, here and there, may be bought for 2/6 a punnet, but they are very scarce at present. Rhubarb is good at 4d a bunch, and passion fruit dear—8d and 1/ a dozen. Among the vegetables, we find peas still very dear—2/9 a peck—while beans are only 3d a peck less than peas. Cabbages are rather more plentiful, and good ones may be bought for 5d and 6d apiece. Tomatoes are greatly spoilt by the rain. Small ones are 6d a dozen, large ones 1/6. Marrows are good and cheap—4d, 6d, and 8d each—and parsnips and carrots (also somewhat spoilt by the rain) are 2d and 3d a bunch, respectively. Potatoes are growing older, and are 3/5 a quarter.

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

Braised Rabbit.—Take a large-sized rabbit, wash and clean thoroughly, then take 1 cup of bread-crumbs, 1 small onion, a sprig of thyme, and a few leaves of sage; mince onion and herb thoroughly, mix with bread-crumbs, add pepper and salt, stuff the rabbit with this seasoning, sew up the rabbit. Place in a meat-dish, with 2 tablespoons of dripping and a little water. Bake one hour in the oven, slowly, then lift out the rabbit, place it in a stewpan, make a rich gravy; cover the rabbit with the gravy, and simmer gently for 2 hours, serve. This is absolutely the best way to cook rabbits, as the greatest epicure could scarcely detect it from roast chicken.

Rabbit Pie.—Cut up a rabbit into neat pieces, one onion, and a little parsley, cover with water, and stew very gently for two hours; turn into a pie-dish, and dust in a little pepper and salt, and sufficient flour to thicken the gravy. A hard-boiled egg cut in slices may be added. It is a great improvement, but not actually necessary. Take 2 cups flour, and 1 small cup of clean dripping, 2 teaspoonful of baking powder, and a pinch of salt; rub half the dripping and baking powder into the flour; mix with cold water, always using a knife; do not handle the pastry; roll out, spread some of the dripping in, dust a little flour, roll up the pastry, roll out again, repeat the process of spreading on dripping, etc., then lay on top of pie-dish, and bake in a moderate oven.

Fricasseed Rabbit.—Take a small rabbit, cut up into nice even pieces, add pepper and salt, one small onion, and a little well-chopped parsley. Cover the rabbit with water, let it simmer slowly for two hours, then add one cup of milk, and a tablespoonful of butter, bring to the boil. Mix 1 large tablespoonful of maizena with a little milk; add to the stew on the fire, boil three minutes, then serve.

Curried Rabbit.—Cut into small joints, fry till golden brown, together with one small onion, one apple, finely sliced, ½ lemon in slices, a handful sultanas, pepper and salt to taste; after frying ingredients, turn into a stewpan. Make a nice rich gravy, pour over the meat; add two dessertspoons curry powder and let simmer two hours, then add a little maizena to thicken, and serve with boiled rice.

Rabbit Cutlets.—Make a mixture of 1 cup of bread-crumbs, and one egg, well-beaten, pepper and salt. Cut the rabbit into small joints; dip into the egg and breadcrumbs. Have ready a pan with dripping on the fire; allow the dripping to become so hot that a faint blue smoke arises out of it. Drop in the cutlets, and fry a light golden brown. Serve on a mound of mashed potatoes, add a sprig of parsley before sending to table.

ALICIA.

The Duchess of Marlborough presided at an important meeting in the ballroom of Sutherland House recently to promote an extension of the London Royal Free Hospital School of Medicine for Women. Some remarkable statements were made by such speakers as her Grace, Surgeon-General Sir Alfred Keogh, Dr. Mary Scharlieb, and Dr. Florence Willey, showing the great advance made by medical women of late. Since the war women doctors have been more in demand than ever. Dr. Willey said that by the end of the war a perfect army of doctors would be needed, and, as the population would be a very precious possession to the nation, she hoped to see knowledge about maternity as general in the homes of the poor as in those of the rich.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

Much social interest attaches to St. Vincent's Hospital concert on Saturday evening in the Town Hall. Their Excellencies Sir Ronald and Lady Helen Munro Ferguson and the Governor and Lady Edeline Strickland have promised to be present, and Mrs. Hugh Ward is working up the programme. St. Vincent's is always looked upon as the navy Hospital, as officers and men of the fleet in Australian waters have found a haven of rest there in times of sickness. The wife of the Admiral on this station for the time being has invariably taken a personal interest in the hospital, and since the establishment of our own navy Lady Patey has followed the example of her predecessors. The concert officials are all well-known and thoroughly accustomed to this kind of work. It may be confidently anticipated that the concert will be a brilliant success. Cancelling the customary ball and substituting this concert was a step which ought to meet with general acceptance just now, when balls are not to the social taste.

In a letter from Monte Carlo, received by a Sydney lady, the writer says that the Casino had just been reopened, and the attendants, croupiers, etc., who had all joined the colours, were replaced with soldiers invalided from the front. The place is described as very dull. Caruso, who is staying there, promised to give concerts in aid of the war funds, which offer was gratefully accepted, but Puccini's music has been barred, as Monte Carlo is under a French protectorate. Puccini refused to sign the musicians' protest against the violation of Belgium.

Hung in Anthony Hordern's Gallery is the collection of flower paintings by Mrs. Rowan, the well-known Australian artist, which has not been exhibited in New South Wales before, and includes garden scenes (some from her own garden in Victoria), such as "The Iris Walk," "Wistaria," and "Rhododendrons," but bush scenes and native flowers predominate. On entering the gallery one realises afresh how beautiful and how unique is our native flora. Four large paintings at first arrest attention, viz., a golden blaze of Cootamundra wattle, set off by its exquisite silver foliage, a cascade of purple false sarsaparilla, and white tea-tree flowers, coral-pink gum-tree blossom, the bursting flower buds just shedding their tiny protecting caps. Rose-pink epacris and stately crimson waratahs in great profusion.

The Association for Relief of Travelling Stock claim that their work is humanitarian and patriotic, and in this contention they are supported by women and men from all sections of the community, irrespective of creed or class. The movement was started by women, but is largely suported by men who know the earnestness of women workers when they realise the dreadful cruelty in handling stock in transit. The committee are mainly women who have lived on stations, and they can speak with authority as to the more kindly handling of animals intended for food. They know of the wastage, and are beginning to know more of the barbarity in the handling of stock to the Sydney markets.

In connection with the Belgian Fund, it has been decided to hold a garden party on Friday at the Wentworth Hotel, which has been kindly offered on behalf of the hotel directorate by Mrs. Maclurcan, to give the use of the hotel premises and gardens, music and refreshments in aid of the fund. An attractive programme of vocal and instrumental music is being prepared, and it is hoped that some prominent theatrical ladies and gentlemen at present appearing in Sydney will be able to take part. A committee of ladies has been formed, under the presidency of Lady Cullen and Mrs. Holman, to undertake the management of the garden party, which, owing to the great need of the Belgians, and the urgency of the occasion, it is hoped will be a great success.

THE BRISBANE WOMEN'S CLUB.

It seems no city of importance can nowadays be without its women's clubs. They may be social, educational, or political, but they must "be." The club combining social and educative objects is the most popular. Such a one is the Brisbane Women's Club. Years ago—perhaps 20 or so—the "Pioneer" Club was formed in Brisbane, and gave promise of long and active life, but after a few years, through a combination of untoward circumstances, it languished, and at its obsequies—disposing of furniture, etc.—there were few, if any, of the original members on the roll. Had there been it is quite within the bounds of possibility that it might have revived and been known as the "Phoenix" Women's Club.

In the meantime, the Women's Progressive Club had been the outcome of a political organisation—the Queensland Women's Electoral League—and was working on very modest lines—always with a good syllabus, which proved its educational objects, and its existence as "a centre for women workers."

The selection of the name was the result of a kind of toss up, and was not popular, so, in 1912, the name was altered to Brisbane Women's Club, by which title it is now known. It has quietly and unostentatiously pursued its way, and because of that has elements of permanency in it that the "Pioneer" lacked. For the first few years—1905-1915—it was only possible to have alternate Thursday evenings to carry out the syllabus, with occasional social reunions. But when the Queensland Women's Electoral League moved into city buildings, the Brisbane Women's Club were in a position to rent part of the premises occupied by that league, and so a big step ahead was taken. It meant that a rendezvous for club members was at last possible. As at most clubs, tea or a light luncheon can be obtained there daily, and the alternate Thursday evening syllabus is still carried out. In a young—comparatively—club with infinite possibilities, an increasing membership development was inevitable, and this year the club starts with four inner circles, or coteries—French, literary, music, and municipal. This means activity, and where there is healthy activity there is life. The existence of a university now in Queensland is very likely the reason of a desire for a literary circle. Certain it is that the leader is a lady who, before her marriage, was a Queensland University lecturer. The Municipal Circle has already, during the past two years, done good practical work. Politics—in the narrow party sense—are taboo. Indeed, the first object disavows politics altogether—"To provide a non-political social centre for women-workers in the cause of reform." It will be difficult to realise that without touching politics. Most reforms have to be sought by way of the ballot box these degenerate days. The second object is "To encourage free discussion on subjects of public importance, including social and municipal matters." The subscription is not a large one—10s 6d per annum, country members 5s, and entrance fee 2s 6d. The Brisbane Women's Club cannot, therefore, be looked upon as exclusive or expensive.

Is it Emerson who says that an institution is but the elongated shadow of one man? It might, in some cases, be too much to say "one man" or "one woman," but much of an institution's success depends on its executive officers, of which the secretary is the practical chief. It is to be regretted then that the club's able hon. secretary has through illness been compelled to take an indefinite rest. Miss Highfield's enthusiasm overcame all the difficulties in the usual thorny path of secretaries, and her place will be hard to fill.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

AUTUMN MEETING.

THIRD DAY.

ANTICIPATIONS.

The autumn racing campaign at Randwick will be advanced another stage this afternoon, and for the "off day" a very interesting bill of fare has been provided. The card includes a contest over the battens, a couple of w.f.a. events, a race for two-year-olds at set weights, and a couple of handicaps on the flat for three-years-old and upwards. Such an attractive programme should bring about high-class sport, and attract a large gathering to the metropolitan heath. The customary means of transit between the city and the racecourse will be in vogue, special trams starting from Circular Quay, via Oxford-street, and from the Railway Square loop, via Cleveland-street; while motors, cabs, and other vehicles will also be available.

Proceedings commence at 1 p.m. with the Second Hurdle Race, in which the prospects of Clontaft, Jack Rice, Darrawa, Bibbenluke, and Briarberry, appear to be the brightest, and the places may be filled by Darrawa, Jack Rice, and Briarberry.

The All-aged Stakes promises an interesting contest, in which the leading parts should be taken by Willow Green, Woorak, Garlin, and Traquette, and the honours may be divided by Garlin, Traquette, and Willow Green.

Tofua, Taunter, Tartanus, Amata, and Owen Roe should have the settlement of the Coogee Handicap among them, and the judge may declare for Taunter, Tofua, and Tartanus.

The Easter Stakes should bring about a good race, and towards the finish the fighting line should comprise Wallace Isinglass, Sir John Barleycorn, Dear Laddie, Brilliants, and Wedding Day; while Wallace Isinglass, Sir John Barleycorn, and Dear Laddie may pass the post in that order.

The battle for the Cumberland Stakes should be fought out among Sir Alwynton, Ulva's Isle, St. Spasa, and Mountain Knight, and the situations may go to Mountain Knight, Ulva's Isle, and Sir Alwynton.

The City Handicap brings the afternoon's sport to a close, and the most likely to fight out the finish are Frasca, Onazer, Scotch Artillery, Moonbria, and Dollar Dictator, while Frasca, Onazer, and Moonbria may pass the post in order.

CRICKET.

THE EIGHT-BALL OVER.

VAGUELY RECOMMENDED.

The eight-ball over suggestion or recommendation put before the New South Wales Cricket Association at its last meeting has given rise to considerable controversy. The terms of the resolution and the construction put upon it have aroused the interest of cricket authorities, not only in the other Australian States, but also in the "old country." Unfortunately, there has been a good deal of misconception concerning the matter. The recommendation adopted by the association was—"that eight balls to the over be given a trial next season, provided the other States will agree to the same." At first sight, it must appear delightfully vague. The intention of the proposal, however, according to explanations given is that it should apply to next season's grade contests; and also to interstate matches. The conduct of interstate matches, of course, is a matter which directly concerns other States as well as ourselves, and no change such as that suggested could come into operation without their approval and concurrence, but the conduct of our grade matches is an entirely local affair, which our association ought to be able to manage with the assistance of the other States.

AMENDMENT NEGATIVED.

In the terms of the recommendation adopted the decision as to whether we use eight balls to the over in our local matches next season rests with the other States. It is due, however, to the intelligence of at least a section of the association to mention that an amendment was proposed, that "eight balls to the over be given a trial in grade matches next season; and also in the interstate matches, if the other States be agreeable." The amendment was negatived.

This amendment, we venture to think, would have met the case admirably. The eight balls would have been given a trial next season in grade cricket, and the other States, naturally, would not have agreed to it in interstate matches until they had given it a trial also in their local games. Whether or not they would have agreed to it then is an open question; we are inclined to think not. The basis of the change from six balls to eight in the over is a time-saving one. In our interstate matches this can be met in a far more efficient and much more simple way by extending the hours of play, so that there is absolutely no call for the change to be made for the purpose of saving time in interstate matches.

REFORM AND THE M.C.C.

Moreover, the cry for reform is not so insistent in the other States as it is here. In Victoria, for instance, the game is flourishing; no change in the laws of cricket is wanted there to brighten the game. It is not any wonder then that opinions adverse to the changes have been freely expressed in the southern capital. In Queensland the standard of play may not be high, but there is no decadence, and, therefore, no desire for change. In other States, so far as we know, such is also the case. Again, in England, last cricket season was a phenomenal success until the intervention of the war put a stop to the programme. It is not surprising, therefore, that "Sporting Life" sees no reason for the change in first class cricket, and hazards the opinion that it would not find favour with the M.C.C. Now, as far as the M.C.C. is concerned, it has always shown a willingness to welcome suggestions of cricket reform coming from Australia, and from Australians, and a special readiness to adopt anything peculiar to the practice of the game in Australia that may seem to be for the betterment of the game. Several instances could be cited, such, for example, as the "new ball rule"—the habit of having a new ball every 200 runs. It is a pity therefore, that this should so soon have been made to appear in the English press, as an Australian idea for the betterment of cricket. The proper body to bring such a recommendation involving a change in the laws of the game before the M.C.C. would be the Board of Control, and, as is well known, the matter is a very long way from even being brought before the Board of Control, and, therefore, very far from being considered by the M.C.C., at all events as an Australian recommendation.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE'S INQUISITION.

It was not contemplated, perhaps, by the vaguely-worded recommendations about the eight-ball over to the New South Wales Cricket Association that it would so speedily attract world-wide significance. The committee was appointed to inquire into the game locally, and the cause of its decadence locally, and while it was suggesting the use of eight balls to the over for local cricket, it was well within the limits of its objective. It is our local cricket that wants brightening. Differences of opinion may exist regarding the position and popularity of the game in other States and elsewhere, but there can be no difference of opinion concerning the need for stimulation in our own local cricket interest. In so far as the eight-ball over suggestion meets that need, it is welcome; whether it will satisfy is another question only to be answered by trial.

PROS AND CONS.

What is the object of the change? Those who advocate it maintain that it will save a lot of valuable time that is now wasted in changing over between overs. The amount of time is estimated variously from 20 minutes to half an hour. Those who oppose it (and there are some) deny that it will save much time, if any. Obviously, some time will be saved, but how much can only be settled by actual trial. Assuming that on the average one minute is wasted in changing over at the end of every over in an afternoon's play of 72 overs, eighteen changes would be saved, and eighteen minutes' actual play be added to the afternoon's enjoyment—and eighteen minutes' actual play would be equivalent to, say, 20 or 25 minutes added to the afternoon when six balls to the over are being used. In other words, on this computation, our afternoon's cricket with eight balls to the over would be equal to the afternoon's cricket with six balls to the over, plus 20 minutes or more extra play. Now, if this be near the truth, then the change would be an eminently desirable one for our grade cricket, for which the time at our disposal is all too short. Forty minutes' extra play in a grade match would be a most acceptable reform. In actual practice it may be found to be more or less than this computation, but, in any case, it is bound to increase the amount of time spent in actual play to an appreciable extent. There is another aspect, and a very important one, in this connection—viz., the lessening of the number of "changes over" to any extent will be welcomed by the onlookers to whom the frequent changes are somewhat irritating and tiresome, and in that respect will certainly be a step towards brightening the play and rendering it more attractive to popular taste. These advantages, as far as grade cricket is concerned, seem of outstanding merit. What objections have been urged against the proposal? The principal one is that it will tend to put too great a physical strain upon the bowlers. What a criticism upon the physical fitness of our bowlers? That, incredible as it may seem, has been urged in all seriousness against the proposal. As an objection it is chimerical in its application to grade cricket, and that is what we are concerned with.

WILL THE ASSOCIATION RESCIND?

The amendment, which would have dealt with this matter from the grade standpoint, was turned down in the association. Why? Because, we venture to think, the issues were clouded by the attempt to make the change uniform for all cricket. That attempt, it seems pretty certain, is premature, and at any rate, it has led the authorities here into the ludicrous position of having to wait unless a rescission be accomplished, the decision of the other States before knowing whether the proposal is to have a trial in our grade cricket or not. In junior cricket eight balls to the over has been tried and has been more than favourably commented on; so that its adoption in grade cricket would not be a step in the dark.

WHAT THE LAWS STATE.

In this connection, it may not be out of place to mention that in the oldest laws of cricket extant (1744), it is stated that the over should consist of four balls. This number was retained until May, 1889, when it was increased to five. In May, 1900, the number was still further increased to six, at which the number now stands as per law 13—"The ball shall be bowled in overs of six balls from each wicket alternately. . . ." There is one exception provided in law 2 (one-day matches), in which it is stated:—"Prior to the commencement of a match it may be agreed that the over consist of five or six balls."

BOWLS.

ASSOCIATION AND COUNCIL.

Although the business proper at the annual meeting of the Australian Bowling Council on Saturday last looked quite simple and innocent of any menace to harmony, the real import was between the lines in invisible ink. The essence of the business was whether Melbourne would persist in a course of conduct that was interpreted in Sydney as an attempt to dominate the game in Australia. It was very regrettable that much of the bitterness had been occasioned by the decision of this State not to hold the appointed interstate carnival in Sydney at Easter owing to the war. Here was a sublime opportunity for a body of sportsmen federalised by a constitution to set an example. Bowls is not the game of thoughtless youths unable to restrain their ardour in any set of circumstances, but of developed men, who might be assumed to be fully conscious of the gravity with which they should view the life-and-death struggle of the Empire. True, the carnival might have been held without the community worrying itself about the diversions of the two or three hundred men engaged. That this State preferred not to hold it has not saved the life of one British soldier, but it has done honour to those who deserve it. The name of every Australian soldier who was on his way to the war was a protest against bowlers from the various States being summoned to Sydney to indulge in high carnival. To be serious is not necessarily to be pessimistic. If we are not serious now, when shall we be? The materialism that yields nothing to sentiment, the eyes that cannot pierce the distance to the graves of 10,000 of our countrymen in Europe, the ears that are tickled in these dread days by platitudes at a sporting banquet, seem sadly deficient to those who are sensitive to the messages that come daily from London. Nor could it be said that this State—meaning the Bowling Association—was despondent or extreme in its views. The spirit of its discussion was: "Let all normal competitions proceed, let us play for the pennant, but spare us the carnival with its feasting and revelry—we are not in the mood for it." The leaders of "bowling thought" in Melbourne could not understand this, or, if, understanding, they did not agree. Loyalty did not enter into the matter—they were as loyal, no doubt, as the Sydney bowlers. It was a question apparently of sensitiveness to sentiment. The unpardonable indiscretion was committed of suggesting that South Australia hold the carnival, but only the Victorian section of the executive did this—the Sydney representative on the executive of the council was ignored. The explanation that South Australia was only being "sounded" was deemed insufficient; nor was the New South Wales Association satisfied with the protest made by its ignored delegate. South Australia's prompt intimation that it agreed with the good taste shown by New South Wales was a rebuke to the enterprising Victorians. The mistake the council made was in not confining its representations to a regret that New South Wales had not merely advised the council that it was indisposed to carry on the carnival, instead of bluntly deciding not to conduct it. The carnival is really the council's carnival, although each State manages it in its own way and for its own benefit when its turn comes. Technically, this State was at fault—actually it was wise, inasmuch as it regarded it as a matter of honour not to hold the carnival, and did not care to enter upon an interminable correspondence with the council. Sentiment and honour, it felt, could not be made a question of pro and con like an argument over a tariff. The council was entitled to protest, and it did so, but it went too far, and lost its dignity by hawking the carnival around. It also imperilled its own existence, for a bowling council without New South Wales would soon melt away. It is to be hoped that the clearing of the atmosphere that has followed the storm will be permanent. The Victorian bowlers outside the council were not concerned—the disagreement was with an executive that acted as it deemed best, but whose best was hasty and provocative. The fault of New South Wales was absorbed in the greater fault of the council, and the higher tribunal lost a prestige that will have to be regained. It has now taken a course that will help it to that end. It re-cloaked itself with dignity by regretting, by resolution, that New South Wales had declined the carnival instead of asking permission not to hold it, and is then magnanimously decided that New South Wales should be allotted the carnival at Easter, 1916. Tasmania will have its carnival at Christmas, 1916-17, and South Australia at Easter, 1918. Mr. H. A. Scott, of New South Wales, was re-elected to his position on the executive, and at present the prospects of happier relations between this State and the council are hopeful.

Bowls is more popular in Victoria than in New South Wales, and the Easter games included matches against Tasmania and South Australia, in addition to a country players' carnival. Victoria put eight rinks in the field to meet the two teams from the other States. In the first match against Tasmania, the home team won by 23, the scores being 113 to 90. Jamieson (V.) beat Cuff, 41—17; and Waxman (V.) beat Hawson, 29—23. The other two Victorian rinks were down. In the second match, Tasmania was down by 8 at 5 leads, 11 down at 10 leads, 8 down at 15 leads, and 9 down at 20 leads. The Islanders then made a brilliant effort, and in the concluding five heads scored no fewer than 29, while Victoria added 9. Tasmania won by 96 to 85. Waxman was beaten by Williams, 19—27, and Crockford (V.) was beaten by Crooke, 18—26. In the third match, Tasmania, playing in great heart, won by 108 to 85, and took the rubber.

Against South Australia, the Victorian rinks were successful in the three matches. They won the first by 130 to 89, all four rinks being up. The skips and their scores were:—Crawley 39—27, Shaw 23—22, Sutton 38—19, and Williams 30—21. In the second match the South Australians showed better form, but were beaten 107—96. Williams beat Morris 36—20, Sutton beat Horton 23—20, Crawley beat Orchard 25—24, and Shaw went down to Robinson 23—32.

The visits of several country teams to Sydney for the Easter holidays were interfered with by rain, but a number of matches reached completion, and the games were enjoyable. They have been fully reported. At Ashfield, Mr. Clayton, a vice-president of the association, who was one of the visitors from Newcastle, took the opportunity of commenting upon the decision of the permanent committee to conclude the pennant competition by playing morning and afternoon matches on the one day—April 17. Mr. Clayton approved the decision, regarding it as a boon and concession to the Newcastle team—Lowlands—who will represent the Northern Association in the fight for the coveted flag. It was pointed out in this column last week that the decision was unpopular with some players. It would seem, however, that, all things considered, the situation is one in which the pennant committee should stick to its guns. It will compel the clubs to exclude players who cannot stand the physical strain of two matches in one day. That will have to be faced. Good rules often involve seeming hardships to a minority. It would be unreasonable to ask Lowlands to come to Sydney for a final match if they won on April 17. To play 50 heads in one day requires some endurance, but the Lowlands team is willing to do it on top of a hundred miles' journey. The duty of the minority is obvious.

The ties, Chatswood-Mosman and Ashfield-Randwick, will be played on Saturday next. It is known one or two changes are contemplated at Ashfield. Among bowlers generally there is a belief that Ashfield and Mosman will win.

BOXING.

Three 10-rounds and one 6-round contest will be submitted at the Olympia Stadium, Newtown, this evening. Fred Wheeler will oppose Percy Young, Jimmy O'Brien is to meet Matt. Murphy, and Les. Gleeson has been matched with Frank O'Connor. The six-round encounter will be supplied by Pat. Talbot and Pat Conley. Each of the participants in the above contests has recent victories to his credit, and the object of the matches is to secure talent for 20-round engagements later on; thus some fine contests should be witnessed. The first pair will enter the ring at 8 p.m.

EASTER COMPETITIONS.

PROFESSIONAL MATCHES.

The majority of the clubs held competitions on both Saturday and Monday, the weather on the first day being all that could be desired. Showery weather on Monday interfered to some extent with the complete enjoyment of the holiday, but did not affect the play.

The professional four-ball match, in which D. G. Soutar and J. Kirkwood opposed F. Popplewell and A. W. East, was played last week at Kensington, the proceeds being devoted to the Belgian Fund. Unfortunately, the weather was very unfavourable, heavy rain falling during the greater part of both morning and afternoon rounds, and the attendance was not nearly as large as would otherwise have been the case. The result was a triumph for Soutar and Kirkwood, who seemed more at home in the moist conditions than their opponents. Popplewell and East were weak on and near the greens, their approaches too often failing to be up, while their putting was far below their usual standard.

The Manly pair soon established a lead by winning the first hole in 4, the third in similar figures, and the fifth, sixth, and seventh in 4, 6, and 2, respectively, mainly through the agency of Kirkwood, who played brilliantly. Popplewell and East had their first success at the eighth, which they each had in 4, but Kirkwood won the ninth with a fine 3, and the Manly pair turned 5 up—a substantial lead. The first three holes coming back were divided. Soutar won the 13th with an unexceptional 3, while Popplewell took the following hole in 4, and East won the 15th with a splendid 3, the length of the hole being 420 yards. Kirkwood, after being in two bunkers, had a 4 at this hole. The visitors won the last two holes, and finished the morning round 6 up.

In the afternoon Soutar and Kirkwood forged further ahead, and at the fifth were 8 up, but Popplewell won the seventh and ninth, Kirkwood won the 10th in 4, and Popplewell and East each had threes at the 11th. The end came at the 13th, which Soutar obtained in 4, and the match was won by 7 up and 5 to play. The feature of the day was Kirkwood's morning round of 72, which was as follows:—

Out: 4, 5, 4, 3, 4, 6, 2, 5, 3—36
In: 5, 3, 4, 4, 5, 4, 3, 3, 5—36
72

Soutar and Kirkwood had a further match on Saturday, on the occasion of laying the foundation stone of the new clubhouse at Wentworth Falls, their opponents being Popplewell and Campbell, the Leura professionals. They scored another win, this time by the narrower margin of 3 and 2.

Saturday's competitions were confined to a limited number of clubs. At Manly J. B. Ferrier showed he had not forgotten his skill and cunning by returning a good card of 76—2—78, beating R. Sayers and C. N. Smith by one stroke. A four-ball competition in the afternoon went to O. H. Wines and J. P. Hill, with a round of 5 up. Good handicapping was evident at Concord, where four players were bracketed in first place with cards all square with bogey. L. W. Mogg was the winner at Bonnie Doon with 81—6=75.

The Australian Club held its first competitions for some time, T. Smith winning the bogey handicap from scratch with 3 down, and R. Lee Brown the medal handicap, with 84—5=79. The Dobroyde Club held a bogey competition extending over the two days, the winner being Max Lawson (6), with a fine card of 5 up. He was 2 up at the turn, and 3 up coming home, his figures for the round totalling 78, which is one of his best performances. F. S. Shenstone (4), who has again taken up the secretaryship of the club, was a good second with 4 up, his round being 77, which he has never beaten. He took sixes at the last two holes, and lost them; otherwise his card would have won.

The Springdale Cup at Killara was won by R. S. Gregson, a long marker, for probably the last time. He played with the greatest consistency, winning the morning round with 96—24—72, and the afternoon round with 91—24—67, his total score being 187—48—139. The runner-up was W. S. Bradford, with 191—44—147; while F. J. Springthorpe had the best gross score, with 76—81=157. At Manly R. Sayers won the bogey competition with a card of square, and in partnership with B. W. Farquhar also won the four-ball stroke handicap, with 73—2=71. R. W. Mackellar (9) had a runaway win at Concord, with a card of 6 up.

On Easter Monday N. MacTaggarat, of the Drummoyne Club, won the morning event—a stroke competition—on the Moss Vale Club's links, his card reading 92—15=77. A bogey competition, which was decided in the afternoon, was won by C. A. D. Richardson, who, with a handicap of 6 finished square with bogey. The competition for the bronze medal presented by the association resulted in a guinea profit, which will be given to the Belgian Fund.

The Blue Mountains' championship was won on Monday by that fine player, J. D. Howden, secretary of the Leura Golf Club. He had an easy victory, his score being 69+73=142. The runner-up was A. W. H. Padfield, whose card read, 80+77=157. There were 16 entries, and Howden won the War Fund medal presented by the Suburban and Country Golf Association. Although the course was in good condition, the scoring was not good. A choice score event (18 holes) was won by F. E. Wells with a card of 75—18=57. There were 60 entries. As 2s 6d was the entrance fee, the Belgian Fund will receive a nice little cheque as a result of the Leura meeting.

BASEBALL.

THE COMING SEASON.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the New South Wales Association was marked by similar enthusiasm and earnestness as characterised that of the previous year. The attendance was excellent, not alone of officers and delegates, but of supporters of the game. Great keenness was shown in the election of all the committees, which augurs well for good management during the coming season. During the course of the meeting one or two of the delegates referred to the matter of school baseball, and charged last season's management with not having given this important item the attention it deserved. However, the crux of this question has been the absence of coaches, and it is too much to expect that members of the executive committee should neglect their ordinary avocations to undertake this duty. The mere spending of a few pounds is not the remedy, and this point has been emphasised by members of the P.S.A.A.A. baseball committee. The advance of the game in the schools, if not as rapid as desired by many, is steady, and not at all unsatisfactory. The method of "hastening slowly" is a good one. The failure to establish the game in the Teachers' Training College last season cannot be charged to the neglect of the management committee, as a great effort was made to bring this about. However, it is pleasing to know that for some time negotiations have been in progress to accomplish this end in the coming season. The effect of success in this respect will be far-reaching, not only in Sydney, but in all parts of the State.

A small section of the delegates seemed much perturbed because the association had accumulated the modest cash balance of £289. From their point of view, it is a matter for reproach that the money had not been spent for the "good of the game." These delegates would do well to remember that the total, modest as it is, took a considerable time to accumulate, and that it is much easier to spend than to acquire. One unsuccessful season, and the partial expenses of a team to visit Adelaide would make a big hole in the amount now at the disposal of the association. As a matter of fact, it might easily be that the squandering of the bulk of the funds, as apparently ardently desired by some, for the ostensible object of advancing the interests of the game, would put the clock back a few years. Many of those now associated with baseball remember when it was necessary to go cap in hand to supporters for subscriptions to help send a team to Melbourne, etc.—a state of affairs that it is hoped will not exist in the future. Success will only attend the business-like conduct of the finances. This applies equally to the affairs of the association as to any other business.

Matters generally are progressing well, and there are the usual indications of a successful season. Already several new clubs have formed up for the A and B divisions, and it is expected that these will more than compensate for the loss of any that may be dropping out. Lane Cove and Chatswood have amalgamated, and the new club—Gordon district—will take the place of the former in the district competition, with headquarters at Chatswood Oval. The joining of forces was found necessary by the weakening of Lane Cove.

The application of the Sydney Baseball Club (Summer Baseball Association) to play in the district division has been referred to the executive committee for inquiry and report. The city of Sydney is at present in the Paddington baseball district, and the admission of this team would necessitate a further division of territory, a course not regarded as advisable by many, who consider the increase of the number of clubs as likely to lower the standard of the game.

The South Australian League has requested that the interstate carnival, which was to have been held in Adelaide this year, be postponed until 1916. The general feeling in that city is that it would be unwise to hold the carnival there this year owing to the effects of the war and the bad times prevailing on account of the poor seasons experienced during the past two years. No official word has been received from Victoria in reference to the matter, but it is understood that the League there is agreeable to the postponement. A telegram appeared in Monday's "Herald" notifying that a split had occurred in the Victorian association. It is hoped that the trouble will be overcome.

The annual field day will be held on Petersham Park on April 24, and promises to be as successful as heretofore.

In view of the war, the general policy of the association for the coming season will not be one of undue advertisement. Efforts will be made for a quiet competition, but nothing will be attempted which will be likely to encourage those players whose duty is at "the front" to remain at home. There is no doubt that when the competition games start on May 1 it will be found that many of last season's players are doing their duty to King and country.

SAILING.

THE 18-FOOTERS.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON.

When the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron and the Royal Prince Alfred Yacht Club, as well as the Sydney Amateur Sailing Club, decided at the beginning of the season not to race on account of the war, a similar suggestion was made to the Sydney Flying Squadron and the Sydney Sailing Club, which cater for the popular 18-footers. But neither deemed this course necessary or desirable, and their programmes were proceeded with in the usual way. The result has been another successful season for the "eighteens," and one that, in some respects, eclipses its predecessors.

It is true that the interstate racing, which was to have been held at Brisbane this year, had to be postponed, and that the time-honoured Anniversary Regatta had to be carried out on a smaller scale than hitherto, but apart from this the great European struggle has apparently had little or no effect on the racing as far as this class is concerned. On the contrary, the steamer returns have been greater than those of previous seasons, especially during the first half of the season, and the clubs have been able to provide not only the same number of races as last season, but to give slightly better prize money, and to finish up on the right side of the ledger.

In all 26 races were contested by the 18-footers during the season for prize money amounting to £891. This was below last season's total but the difference is accounted for by the absence of the interstate prize and the fact that only one race instead of two was decided at the Anniversary Regatta. The competition for the prizes was as keen as ever, and the racing generally was quite up to the usual standard. The addition of the new boats, Boronia, Moyana, and Tom Tait, and an old-timer in the shape of Evelyn during the season, brought the fleet up to a numerical strength of 25, and almost all of these participated in the prize money.

Although one or other of Mr. W. M. Ford's Australians has usually headed the list of prize winners, that honour has on this occasion fallen to Kismet, just as it did two seasons ago. This boat has been sailing particularly well, and it may here be mentioned that her success has been mainly due to W. Dunn and his crew, who have had no superiors, if any equals, in handling their boat. Not only has she come out on top, but her winnings, which total £86, include two of the three championships (the State championship, and the Sydney Club's championship), and a second in the other.

Despite the efforts of the handicappers, four of the other back-markers follow Kismet on the list. Nimrod is second with £58, but she is closely followed by Mavis, £57 (which includes the Sydney Flying Squadron's championship). Australian and Arline are next with £55 each; then come Mississippi £52, Mona £46, Sydney £45, Movana £45, Enid £42, Pastime £41, Golding £41, H. C. Press £41, Scot £37, Desdemona £35, Boronia £30, Quibree £26, Swastika £25, Sunny South £24, Advance £22, Acme £14, Blanche £13, Evelyn £3, Eagle £1. Particulars of the various performances which make up these winnings appear below:—

LAWN TENNIS.

BELGIAN CARNIVAL.

FOUR VISITING STATES.

The response of other States to the invitation of the New South Wales Lawn Tennis Association to send teams to Sydney for the purpose of playing against New South Wales next week has been infinitely better than was anticipated. No doubt, the decision to apply the profits of the carnival to the relief of the Belgians has been the chief factor in influencing the associations of the other States to be represented. With teams here from Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, and Victoria, the success of the meeting seems assured. It will be by far the most representative gathering of States seen in Australia in connection with lawn tennis. If time permitted—which, unfortunately it will not—it would be a splendid opportunity for these four States and New South Wales to meet in a tournament on the American system, so that each State would meet every other, as the teams in country week do. Perhaps, something of the kind may be attempted in the near future.

Negotiations are proceeding with a view to some of the States coming to Sydney earlier than intended in order that some of the matches may be played on April 14 and 15. It is desirable that this should be effected, for, if the matches be all played on the same days, New South Wales will have to put 22 players into the field. That is not to be wished, for though this State is possessed of many players of high class, the visiting teams would naturally like to be opposed by our best possible players. Moreover, if four matches were in progress on the same day, spectators would not have as much time and opportunity to watch all the visiting players as they would wish. The only other alternative, if an earlier opening day cannot be arranged, would be to play some of the matches during the week allotted to the open tournament. But this would hardly be practicable, for many of the competitors in the interstate contests will be taking part in the championships and other events of the tournament. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to arrange that they should not be called upon to play in the open events on the two days required for an interstate match, nor would it be fair to ask them to play their ties of tournament events in such intervals as they were not engaged in their interstate contest.

But no matter what arrangements are ultimately come to, it is unquestioned that this interstate gathering will occasion unprecedented interest. The visiting teams are:—

Victoria: Campbell, England, Rainey, Roebuck, Buckley, and Taylor.
Queensland: Radcliffe, Smith, Frew, Barriskill, Barry, and Quinn.
Tasmania: McGough, Newton, Dickenson, Barclay, Sheehan, and Newton.
South Australia: Thomas, Barritt, J. O'Dea, and G. O'Dea.

Of these, Tasmania and South Australia are fairly representative of the strength of their States, Tasmania especially so. Victoria is not up to its customary standard, although its side includes some extremely promising young players. Queensland also has had to do without some of its best-known men, but the new members are thought highly of.

The other States have thus done their part nobly to make this Belgian benefit a success, so that it remains for New South Wales to rise to the occasion by making record entries for the open events. It is not too much to expect that every member of a team playing in the badge matches should put in an entry for at least one event. That would mean 400 entries. Even if he cannot play, let him enter, and scratch forthwith. It is known that some intend to take this course. There are numbers of old interstate players in Sydney who might have a try for the veterans' doubles handicap. Many would like to see these giants of the earlier days in action again, and they would derive some pleasure themselves and assist the cause by participating in the meeting. Then there are the schools events. These are expected to fill well, for handicaps are on the programme this time, in addition to championships. All amateurs may compete at the tournament, whether they belong to a club or not, and it may be as well to explain to any visitors from other countries that the times, when they are required to play, are notified each morning, so that they need not be in attendance throughout each day, as is necessary in many European tournaments. It would add considerably to the interest in the meeting if any players of Belgian, French, Japanese, or Russian nationality should be able to participate in the events. Players who intend to enter may do so with the hon. treasurer, Mr. E. S. Kelynack, Challis House, Martin-place, or with the hon. secretary, Mr. I. W. Kerr, care of Abbott, Kerr, and Co., 28 Moore-street, Sydney, before 1 p.m. on Saturday next.

ATHLETICS.

EASTER RACING.

Amateur clubs will soon be busy with winter cross-country and road-running, and already the South Sydney Club has issued its list of open races. The annual three-miles Cup road race has been arranged for July 31, and a fortnight later it is intended to carry out the eighth annual Parramatta-to-Sydney handicap, which is now the longest distance race held in Australia. The 10-miles championship of N.S.W. has been put down for September 4. Sanction has been granted by the A.A.A. Council for these events to be carried out, but the dates are held in abeyance, pending the result of a motion to be tabled at the annual general meeting of the association on April 29. Two years ago, the association decided that the five-miles cross-country championship should be held each year on the last Saturday in August, and it was customary to follow a week later with the ten-miles race, but the proposed resolution seeks to alter the date to July, and until this motion is passed or rejected the dates of other open races cannot be decided. It is doubtful if the new idea will find favour, because it is recognised that the holding of the championships so early will not give the distance runners an opportunity of thoroughly preparing for them, and there is also likely to be a loss of interest in distance races when the championships and teams' races are over; consequently, if the latter be held in July it is quite possible that there will be no competition between that month and October, when the track season commences, as no grounds will be available during the winter months. It has always been considered advisable to close the distance season with the five and ten miles championships, and it is hardly likely that this idea will be departed from. The Sydney Sports Ground rooms have again been secured for winter training, and the leading clubs will make this centre their headquarters each Tuesday and Thursday night, commencing on Tuesday next. Long-distance racing has considerably deteriorated during the past few years, but there appears to be an effort on foot to again popularise this branch, and it is hoped that there will be an improvement this season, for the teams in the last two big distance championships were the most inferior on record, numerically and athletically.

The athletic sports in connection with H.A.S. Tingira have been postponed from April 8 to April 15.

CYCLING.

Aubrey Taylor, Australian and State champion, will take his departure for America on Saturday next, with a view to competing in the big cycling fixtures to be held in conjunction with the Panama Exposition Games at San Francisco in August next, and also at other gatherings to be held in the United States. The Eastern Suburbs crack should show to advantage on the other side of the Pacific, for he is at present in great form, and he has had considerable experience of racing in America, where a couple of years ago he performed with credit. E. A. Priestley, an ex-amateur, and one of this State's leading professional cyclists, intends accompanying Taylor, being prompted by the success achieved by other Australians now in the States. Priestley's displays in Sydney indicate that he should also make his tour a profitable one, and his move is a wise one, for cash racing here has considerably fallen off in favour in recent years, and the inducements held out to riders are not encouraging enough to urge them to remain in Australia whilst there is a boom in other parts of the world.

MOTOR CYCLING.

100 MILES CHAMPIONSHIP.

VICTORIAN'S SUCCESS.

For the second time in succession a Victorian has won the blue ribbon of motor cycling in New South Wales. At the Easter carnival of the Sydney Bicycle and Motor Cycle Club at Goulburn on Monday, J. R. Booth, an "Indian" rider of many laurels, covered three laps of the Yarra-Bredalbane-Collector course—a distance of 100 miles—in the open State championship event in 50m 30s, which placed him well ahead of the 19 other aspirants to the honour. Booth established a record for the course, being exactly 10m 22 4-5s faster than that put up by Harry Jenkins, last year's winner and record-holder. His average speed was 54 miles per hour, which included all stoppages for replenishments. Victorians—J. Dixon and J. A. Gunn (also mounted on 7½-h.p. Indian machines)—filled second and third places respectively, and made the victory even more sweeping for the southern State than was the case last year, when Jenkins, Tyler, and Keith Walker filled three of the first five places.

The annual carnival—which extends from Easter Saturday to Monday and includes a members' handicap, "open" handicap, and 600 cc. State championship, as well as the long distance event—is apparently growing in popularity, there being a large increase in the entries, as well as in the attendance of non-racing clubmen and general public. This year the course had considerably improved, the surface in places being as good as is to be found anywhere in the Commonwealth. In fact, the Victorians were of opinion that the circuit might well be used for the Commonwealth championships. Not one accident marred the meeting. Benson, it is true, came to grief in a barbed wire fence during a practice spin on Friday, but this was due more to a lack of knowledge of the course than any defect in the surface. Of the twenty entrants in the big race six—namely, J. Booth, J. Dixon, J. A. Gunn, H. Seabrook, A. Robinson, E. H. Dodds, and A. W. R. Stevens—completed the course without experiencing any mechanical trouble. D. G. Barrett, and H. A. Parsons, who finished eighth and ninth respectively, are understood to have dismounted for minor adjustments, while T. W. Green, the tenth and last man to complete the course, was delayed by a puncture. Of the men who retired, E. R. Cullen burst a back tyre, S. Hillsden experienced engine trouble, C. F. Bateman (transmission), Hawkins (engine), Gordon (spark plugs), J. Metters (back wheel), R. Williams (engine), H. J. Nesbitt (carburetter fire), K. C. Walker (front spindle.)

The winner of the members' handicap on Saturday, J. A. Fair, who covered the course in 44m 9s, did not eclipse the fine ride put up by R. S. Carlile in last year's event, when, despite several severe spills, he won that race from the three minutes mark in 42m 4s. The open tourist handicap over the same distance (33m) fell again to Jack Booth on a 7-h.p. Indian machine. Riding from scratch, he improved his last year's figures, 43m 1½s, by no less than 6m 31s, his time for the single lap in this race being 36m 42s—or only 3s outside his record for the course, which was established in the third round of the championship on Monday.

The success of the Victorians was due, as was the case last year, in a large measure to the extent of their preparations, and the thorough manner in which the team was organised and equipped. Whether this system of entering the lists and literally taking the event by storm is likely to have a derogatory effect on future contests is a matter which must seriously engage the attention of the promoting committee before long. There is no doubt in the present instance that the entire mechanical resources of a large concern were at the back of the Victorians. This in itself placed them at a distinct advantage over those competitors who were dependent on their own skill and spare time for the adjustment and tuning up of their mounts. The Victorians, of course, did not infringe the rules, but the fact that no corporation on this side of the border took sufficient interest in the event to organise and "coach" a team rendered the contest a little one-sided, to the discouragement, perhaps, of a certain class of rider, which may be said to belong to the "buying" section of the motor cycling community. The view taken by the motor cycle distributer is very plain, and without the stimulating influence of the trade, it must be admitted that speed contests and carnivals of any moment would soon disappear. The matter, therefore, certainly as far as out and out speed contests are concerned, really rests with the trade; and if one interested party sets a very high standard, and either by excellence of organisation or merit of goods, for the time being sweeps the pool, it is entitled to its success. In the present circumstances, the speed enthusiasts of this State cannot but look to some agent of equal standing to take up the gauntlet and give the New South Welshmen an opportunity of contesting the championship events on an equal footing with their Victorian opponents.

SWIMMING.

CLOSE OF THE SEASON.

Next Saturday will close the season so far as the activity of swimming and surf clubs are concerned. Kiama Surf Club will hold its annual carnival at the local beach, and a number of city swimmers will participate in the events. East Sydney will decide two events at Rushcutter Bay, and Sydney will hold a members' carnival, including 440 yards championship, 75 yards handicap, 50 yards consolation event, and presentation of prizes at the Domain Baths. Several members of the club, however, intend to continue their swimming throughout the winter. The final match of the first grade polo competition between Bondi and Sydney will also take place at the Domain on Saturday. If Sydney win or play a tie it will gather the honours, but if Bondi win another match will be necessary to decide the premiership.

The league clubs have closed down for the year, as the majority of them have already decided their championships and consolation races. The most successful carnival of the year among the professionals was that decided at Newcastle last week, when a large city contingent, including Messrs. Wickham, Read, and Pryor, and Misses Hooper and Tate formed the chief attraction. The northern city has had its share of big swimming this season, as no fewer than four Australian records were established in the Ocean Baths; while the best performers of both sexes have appeared before large local audiences. The league season has been a rather quiet one. The Randwick and Coogee and the Leichhardt clubs have been very active, but the other affiliated bodies have not been so conspicuous as in former years, while the league itself did not hold its usual big carnival, and the annual tour of the champions to South Australia did not take place. While the record year of the association overshadowed the doings of the organisation to a large extent, yet the season just concluded has not been as good as past years promised. The advent of a sterling performer in Rollison and the maintenance of his best form by Dickman should have added interest to the season's championships. Negotiations for matches between the Victorian ex-amateur Beaurepaire and the New South Wales cracks, however, failed, and this fact lost a big attraction for the sport among the league followers.

The Ladies' Association will carry on its season until the last Saturday of the present month, when a patriotic carnival will be held at Manly. Some interesting competitions are being arranged, including teams' relay races. Some of the clubs have yet to conclude their seasons.

MISS DURACK FOR AMERICA.

Miss Fanny Durack, the Australian lady swimming champion, received an official invitation yesterday from the Panama Pacific International Exposition swimming committee to compete in the swimming events to be held during July as part of the athletic programme of the World's Fair. This is conveyed in a letter from W. M. Coffman, secretary to the committee, who states that the events will be open to the amateur women swimmers of the world, and Miss Durack will be the guest of the exposition during the trip. Spoken to yesterday, the champion stated that she was willing to make the trip provided the controlling bodies of the sport in Australia and America sanctioned the tour. She would be prepared to leave Sydney during May.

LAW REPORT.

COURT OF MARINE INQUIRY.

(Before Judge Backhouse and Captains J. J. Allen and J. Simpson, assessors.)

UNFIT FOR SEA.

THE LOSS OF THE HORNET.

Mr. Robison, of the Crown Solicitor's Office, appeared for the Superintendent of Navigation. Thomas William Carter Rose, owner of the lighter, appeared in person. This was an inquiry into the circumstances attending the foundering of the steam lighter Hornet. It appeared that the vessel left Manly Gas Works at 3.15 p.m. on March 19, bound for Botany, having on board 200 bags of coke. There was a light north-east wind, with a choppy sea, and a bit of a roll. After proceeding two or three miles down the coast, the lighter began to make water, and was headed back for Sydney. The crew threw a lot of the coke overboard; but the vessel continued to make water so quickly that the fires were put out, stopping the engine. The Hornet then took a list to starboard. The signal-master at South Head, noticing the state of affairs, sent word to the master of the pilot steamer Captain Cook, which went to the Hornet's assistance, but before she could get alongside the lighter foundered. Two of the crew were saved, but the third, a man named Tait, was drowned. Rose, in his evidence, said that he had not got a sea going certificate for the lighter, but Tait, who was master, had a foreign going American certificate. Witness also said that he received a certificate or ticket from the military authorities, allowing him to pass through the Heads, and he considered the document sufficient authority to permit him to proceed on his voyage to Botany. He stated further that he had a harbour and river master's certificate, and also that of a third-class engineer. There was an eight-foot dinghy on deck, near the winch.

The signal-master at South Head gave evidence that while he had the Hornet under observation he saw no signs of a dinghy on board, and the master of the Captain Cook also gave evidence to a similar effect. His Honor said that the trouble seemed to have arisen from divided authority. The vessel was clearly unfit to go to sea, and when she got into a seaway she opened up and foundered. With regard to the evidence as to the person who was in charge of the vessel, it appeared that he was unfortunately drowned, and it would have been his certificate, if any, that the Court would have had to deal with. He did not wish to minimise the wrong there was in sending such a vessel to sea, but he doubted whether, on the evidence of the owner of the Hornet—that he thought he was entitled by the ticket given to him by the military authorities to proceed on the voyage—the Court could do anything. Quite apart from technicalities, he did not think the Court on the evidence could in any event deal with any certificate. It, however, expressed its regret that a member of the crew was drowned.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Rogers.)

Mr. C. A. White, Crown Prosecutor.

SENTENCES.

William John M'Mullen, for (1) stealing a quantity of clothing at Sydney on the 4th ult., the property of Harold John Berryman, (2) stealing in the dwelling-house of Jane W[illegible] on the 5th ult., at Sydney, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment, with hard labour, in Goulburn Gaol on each charge. The sentences to be concurrent.

Joseph Dunn, for assaulting Charles Hewitt, [illegible] at Sydney on the 19th ult., and robbing him of 1s 9d, was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, with hard labour, in Goulburn Gaol. Prisoner stated that his offence was "a sort of drunken freak." His Honor said that it was a strange freak for [illegible] to take money from a man's pocket.

James Croxan, for maliciously injuring a plate-glass window, the property of Michael Andrew Leary, on February 26, at Sydney, was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment in Goulburn Gaol.

[illegible] M'Lusky, for breaking and entering the shop of William Greenaway, at Waverley, on the 8th ult., and stealing therefrom a quantity of carpenter's tools, was sentenced to [illegible] months' imprisonment in Goulburn Gaol. M'Lusky stated that the offence was committed whilst he was under the influence of drink. His Honor said that drink was neither palliation nor excuse for crime.

[illegible] Cleary, for stealing goods and £3 in money from the dwelling-house of Mary [illegible], on March 2, at Sydney, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment in Bathurst Gaol.

BOUND OVER.

Radford Francis Barnes, 21, pleaded guilty to a charge of maliciously injuring a plate-glass window, the property of Angelo De Luca, at Sydney, on March 6. He was bound over in his own recognisances in £50 to come up for sentence within two years if called upon.

ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCE.

[illegible] Fennell pleaded not guilty to a charge that he did, on March 7, falsely pretend to Daniel Sylvester O'Sullivan that he was a duly qualified medical practitioner, by means of which false pretence the accused did obtain from O'Sullivan the sum of 11s, with intent to defraud him. On the application of the Crown Prosecutor (Mr. C. A. White) the hearing of the case was postponed, as the Crown was not now prepared to go on.

THREE ROBBERIES.

Joseph Lewis Levy, 18, for (1) breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Herbert O'Neill on the [illegible] ult., at Mandolong, and stealing a quantity of articles and 11s, the property of [illegible] O'Neill, (2) breaking and entering the dwelling-house of James O'Leary, at Mandolong, on March 16, and stealing a quantity of [illegible] under the name of Joseph Levy, (3) breaking and entering the dwelling-house of William Parsons, at Turramurra, on February [illegible], and stealing a gun, etc., was sentenced to six months' imprisonment on the first and second charges (sentences to be concurrent), and to three months' imprisonment on the third charge, the period to be cumulative.

"DRINK, ALWAYS DRINK."

John Hartman, 21, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a horse, the property of Alfred Frederick Fish, on February 25, 1915, at Sydney. He was further charged with stealing a cart and set of harness, also the property of Fish. Hartman, who pleaded drink in extenuation, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in Bathurst Gaol. His Honor said it was a grievous thing to hear this excuse time after time. It was drink, drink, always drink. It would be a great thing if some law could be brought in that would cope with the drink trouble.

CHAPTER XVII.—Continued.

They sat down on a cushioned window-seat, side by side. Bess then told Anne briefly the circumstances of the night, what she had discovered, her errand to the Manor, and the hurried departure of Sir Giles and herself subsequently.

"Why did my brother not arouse me?" Anne interrupted; "we have been through so much together, and I should have liked to bid him God speed."

"I quite understand," Bess responded gently. "I think he was loath to awake you, but I think now it would have been better to have done so; there was so much to fill his thoughts, and speed was so important that I think Sir Giles did not realise how much you would prefer to know of it all—and I was thoughtless, too; forgive me. I was not myself, the sight of Juan Garcia and Captain Jose plotting together, and the necessity for me to be the bearer of the news swept away all my natural thought. I seemed like one in a maze, just doing what was necessary without a will of my own"—she lowered her head—"I felt somehow as if a Higher Power was directing me, giving me strength."

Anne pressed her friend's hand: "I quite understand now; forgive me, for saying what I did. I think you were so brave. Did you ride through the Chine? It must be so terribly dark at night; it strikes me cold even by day."

"No, I came by the high road; going back your brother preferred to ride through the Chine, knowing it so well, because it was the nearer route. We paid for it, however, nearly with our lives; Garcia was hidden in the undergrowth. He fired a pistol at us, which I had noticed to be missing when I turned his horse loose in the approach to Lodman's Bay. Then when our horses ran away he flung his dagger, and must have nearly struck either Sir Giles or his horse."

Anne removed her grasp, and clasped her hands; she said nothing, but a quiver passed through her, a shudder which Bess could feel vibrating by her side.

After a long pause Anne said: "These are terrible times; God keep us all, and bring us safely through them to peace and quietness again." Then she went on: "Now I must tell you what I saw just as the dawn came to the sky this morning."

Bess was the listener, while Anne related not only what she saw, but what she felt, when she noticed the creeping figure of Juan Garcia, with the finger of light upon him, on the open face of the moorland.

"No wonder," Bess said, "Lieutenant Belor only found the dagger, when he searched the Chine; I wonder what Sheriff Goring's band has accomplished?"

It was not until everything connected with the affair had been discussed that Bess mentioned the finding of the dagger, and the fact that she had brought it with her. In truth, she had forgotten for the moment the incident in the larger issues involved, and the weapon had gone with Swallow to the stable.

Bess was surprised to see the effect the mention of the dagger produced on Anne. She turned pale, her lips quivered, she had a difficulty in enunciating her words.

"The dagger," she exclaimed, "what is it like?"

"Long, thin, and very sharp. The blade had some scroll-work running down it—Eastern characters, I fancy, but if you like, we can go to the stable, and you can then see it. Why are you so disturbed about it, Anne dear?"

Anne rose, and paced the room from end to end without answering, Bess watching her with surprise. To Bess it meant but little except that the weapon had been flung at Sir Giles, and having missed its aim failed to accomplish the object intended.

To Anne it brought back in vivid memory the scene in Queen Elizabeth's Court—the passage from the reception-room to the council-chamber; the sudden appearance of Juan Garcia from behind the tapestry covering the wall; the strenuous fight between Captain Christopher Stone and the would-be assassin. In Garcia's hand was the thin, tapering blade which he had intended to plunge into the heart of the Queen. That dagger Stone had wrested from his hand. She knew it had been kept at Whitehall by the express order of the Lord Treasurer. Weeks afterwards, on board ship, Christopher Stone described the dagger to her, a beautiful weapon, with Moorish characters running scroll-wise down the tempered blade. In the old days, when Anne was little more than a child, she had seen the two daggers hanging side by side in the hall-place of Stone Hall, among other weapons of war and chase which ornamented the walls. She had been told that a history attached to them. They had been won in single combat with other trappings and effects by an ancestor of Juan Garcia from a Moorish Knight.

The Garcias attached a sentimental value to them. One was lost irretrievably unless Whitehall fell to the invading force when the Armada had reached its destination. The other, for aught Juan knew, lay in the undergrowth of Dunloe Chine. He would assuredly come back to look for it. That was his nature. No personal risk would deflect him from his purpose.

At length Anne went and stood in front of Bess Carew.

"I know that dagger," she said. "I remember it almost from childhood. There were two alike; one was intended for the Queen; it is now at Whitehall. The other, which is just like it, is now attached to your saddle. The Garcias have always regarded those weapons among their most cherished possessions. Juan will assuredly return to seek for it after nightfall."

"I think that is a mistake, Anne. By this time he is probably miles on his road back from whence he came."

"Nevertheless, he will return," Anne cried with assured conviction. Then she added, wringing her hands: "I cannot bear to have that dagger here. . . . I am afraid for those I love."

The last words were dropped out one by one.

Bess understood with a perception which would have been denied to her had it not been for the touch of Sir Giles Treluce, as he held her in his arms, as his lips rested on her forehead and hair.

For love opens the door of secret chambers. It is the key of all mysteries—our own, and those of others like ourselves.

"I will take it back with me," Bess replied quietly. "The Court is well guarded by night, as well as by day—for the sake of the Beacon. You, too, ought to see that you have men ready to defend the manor, if need be, at all hours—while your brother is absent."

An hour later Bess, taking the longer cliff-road, turned homewards; the dagger still at her saddle-bow. Suddenly she pulled up Swallow. Far out in the mist, which covered the sea like a pall, she heard the dull booming of guns. It was her turn to shiver.

The wind was bringing its message—and her heart seemed to stop beating.

Silence supervened, broken only by the shrill cries of the gulls and dull roar of the surf far below.

Bess moved on slowly, until Swallow reached the point where Sir Giles had bidden farewell to her mistress. Ennys Cove was empty.

Again the wind brought its fell message—the distant firing of great guns.

Bess bent forward, striving to pierce the intervening space with her glance; but although inland the sky was fairly clear, with even intermittent sunshine, a wet mist was over the sea.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A DEVON MAN.

Where would England have been in the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth, above all, in that annus mirabilis 1588, without its men of Devon? The world rings to-day with the exploits of Drake, Hawkins, and Frobisher, the two former Devon born, the last Devon bred; but these noteworthy commanders were by no means alone; there were others, in the second rank, who contributed not a little to the details of the daring story, who wrote their mark on all parts of the world, braving unknown seas and tempestuous winter winds in days of comparative peace, and when war threatened, when Philip launched that great Armada, which had been the dream of years, these men drew round their leaders, in whom they trusted, the storm-beaten shores they loved, fearing not in the least the galleons of the Spaniard, believing that English ships and English hearts were the material from which victory would shape itself, let whosoever attack.

Among these brave hearts was included Christopher Stone, bred in the estuary of the Exe, Topsham born; seaman first of all, then soldier, after the fashion of the age, under Essex in the Low Countries; selected by Elizabeth herself for his fine stature and gallant bearing to be her Captain of the Guards; now dispatched on a twofold errand by the Queen; by Burleigh, Lord Treasurer; by Howard of Effingham, Admiral of the Fleet, to organise the coast defence of Cornwall, and incidentally to wait for that arch-pirate of the Channel, Captain Ugo Jose.

On that eventful night, when Juan Garcia took the cliff road to Lodman Bay, and by that choice brought about the chain of circumstances which followed upon it, Stone paced the deck of the Flower of Cornwall. Watch and ward were kept continually on board the ship—once a merchantman, now armed to the teeth, ready to take her place in the front-rank of the naval firing line. The cannon on her deck had been supplemented by larger pieces, which peeped through port-holes cut on purpose at bow and stern, where, after the fashion of the day, the height of the bulwarks was greater than at the waist. Lookouts were stationed in the maintops, while throughout the night Christopher Stone, or Thomas Ware, the veteran sailing master, kept watch on deck.

The Flower of Cornwall, with its three pole masts, and two round tops on the main and one on the mizzen, was in continual readiness for departure when the call came. It was so placed by the mouth of the beautiful bay that the tide would serve, except when at the very lowest; this was not the case with the Defiance, nearer the shore, but there was not room in the small harbourage for the two vessels to lie equally near the mouth. The Flower of Cornwall being the larger, and more important ship, had the precedence of position.

RED CROSS CARNIVAL.

Mr. James J. Corbett, the famous American boxer and monologue entertainer, will appear at the Red Cross Carnival at the Stadium next Tuesday night. In addition, there is a strong programme of theatrical items, which will be provided by artists from the J. C. Williamson, Ltd., theatres, the National Amphitheatre, and other places of amusement. Pantomimic dancing, vaudeville turns, acrobatic acts, Highland and Irish dancing, sparring by leading boxers, humorous bouts, boys' boxing, military displays, including sword, bayonet, cutlass, and single stick exercises, and machine gun drill, Japanese wrestling, competitions for girls, and a competitive event for artists are to be included in the performance.

Mrs. Holman has consented to draw the art union organised by the Vaucluse branch of the Red Cross Society, in full view of the audience. There are twelve prizes, the first being a ninety-guinea piano.

The Governor has granted his patronage to the carnival, and has intimated his intention of being present.

Tickets are on sale at Paling's, Nicholson's, the Hotel Australia, and the Hotel Metropole.

MUSICAL COMPETITIONS.

The annual musical and elocutionary competitions for Roman Catholic schools have been completed. The prizes were presented by Archbishop Kelly in the hall adjoining St. Mary's Cathedral on Monday. The Archbishop expressed his appreciation of music, and said it was one of the great delights of his life. He also said he would like to see the study of the Irish language taken up, because now that Ireland was going to have Home Rule the children would commence to speak Irish again. He then distributed the prizes. The schools championship in vocal music was won by Newtown, with 176 points, from Albion-street 144, and St. Mary's Boys 139. Parramatta High School won in instrumental music, with 189 points, from Newtown 162 and Golden Grove 144. In elocution Newtown again won, securing 128 points. Parramatta (110) was second, and Ashfield and Manly divided third place, with 107 points each.

HAIR COMING OUT in Patches?

"I think KOKO is marvellous; my hair was coming out in such quantities as to leave bald patches. Through constantly using KOKO, I have now a thick growth of hair."

"My little girl's hair fell out in patches. I tried many hair tonics, but only with KOKO has her hair started to grow thick again."

"I was losing so much hair that I was afraid to brush it. KOKO has made a marked difference in the condition of my hair. It is a beautiful hair tonic."

"I had a bald patch once, but KOKO covered it with hair in no time. I can also recommend KOKO for dandriff."

"KOKO is wonderful. A friend had a bald patch on his head, but through using KOKO, the hair is growing quite thickly again."

"My hair fell out till there was a bare patch as large as my hand. KOKO has made hair grow splendidly; it is quite thick where the bald patch was."

"KOKO is just perfect, nothing like it for bald patches. My hair came out in lumps till I was nearly bald, but now my hair is quite thick through using KOKO."

(EXTRACTED FROM VOLUNTARY STATEMENTS.)

The marked improvement in the hair when KOKO is used, combined with its entire freedom from all Oil, Grease, and Odor, makes a strong appeal to those who have no wish to know why their hair falls, and who do not wish to have needless trouble in the taking care of it. Enough for them to know that other cases, some worse than theirs, have responded to the regular use of KOKO, which is so clean and refreshing as to be delightful to use, and is yet able to restore the hair to its normal healthy condition, when less agreeable hair tonics fail. Without this extraordinary efficiency and perfect cleaness, KOKO would still be sought for its power to make straight hair fluff out in pretty waves; to restore to dull, dead-looking hair the glossy brightness it used to have; and to master unruly hair so that it may be dressed in any desired style.

If the hair is to retain its silk-like softness, its waviness, and lustre, PI-NO SHAMPOO POWDERS should be used for washing the hair.

The KOKO BRUSH should be used to stimulate the hair.

We mention the KOKO HAIR BRUSH because it is the best bristled brush we have ever seen for the price, 6/ post free.

We advise the use of PI-NO SHAMPOO POWDERS because they make a copious Creamy Lather that thoroughly cleanses the scalp from every atom of dust and dandriff, rinses out quickly, leaving the hair in a condition to dry light and soft and easy to arrange; while the cost is no more than common shampoo powders, 3d packet (enough for two shampoos) at all chemists. ROYAL SHOW.

WET WEATHER RULES.

A QUIET DAY.

As it rained steadily the whole of yesterday, needless to say the attendance at the Royal Show was small. The ring was almost a quagmire, and consequently several events had to be postponed. Several ring events were carried out, despite the unpropitious conditions, and, considering the state of the ground, the jumping was very good. In the high jump two horses cleared 6ft 6in, which was a fine performance, all things considered. They failed at 6ft 9in and divided first prize. There were no accidents. The water jump was also held, and provided some amusement—there was plenty of water.

THE RING.

Owing to the funeral of Sir Francis Suttor, the ring events were delayed, and the first jumping contest did not commence until 12.30. Several events were postponed, amongst them being the Silver Belt Equestrienne Side-saddle Contest; and the elimination of this event caused considerable disappointment.

The weather was against the best results in the jumping contests, but when the soft and slippery state of the ground is taken into consideration, some of the performances were excellent, and the proceedings were free from accident. In addition to the pleasure that the spectators derived from the high jumping, they were afforded amusement from the harmless fall that the aboriginal rider, George M'Kay, received after his mount, Bandolier, failed to clear the bar in the "John See and Co." contest. The rider was well forward out of the saddle when landing, and could not get back before the horse "propped," and gently placed him in a pool of water. The same horseman had an exciting experience when riding Demos in the water jump. He had safely got over one obstacle, when the horse took charge, and bolted round the ring. This caused much merriment, as the water and mud splashed in all directions; but the climax came when the excited animal made for the enclosure where the competing horses await their turns. M'Kay, with wonderful coolness, kept his seat, and the horse crashed sideways into a bench, around which a number of persons were standing within the enclosure. M'Kay jumped from the horse on to the table with the agility of a circus rider, and the horse went underneath it. Neither received a scratch, and when it became known that the rider was unhurt the spectators cheered him heartily.

The bar was topped in the "John See and Co." high jump at 6ft 6in by Emu Plains and Sunbeam; but when it was raised 3in neither horse could clear it. The ground was against them, and the owners decided to divide the first and second honours.

The water jump contest provided some exciting moments, and the performance of Thumbs Up, the winner, was wonderfully good, and Pilot, who ran him very close, was loudly cheered.

The bad "take-off" caused disappointment in the 14.2 jumping event. The ponies did not appreciate the mud; and would not perform up to expectations and previous accomplishment. The winner was Squib, who cleared 5ft 6in, and Thumbs Up at the second try also got over, and secured the second prize.

Sir Gerald Strickland's special prize for gelding or mare in single harness, over 14.2, but not over 16 hands, was carried off by Mr. W. J. Johnson's chestnut gelding Royal Statesman, and the same animal was awarded champion honours.

STOCK SALES.

FAIR DEMAND FOR CLYDESDALES.

The show sales of stock were resumed yesterday, when Messrs. Wm. Inglis and Son offered a large number of Clydesdales and a few shire stallions. The heavy rain interfered with the attendance, and, although well-bred Clydesdales of good quality were sold at full rates, bidding dragged a good deal when medium quality sorts were offered. Native Chief, a New Zealand importation, by Lawrence Chief, was sold to a Richmond River buyer for 290 guineas, and Ronald's Lad realised 250 guineas when offered on behalf of Messrs. Mitchell and O'Brien, the New Zealand breeders. During the day Messrs. Inglis and Son sold two ostriches on behalf of Mr. R. D. Wallace, of Ravensworth, and the proceeds, amounting to about £40, were presented by him to the Belgian Fund. Sales were as follow:—

TROPICAL FRUITS.

A PROFITABLE INDUSTRY.

A splendid lot of pineapples and bananas, grown on the Grafton and Wollongbar Experimental Farms, were a feature of this year's departmental exhibit at the Royal Show, and these and other samples shown in the North Coast district, demonstrate the fact that there is no need to go abroad for this class of fruit. According to Mr. Bryant, fruit inspector, the growing of tropical fruits is largely on the increase, and the industry seems to be developing along the right lines. Recently the banana growers in the north formed themselves into an association, and arrangements have been made for the Coastal Farmers' Co-operative Company to handle their fruit. It has been fairly common knowledge that in the past a great deal of tropical fruit sold in the Sydney markets has been grown on the Northern Rivers.

There are considerable areas of land in that district practically worthless from an agricultural or dairying point of view, which could be utilised to the best advantage for growing pineapples. Much of this land is very stoney with volcanic soils, and on the higher slopes the aspects are good and the land well sheltered. Both pineapples and bananas enjoy comparative freedom from the many pests which affect other fruits, and it is certain that in a few years they will be grown in great numbers in the northern parts of New South Wales. Many thousands of pounds are expended in this State each year on fruit produced in Fiji, and if growers will adopt proper methods, and go in for good grading and packing, there is no reason why much of this money should not be distributed amongst local farmers. Not only is there a good market for tropical fruits in Sydney, but further south—in Tasmania, Victoria, and New Zealand, where they cannot be successfully produced—there is also a keen demand that will, it is hoped, eventually be supplied from New South Wales.

WOOD-CHOPPING AND SAWING CONTESTS.

Yesterday, owing to the heavy rain, the wood chopping and sawing contests were postponed till to-day, at 2.30 p.m. In the event of rain the "chop" and sawing contests will take place in the vehicle pavilion.

THE ATTENDANCE.

The gates returned £127, against £1145 last year, and the attendance numbered 6000, against 28,000 last year.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," Herald Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Sea Gull.—Purchase a tin of insect powder, take each bird by the legs, allowing the head and body to hang down. Give a thorough dusting with the powder, see that it reaches the skin on all parts of the body. Spread a newspaper or cloth on the ground to catch the powder. This can be used a second time. Repeat the dusting in a day or two.

Armidale.—The fact of a few white feathers appearing in the flights of your black Orpington chickens is no sign of a cross with a white fowl. They will moult out and black ones take their place.

Willow.—If the shade is required for the poultry fence, the creeper dolichos being a quick grower will suit. Pepper trees make an excellent shade tree, but if a quick grower is desired the common castor oil can be recommended. It is sometimes said that the seeds of the latter are injurious to poultry. Such is not the case. There are daily instances of the fowls eating the seeds, and they are evidently fond of them.

While the Easter price for new-laid eggs was as high as 2s per dozen, this is but a seasonable price, and within a penny per dozen for the corresponding period of last year. The late untoward weather has, however, affected production, and a consequent increase in price may be expected.

In some quarters it has been mooted that owing to the excessive clearance of hens from many farms, and reduced supplies, eggs will go up to 3s per dozen wholesale. Such need not be expected. For several seasons past half-a-crown had been obtained in April for choice lots, which means threepence per egg to the consumer, but no matter how scarce consumers will not give more than the usual April 3d an egg, which, to the poultry farmer means the good price of 2s 6d per dozen.

While there can be no complaint as to the current and late ruling rates for eggs, the price for most classes of poultry has been disappointing in the extreme. Indian Runner ducks were obtainable in quantities at 2s per couple, the same figure obtaining for Leghorn hens. These, however, were of poor quality, but all grades, except the few available choice cockerels, have been at almost ruinous prices. As the bulk of the great numbers disposed of were non-producers, the owners adopted a wise policy in parting with them. With the advent of lower food prices, many farms are in readiness to commence operations again, and certainly with more profitable stock than those disposed of.

The results of the Hawkesbury College thirteenth annual egg-laying competition, which terminated on Wednesday evening last, were satisfactory in all the sections. The winners in the first year hens were given in last Wednesday's "Herald," further particulars now being available. The laying of the whole flock of first year hens averaged 181 eggs per hen, a number which was equalled at the same place six years ago, and exceeded at the tenth competition, when 184 per hen was recorded. The present year, however, one pronounced record has been made, the winning pen having averaged 257 eggs per hen. These six birds were in individual pens, each one's eggs being separately recorded, with the result that one hen has put up a world's record of 288 eggs to her credit, 267, 270, 250, 234, and 212 being the scores for the other five birds. The eggs weighed 25½ ounces to the dozen. The breed is Leghorn, and owned by Mr. S. Champion, of Woonona. The second winners were Black Orpingtons, with the fine score of 238 eggs per hen. This number has only been exceeded at the college on three previous occasions. Mr. L. L. Ramsay is the owner. The highest individual score in the heavy breeds was by a Langshan, 252, from the Standard Poultry Farm. W. Newall, Fairfield Farm; Mrs. Gresson, H. Hammill, F. J. Brierley, Mrs. Joblins, L. K. Pettit, B. Clarke, and D. Kenway were the other winners, the figures being from 212 to 230 per hen.

Although the record for the first-year hens has been previously exceeded, those competing for the second year have done better than in any previous test in this section, and averaged 158 per hen against 145, the previous best figures. One pen (J. Lowe) did the unusual thing of laying more eggs in the second year than in the first. Messrs. Nicholson, Hyndman, and White secured the prize money for the greatest number of eggs laid in the two years. Messrs. Lowe, Hyndman, Glen Farm, Nicholson, and Duffield's hens laid the most eggs in the second year, in the order named, and secured the prize money.

The response in entries to the poultry section at the Royal Show much exceeded expectations, and was due largely to a boom in the new varieties of fowls, together with support from Victoria to the extent over 100 entries. Mrs. Rohlk, a now regular Victorian visitor to the show, repeated her successes of previous years in White Orpingtons, by appropriating three of the four firsts, and a number of prizes in Wyandottes and breeding pens. Mr. Woodward won all the prizes in the speckled Sussex classes, and had several wins in other breeds, including waterfowl. The other Victorian visitors' names appear in the prize list. Queensland, which hitherto patronised the poultry section largely of the Royal, was represented at the present show by Dr. M'Donald only, who was most successful in Wyandottes.

THE NEW BREEDS.

Two years ago in this column it was mentioned that Rhode Island Reds were a good breed, both for eggs and table purposes, and should they get into the hands of a few good fanciers would be here to stay. This evidently has taken place, since 65 entries are found in four classes. Mr. Dalrymple secured the four firsts, other prominent importers and exhibitors being Misses Rouse and Sands, who made a great show of 15 exhibits in the pullet class, and while not securing a premier award were amongst the other prizes. The breed was well judged by Mr. Godley. Sussex fowls have only appeared in the Sydney show pen for two or three years, and at the present exhibition are represented by over 50 exhibits. The breed is noted for its excellent table qualities, the winners in the respective classes being long in body, broad in back, with a long breastbone, on which there is space for plenty of meat. A Victorian exhibitor shared the awards with others from this State.

Buttercups were mentioned in this column 12 months ago as a breed well boomed in America, and having also a fair share of patronage in England. The fancy name has something to do with the patronage accorded it, and is responsible for big orders and much money going to America for show specimens. The present was the first year for them at the Royal, and over 40 pens appeared—a record for a first year. There was much disappointment over the appearance of the breed, the colour being that of badly-marked gold-pencilled Hamburgs. The chief point is the cup-shaped comb. Misses Rouse and Sands secured all the prizes, a second excepted, and disposed of quite a number of specimens. The reputed merit of the Buttercups is their laying properties, but until this is proved at some of the egg-laying competitions the order of popularity of the three breeds may be Rhode Island Reds, Sussex, and Buttercups.

SALE OF THOROUGHBRED YEARLINGS.

COLT BY MOUNTAIN KING—LADY MOSTYN FETCHES 1300 GNS.

BROTHER TO HAYSTON, 1100 GNS.

The annual sales of thoroughbred yearlings were opened at 10 a.m. yesterday by Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co., at their Randwick stables. Owing to the inclement weather it was necessary to conduct the sale under cover, but the rotunda was not spacious enough to accommodate the assemblage; consequently business was conducted under cramped conditions. The wet weather doubtless helped to damp the ardour of buyers, and low prices ruled, despite the eloquence of the auctioneer, Mr. K. T. Austin. The various States and New Zealand were well represented at the ringside.

The principal buyers, as usual, hailed from Victoria, but Queenslanders were very busy for moderate-priced lots. Though no high-priced youngsters were bought for New Zealand, at least two prominent owners from that country were in the field for choice yearlings, but failed to outstay the Victorian sportsman, who races as "Mr. S. A. Rawdon."

A start was made with a yearling bred by Mrs. Whitney, which was passed; then came Mr. John Hart's Cesarions, bred at Larbert; a colt by that horse from Buddah fetching 600 guineas, the bid of Mr. E. J. Craven, of Queensland, and Mr. Munro gave 300 guineas for a filly from Lilymea. The next lot in was a nice colt by Linacre from a sister to Malt Queen, bred by Mr. E. P. Morris, and which fell to F. Foulsham, acting for Mr. L. K. S. Mackinnon, for 160 guineas. These early sales created hope in the breasts of other breeders, but it was short lived, for the Merton yearlings, which usually sell well, went badly. They were topped by a beautiful colt, by Flavus from Alcconner's sister, Malmaison, for whom F. Musgrave gave 400 guineas; but the balance went at low prices. From this point the sale dragged till a filly by Kenilworth from that good performer, Epois, was reached, and, though she fetched 220 guineas from Mr. H. Lucerne, she looked cheap. Mr. J. E. O'Brien got 180 guineas for a nice colt by Murillo from his Simmer mare Sucre. Then came the first of the New Zealanders—those bred by Mr. J. F. Reid—and several were passed in, but Mr. Norman Falkiner got good value at 180 guineas for a filly, by imported Rokeby from Britomarte; and Mr. A. Hall, of New Zealand, secured a nice filly by the same horse from Belle Clair for 180 guineas. The sale of Mr. A. Hooke's five youngsters was disappointing, though they looked well, and were bred the right way; and there was indifferent demand for the 12 Poseidons sent in by Mr. H. R. Denison, from Eumaralla; but he received 255 guineas for a filly by Earlston from Bobaline, by Bobadil. The first of Mr. Ian Duncan's Waikanae (N.Z.) stud youngsters, a colt by Benzonian from Mallaig, was passed out, but subsequently was sold to Mr. Cubbold, of Queensland, for 300 guineas, and Mr. A. B. Nagel, also of Queensland, would not be denied for a magnificent chestnut colt by Achilles from Stephin, but he had to go to 615 guineas to get him. Mr. W. H. Mate's yearlings, by Ibex, sold badly, though many of them had much to recommend them. Mr. J. H. Bettington's three Marlboroughs were generally admired, and one, a colt from Rubber Core, fetched 200 guineas; but the next was passed, and the third sold at a low figure.

Mr. J. H. Britten's Mousquetons were a shapely, racing-like lot, and one—a lovely colt from Linnet, by Beauchamp, fetched 420 guineas, the bid of Mr. H. Lucerne, of Morpeth; but a brother to Dakai went wofully cheap at 105 guineas to Mr. P. Bolger, of Western Australia, and two nice colts from Diota and Saffron, respectively, were passed. There was indifferent demand for Sir George M'Lean's yearling, and, despite the promise of the Parsees, a nice lot from Plashett hung fire. Only fair prices were forthcoming for the Varcos bred by Messrs. Rouse, at Biraganbil, and Mr. W. F. M'Donald's Wambo yearlings went coldly, though they were the best lot he has yet presented. He withdrew a beautiful chestnut colt by Varco from Cousin Mary when bidding ceased at 200 guineas.

The rain ceased when the Wambo draft was half-way through, and a move was made out into the open. The rain, however, again set in, but the audience stood its ground, and seemed satisfied with the change, which also inaugurated a change in the prices, for a few minutes afterwards two sensational sales were made. The revival began with the advent of Mr. John M'Donald's Mungie Bundie draft, which opened with a filly by Earlston from Lest We Forget, whom Mr. Mark Thompson secured at 475 guineas. Later, Mr. Norman Falkiner gave 800 guineas for the Mountain King—Poi Dance colt; then came the pride of the stud, a big chestnut colt, by Mountain King from Lady Mostyn, who opened at 300, and, after a battle royal between a representative of Mr. G. D. Greenwood, of New Zealand, M. Ryan, of Queensland, and Mr. "S. A. Rawdon," the colt fell to the lastnamed for 1300 guineas, the top price of the day, and was only approached by that given for a lovely brother to Hayston bred at Arrowfield by Messrs. W. and F. Moses who went to the same buyer for 1100 guineas. When a dozen of the Arrowfield draft were sold the rain fell in torrents, and the balance of Messrs. Chisholm's catalogue was postponed till 10 o'clock this morning.

The lots sold totalled 117, for 17,160 guineas, an average of nearly 147 guineas.

The sales effected are subjoined:—

THE KENNEL.

(BY W.C.J.)

Mr. Albert L. Doyle, who died recently at North Sydney from appendicitis, was a dog fancier of long standing. He was always a fox-terrier man, though he bred a few good Australian terriers. About 10 years ago he had charge of the Camira fox-terrier kennels, and when they were dispersed, he looked after the Duncraggan terriers, from which many winners were returned. He was a capable judge of the breed, and always brought his charges into the ring in the best of condition. Mr. Doyle was connected with an old Australian family, and related to the Wentworths, of Vaucluse.

ROYAL SHOW.

The new idea of dividing the dogs into two sections worked better than was expected. Half of them were judged and shown from Thursday to Saturday, and the balance were judged on Easter Monday, and remained till Wednesday. The visiting public practically had two shows instead of one. Fortunately no rain fell when the dogs were being judged. The awards in both sections were made before the luncheon hour, and the prize cards were posted early.

The dogs were comfortably benched with either straw or sawdust bedding. Many of them were better fed and better looked after than they would have been in their own kennels. Mr. J. M'Kee had charge of the dogs on their benches, and he also assisted in maintaining a quick ring service.

Eight judges made the awards in the various sections, and every one of them had long experience in the business.

Very little grumbling was heard at the judges' decisions. Of course, there is always a percentage of dissatisfied exhibitors, some of whom overlook the fact that dogs grow old and develop faults, such as defective teeth, etc.

Although some of the sections were not as well supported as in 1914, many high-class dogs were benched. In the any other variety class, Mr. Richard Hopkins benched a grand Harlequin Great Dane bitch—Caradoc Lady Betty. The fox-terriers included several good sorts. Dr. Kerr, of Wollongong, won the double with Kersland Kilmichael and K. Kilkenny, who started successful careers by winning as puppies at last year's "Royal." Valex Rattlesden Rebound, Avavali Confidence, Sussexdale Sam, and other terriers are good enough for any colonial company.

The stockdogs were a good lot. They are among the breeds which are kept for their original purpose—work; and they showed it in their conformation and condition. Kelpies, cattle-dogs, and deerhounds are three breeds which are of the first importance to stockowners, whom they save a lot of expense. The deerhounds were a typical lot of fox and dingo killers.

Irish terriers were not nearly as good as at the recent Combined Show, and the same comment applies to wirehair fox-terriers. Scottish dogs included such top-notchers as Clonmel Monk and Torridon Darrach, both imported. The bitches of this breed were inferior to the dogs.

Bulldogs made a fine display. It was regretted that the veterinary surgeon found it necessary to pass out three of the best specimens. The open dog class brought out three imported winners—Centurion, Don Hol Britson, and Caractacus, each in the Rich and Wilkins stable, and they were placed as written. Khaki Lubra, who has grown into a nice bitch, and Glenmore Mercia were the best of the opposite sex.

Foxhounds and harriers brought out some good dogs, most of them being sired by Gerald Barry's great imported dog, Nobleman. Collies were only fair as a whole, and the exhibits in this breed were not up to the standard of years gone by.

White Pomeranians made an attractive class. The winner, W. Jordan's Till, is a nice type, with snow-white coat, dark eyes, and foxy-like head. Some of the exhibits had a yellowish tinge in their coats, and were penalised therefor.

SHOW NOTES.

Rhodes grass is becoming one of the most popular grasses on the North Coast, and a fine sample grown by Mr. J. T. Bird, a Manning River farmer, was exhibited in the Agricultural Hall. The exhibitor stated that it was growing 10 feet high, and holds that whilst it takes second place to paspalum for milk-producing, it is far ahead for fattening cattle.

As it is asserted in some quarters that good lucerne cannot be grown at the Yanco Irrigation area, a bale of this valuable fodder was specially exhibited by the Yanco Experiment Farm. The bale, which was obtained from a paddock sown with Tamworth seed, had a fine, leafy sample, free from stalk and of capital quality. If the settlers can market a similar product, or better still, feed it to dairy or other stock, they should get along comfortably.

The great sugar industry still finds no place in the show. Provision is made for it in the catalogue, certain classes being provided for sugar cane. A fine educational and advertising display could be made of the industry. Seeing the magnitude of the industry in the Commonwealth, and the interest it has in arousing the support of the public, it is a wonder steps are not taken to put forward a fitting exhibit at the leading show.

The lady riders at the Royal aroused a great deal of admiration for the pluck and skill they displayed. The incidents connected with the contest in the high jump on Monday were enough to daunt any rider, but only had the effect of bracing the horsewomen to still greater effort. This year Miss McCulloch, the Melbourne girl, who was so successful in the ring last year, was missed. She is away at the front, nursing.

Pastoralists in this State are keen on good beef Shorthorns. The top price—bull and heifer—was secured by Mr. J. F. Mole, of Cowra. Mr. O. E. Freind, of Carwell, Coonamble, who already has a splendid stud of Shorthorns, also secured a high-priced bull. The demand for Shorthorns indicates a revival in breeding for beef. Most of the buyers came from Queensland, and the stock in demand was bred in Victoria, South Australia, and New Zealand.

The poultry section afforded an opportunity for farmers to realise that well-bred poultry is better than the ordinary barn-door variety. The table poultry classes were very instructive in this direction, showing both pure-breds and crosses. Whether our poultry farmer will ever reach the position attained in other countries as to supplying table birds is a doubtful question. But more attention should be given to this side of the industry. At present, owing to the state of the dull offal market, the poultry industry is in a precarious position.

It is understood that the Illawarra Shorthorn breeders' meeting was a very satisfactory one, and that the delegates agreed upon a basis mutually acceptable to members, and which will be later on submitted to the societies for confirmation.

Lincoln red Shorthorns were shown for the first time this year. They were entered by Mr. Geo. F. Doyle, of Molong. It is claimed for the breed that they are bred to a well defined type, and are possessed of great milking capabilities. They have a good record in England. The demand for Jerseys continued to be brisk. They are growing in popularity, and the fact that their milk is so rich in butter fat places them in a good position.

A good many of the South Coast breeders were missing from the cattle sections this year. The high price of fodder was partly responsible, but the principal reason was that the alterations made by the society in certain classes did not fit in with the ideas of the southern men. The absence of a South Coast district exhibit was also a matter for regret in view of the splendid season experienced. It was noted, however, that individual exhibits from the south were well up to the average of former years, particularly in the produce sections.

A good point about the fruit section was the improvement in the quality of the apples and pears exhibited. Although the choice fruit from Bathlow was not shown the Goulburn and district apple growers made up for the shortage.

The selection and grading of the apples was carried out in a more expert manner than ever before. The new apple, Delicious, was shown for the first time, and Mr. Allen, Government fruit expert, described it as of very good quality. Mr. J. Kadwell, a Crookwell grower, showed some in the Goulburn exhibit. Delicious is a variety which is rapidly coming into favour as it becomes better known, and the Goulburn growers are including it in their next year's export classes, probably in place of Snowy. This variety does well on the highlands, and is being grown both on the southern highland and in New England.

While pigs are generally good at the show, some Victorian visitors contend that they are not up to the standard in the southern State. That they are money-makers under proper management is generally admitted. The exhibit of Middle Yorkshires and Berkshires was one of the best yet seen at the Royal, and attracted a larger number of visitors than usual. The litters were unusually fine, and high prices for the best strains of Berkshires, Yorkshires, and Tamworths were paid at Saturday's sales. The Middle Yorkshires and Berkshires shown were very true to type; these breeds are more popular than ever, either for the stud or for crossing. Large Yorkshires have declined in popularity, and out of the six pigs shown in this class all but one sow were passed out on account of their not being true to type.

The Land Department's information bureau in the agricultural pavilion was thronged with visitors during show week, all inquiring after land. There was great inquiry for land suitable for wheat-growing, and over 20,000 maps were issued by the officers in charge. Judging from the inquiries made, the interest taken in land matters is still very acute. There are still many parts of the State where good land is available for settlement, and the information dispensed at this stall should be of value. Considerable interest was manifested in a copy of a relief map of New South Wales, showing the configuration of the country. The cast from which this copy was taken covers 80 square feet, and is now at the Panama Exhibition.

It is interesting to note the development of the manufacture of Australian farm machinery and the various appliances for the country settler. A few years ago it was mostly American machinery, but even in windmills Australia is now well to the fore. In the farm machinery section, a Sunshine harvester with a 9ft comb, driven by a motor engine, attracted attention. It is claimed that it will strip 25 acres a day against 12 of the five feet machine, and with no more horses to draw it, the machine itself being worked by the motor. Motor tractors seem to have a big future in this State. Their extent and variety indicate there is a ready demand, and the use to which they can be put makes them very useful in town or country.

IRRIGATION AREA.

ALLEGED LAND TRAFFICKING.

DEPUTATION TO MINISTER.

A deputation from the Murrumbidgee Irrigation Settlers' Association waited on Mr. W. G. Ashford, Minister for Lands, at Leeton, on Friday, being introduced by Mr. P. McGarry, M.L.A. The deputation comprised Mr. A. E. Cook, president, Mr. E. Blade, vice-president, and Mr. E. J. Polkinghorne, secretary.

Mr. Polkinghorne welcomed the Minister on his first visit to the territory, but as his visit was only a flying one, urged that he should take two or three days as soon as possible, and visit all parts of the area to look into matters vitally affecting the settlers' interests. This area was not designed for the aggregation of large blocks, yet there was a strong and persistent rumour that a syndicate of Mildura and Melbourne men had taken over 1250 acres of land, some of which was irrigable, and purposed growing wheat. He had applied to the manager, who said it had been done under instructions from the head office. If this was true it revealed an extraordinary position of affairs, considering we had men here every day looking for land. It was contrary to the policy of the settlement that any syndicate should scoop a large portion of the land, and if true, it ought to be stopped. He could say that two high officials of the Trust were mentioned in connection with it. It was a scandal if true, and should be inquired into. Some men were holding two blocks, and ex-trust officials were the most flagrant offenders. It was time the Minister knew this, and put his foot down. No man could work 50 acres successfully under intense culture, and if he had not been assisted by his three sons, he could not have handled his block, and 20 acres was quite enough to work single-handed. Men were also being allowed to take up more than one block, surrendering and taking up other blocks.

Mr. A. E. Cook, president, said their first necessity was to realise why they were so keen against holding large areas. They asked was it a correct policy? It was a significant fact that individuals had taken up 100 acres of the choicest land, which would have been eagerly selected for intense culture. Yet it was in the same state as when taken up three years ago. This sort of thing retarded settlement, and must be stopped if the area was to advance. Yet the most flagrant offenders were officials of the Trust, who were at present getting high salaries, and holding large areas. This was most unfair, and was blocking the progress of the area. He was convinced it never would be worked. This should be investigated at the earliest possible moment. The ploughs were already at work on the syndicate's area, which comprised some of the choicest soil. Settlers who have taken up small holdings at Cogeldrie understood they would have the water by April 1. Two of the gangs had left that district for where the syndicate was holding the land. These small block holders had been put to great inconvenience by the removal of the gangs.

Mr. Ashford said, in reference to the syndicate, that he did not think their information was correct. That proposal had been turned down just the same as they would turn down any syndicate's proposal. If people liked to co-operate in working their land cheaply, he did not think there could be any objection. With regard to the 50 acres and 100 acres, he was here to get information, and their grievances would be carefully gone into. He would ask them to go a step further. It was hardly fair to make accusations against the officers generally without mentioning names.

Mr. Cook: We will submit them.

Mr. Ashford said he was quite sure Mr. Dare would take steps if there was any corruption, and go very carefully into the representations made. He did not propose to turn away from the Labour policy. He was not so well up in these matters as Mr. Griffith, but hoped that any of their real grievances would disappear.

Mr. Dare: I want to hear of them.

Mr. Polkinghorne said if there had been a public meeting he would have been prepared to submit names.

It was arranged that the names be submitted to Mr. M'Garry.

STOCK RESERVES.

DUBBO.—At the meeting of the Dubbo P.P. Board, Mr. T. M. Scott said the Minister proposed to cut the stock routes down to a few chains in width, with reserves of, say, 250 acres a few miles apart. This would be a dismal failure. The first few mobs of stock would fare well, but would eat out the routes and reserves. Under the scheme which the Dubbo Board proposed, what the Minister wanted to do would be done properly and without expense to the State. If the proposal of the Minister were given effect to the reserves would become a series of dust beds, and this dust would have a very deteriorating effect on the wool, which would be a further loss to the State. He had asked the stock inspector (Mr. Dulhunty) to give his expert opinion of the Ministerial and the Dubbo P.P. Board schemes.

Mr. R. G. Dulhunty, stock inspector, supplied the following statement re Mr. Ashford's proposal to protect T.S. and C.Rs.: "I am strongly of the opinion that this scheme is quite unnecessary, as it would cost a vast amount of money, and would not be nearly as effective as the scheme proposed by the Dubbo P.P. Board, which has been sent by circular to every board in New South Wales, and has been approved by the majority. All the Minister has to do is to hand the T.S.Rs. and C.Rs. over to the control of the boards, and give them the power they ask for, and he would not have to spend one penny for their protection, much less £2,000,000, as it is proposed by the Government to spend; and the reserves and the interests of travelling stock would be adequately protected at a very small cost, and that cost would be provided by the people who use the roads and reserves, and not the general public, as under Mr. Ashford's proposal. The Dubbo P.P. Board had gone further than this, and has drawn up a scheme that is practicable, and that, in my opinion, covers the ground. In the event of the Minister's proposals being carried out, it would entail the employment of an army of inspectors to properly supervise the roads and reserves."

The Dubbo Pastures Protection Board proposes:—

1. The control and management of all T.S.Rs. and C.Rs. to be handed over to the P.P. boards.

2. T.S.Rs. and C.Rs. to be leased under improvement lease conditions. Any reserves not under lease to be leased by the P.P. boards or left under board's control, as board may decide. Compulsory improvements to consist of (a) Ringbarking and keeping clear of suckers and undergrowth, except from such timber as may be reserved by the board; (b) destruction and eradication of noxious weeds, such weeds to be defined by the board; (c) destruction of noxious animals. This to be done to satisfaction of board's inspector. Lease may be cancelled for non-observance of any of the above conditions. No compensation to lessee for above improvements at end of lease.

3. In any case where the board thinks it necessary in the public interest for water to be conserved and (or) the land netted, and the lessee is willing to effect such improvements, the lessee to have tenant right at the termination of his lease to the (then) value of such improvements. Such value to be fixed by the board.

4. Rigorous inspection by board's inspectors to prevent overstocking. Carrying capacity to be determined by board when lease is issued.

5. All rents and fees to be collected by board, and to be paid into an account to be used solely for the management and improvement of T.S.Rs. and C.Rs.

6. Travelling charges to be made by board at the rate of 1s per 100 sheep or under for the first 100 miles or under, except when distance travelled does not exceed 40 miles, when half the above rate to be charged. For every succeeding 50 miles or under rate to be 6d per 100 sheep or under.

7. Travelling fees to be collected by inspector, acting-inspector, or director issuing permit, and no permit to be issued for over 100 miles. No travelling stock to be allowed to travel without a permit under penalty.

8. Cattle, horses, and any large stock to be rated at one beast equals eight sheep.

9. An inspector may be appointed by board and to be paid out of rents and fees collected from T.S.Rs. and travelling stock.

CATHCART DAIRY COMPANY.

BOMBALA.—At the half-yearly meeting of the Cathcart Dairy Company, 20 shareholders were present. The report showed that during the last six months, 119,353lb of butter were manufactured, equal to 53 tons 5cwt 2qr 17lb. It realised gross £5935 5s 7d. This is easily a record for the company. Difficulty was experienced in getting export butter away from Sydney. 391 boxes sent by the company to Sydney for export were sent away on 11 different vessels, space being allotted to the different factories pro rata. Very little second-grade cream has been received this season. Suppliers are now rapidly diminishing, and the outlook for the winter is not too promising.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

ALBURY.—A local pastoralist, who devotes a large area of his land to cultivation on the shares system, holds peculiar views on the subject of fallowing. He maintains that fallowing is a mistake. He says he has compared the results obtained by those who adhere to this much-lauded system with his own, and is quite satisfied with the results. He contends it is folly to sow on dry ground, and is of opinion that any land sown early means a waste of seed and labour, as it will have to be resown. Neighbouring landowners do not endorse these rather heterodox views.

BOGGABRI.—The recent rains were general throughout the district, ranging from 125 points to three inches. Prospects for grazing and farm operations are now brighter.

BOMBALA.—In the Delegate district landowners are having a bad time with the rabbits. One farmer who had a fine crop of oats had the lot eaten by rabbits in three days. Another farmer had a similar experience with a crop of wheat.

YOUNG.—At the annual meeting of the local branch of the F. and S. Association, the following officers were elected:—President, Mr. J. B. Brown; vice-presidents, Messrs. A. Chant and J. Blackwood; hon. secretary, Mr. G. S. Whitemen; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. C. Edmunds. The balance-sheet showed finances to be healthy.

THE AMERICAN NOTE.

British subjects will find nothing to complain of in the tone of the latest Note handed by the American Ambassador in London to Sir Edward Grey. They will be rather inclined to welcome the spirit of friendship which underlies all its suggestions, and the appreciation of the special difficulties which make it impossible in this war for the Allies to observe the strict letter of the rules of international law. The Note is, indeed, in marked contrast to the earlier American remonstrances from its reference to the century of peace between the two nations and to its expression of confidence in the discretion with which the blockade will be carried out by the Allies. The spirit in which Sir Edward Grey has met President Wilson throughout all the negotiations between the two countries has evidently made its impression in America. The arguments contained in his considered reply to the President's remonstrance have convinced the American Cabinet of the anxiety of Great Britain not to infringe the rights of neutrals, and of the success of British naval officers in avoiding all preventable hardship. This impression has obviously been strengthened by the conduct of the German submarines acting under the direction of the German Government. If the Allies, through geographical necessity, have committed a breach of the law drawn up at an international congress, the German authorities have in addition been guilty of a breach of the law which is founded upon the instincts of civilised humanity. The Allies have diverted neutral shipping, even when destined for neutral ports, have reserved to themselves the right to confiscate cargoes and to treat goods previously accepted as innocent with the same rigour as if they were contraband, and have probably caused grave inconvenience to shippers of food and cotton. They have not destroyed a single ship or permanently deprived a neutral of his lawful property, whereas the German submarines have sunk every ship they could reach, whether it was neutral or British, have caused the death of many non-combatants, and have destroyed property without inquiring whether it was intended for the civilian or the military population.

The contrast between the two methods, which has demonstrated in the pamphlet written by Mr. Balfour and circulated in the United States, has obviously impressed responsible American opinion in favor of the Allies. The result is that when in this Note they insist on a grievance, they admit that the conduct of Great Britain is not without its justification, and suggest a practicable remedy. The grievance lies in the application of the blockade to neutral ports, a proceeding unknown in any previous war. Months ago the British Government applied the doctrine of continuous voyage which had been abolished by the Declaration of London, and began to seize contraband destined for those countries which do not forbid reexport to Germany or suspected of an enemy destination under cover of the address of a neutral merchant. The new declaration concerted between England and France, and issued in the middle of March, placed innocent and contraband goods in the same category, and forbade any ship to carry goods to or from Germany. The ship which broke this rule might be provided with a pass to a neutral port, or it might be taken to a British port, there to be dealt with by a Prize Court. The cargo if contraband would be confiscated, if innocent it might be requisitioned by the Government at a fair price, or returned to its rightful owners with the least possible delay. The American Government complains with some justice that a nation's sovereignty over its own ships is by this decree reduced to a nullity, since the belligerents, in addition to their right of search for contraband, now claim their right to dictate a ship's course, and to control the whole of its cargo. Happily, Americans realise that the best way out of the difficulty is to trust to the British Government not to abuse the powers which supremacy at sea have given it. They trust that the British Prize Courts will respect the rights of neutrals, as they always have done, and that the British Government will instruct its officers to use their powers with discretion. The reception which this Note has met with in England shows that the suggestions contained in it will be adopted as far as they do not conflict with the main object of the Allies, the subjugation of Germany. But any request that the cordon should be relaxed to allow the passage of innocent goods, as a rule, will be refused in the friendliest and fairest manner possible. To make such a change would be to abandon a weapon which has played less part than it might have done in this war. The report that 200,000 bales of cotton were imported in December last shows how much use the German armies have made of one non-contraband article. Food supplies from overseas will be used for the army before any will be spared for non-combatants. If this were not so, Germany could not complain that the civil population were feeling the pinch of war. Since the policy of her leaders has been to oppress non-combatants by every conceivable form of brutality, there is no law to which they can appeal against a blockade which places the whole German people in peril of starvation.

NORTON GRIFFITHS AGREEMENT

It has to be admitted that in time of war all domestic precedents go by the board, and every Government is bound to meet an emergency with the best means at its disposal. This must be held broadly to apply to the Norton Griffiths agreement, which apparently is so far settled that it may be regarded as an accomplished fact. Mr. Holman's memorandum, which appeared in our news columns yesterday, justifies the action taken by the Government to carry on the public works of the State after the arrangements for the present year have terminated. When the war broke out it became necessary to meet the crisis by an immediate recourse to the Federal authorities. What the Premier and his colleagues were able to accomplish, thanks to the help of the Prime Minister as Federal Treasurer, will carry them on till November in this year; but the following year now represents the main burden of the State Government's responsibility. Roughly there are 20,000 men employed by the Works Department, apart from the ordinary officials, and between £8,000,000 and £9,000,000 of loan money per annum is required to pay their wages and find the material necessary to keep them going. Where was this to be found? If it could have been ascertained that the war would be quickly over a sound policy would have been to rest satisfied with looking ahead for twelve months; but the indications at the end of 1914 and the indications now are not favourable to a sudden end to hostilities. There are optimists who are also experts, with other convictions, we admit; and it will be a delightful thing to find them right and everybody else wrong, should we reach peace before the present year is out. Nevertheless, Mr. Holman was entitled six months ago, as he is entitled to-day, to build upon at least another twelve months of trouble after 1915; and if this be so he may fairly insist that his argument in favour of an emergency compact with Messrs. Norton Griffiths is almost unanswerable. The Imperial Government has shown unmistakably that it must control the London money market in the interests of the Allies during this war. It has come to an understanding with France and Russia to that end, and the resources of the three Powers are to be pooled for the benefit of the Entente, now turned into a fighting alliance. Clearly, also, from Mr. Holman's advices through the Agent-General, there can be little hope for loans by New South Wales in London.

What was to be done? What could be done now if there were no Norton Griffiths compact? It may be urged, perhaps, that the Federal Constitution gives power to the central Government to assist the States in any extremity; but that would involve negotiation, and probably help for all. Our needs would mature without adequate financial provision to meet them, even if Mr. Fisher were able to discover some way of using the Treasury as Aladdin employed his lamp. Unfortunately in these days, so far from old Bagdad times, we have to be practical, and genii do not come at a call or a rub. Now, there are two things to be said in this connection which must again be put on record. First, the extravagance of Labour has undoubtedly made our financial position in this emergency serious; and, second, admitting that it is useless to cry over spilt milk, we do not know even now the terms of the Norton Griffiths agreement. We have no guarantee before us that more valuable milk is not going to be spilt. It is all very well to present a plausible argument, as Mr. Holman has done; but what most people want to know is whether the State Government has placed the taxpayer first—that is, the community—or has it no thought for anybody but the workmen, whose wages are being paid out of borrowed money? This question goes to the root of the matter. If the community is made the primary consideration, the Government will take care that any agreement to carry out works on a percentage basis is fair to the taxpayer. It will also see that the departmental estimates have not been inflated, and that "day labour" with its political pulls and perquisites is not merely another phrase for getting ten shillings' worth of work at the cost of a sovereign. Mr. Holman, of course, assures us that everything is right as right can be. It is true that Ministers themselves do not seem agreed about the final signing of the agreement with Messrs. Norton Griffiths. At one time it appeared to be completed, folded, and docketed for future reference; while now Mr. Cann has to admit that it is incomplete again. Until the provisions are actually before us, therefore, we shall do well to admit the force of the general argument while reserving judgment until we know exactly to what the State has been committed. Rain is still falling, production will probably boom in the near future, and fresh railways must be built. Even if we have to pay more for the latter, the money will prove to be well invested, but only as it is properly spent. Why does Mr. Holman delay giving us the particulars so essential to any sound verdict on his position? Is it that he is waiting for the Labour conference to end now that its support has been secured? We prefer to believe anything but that. At the same time there is small comfort in the generalities to which we have been treated, since the concrete clauses of a settled agreement are overdue.

ALIEN ENEMIES.

NATURALISATION SHIELD.

MR. HUGHES'S VIEWS.

The Federal Attorney-General, Mr. Hughes, stated yesterday that no fresh legislation dealing with alien enemies is contemplated, the present law being sufficient to enable the authorities to deal with any naturalised foreigners who might prove to be disloyal.

The matter was, Mr. Hughes said, already dealt with by the War Precautions and Trading with the Enemy Acts. So far these measures had proved adequate for our purposes.

"The distinction between naturalised and unnaturalised subjects of the enemy," added the Attorney-General, "in war time, and especially in the life-and-death struggle between two rival races now raging, is not material. The mere act of taking out naturalisation papers does not change an enemy into a loyal subject. In many cases, indeed, it is merely a convenient cloak for espionage and treachery.

"The recent legislation on the subject recognises this fact, and my experience in administering these Acts amply justifies their policy in this respect. So far the Government has found its powers under these Acts sufficient, but if circumstances require it, or if Great Britain lead the way, legislation which in effect denaturalised all subjects of any enemy country which does not recognise our naturalisation certificate as a complete release by the holder from all obligations of military or other service or duty to the country of their birth, would certainly be passed by the Commonwealth Government."

ELECTORAL ASPECT.

The Chief Secretary, Mr. Black, stated yesterday that if any naturalised foreigner who happened to be on the electoral roll of the State was convicted of any disloyal act, or was guilty of expressing sentiments antagonistic to Great Britain and her allies, he would be dealt with so far as his privileges under the Act were concerned. It was a question, in his opinion, whether naturalised Germans on the electoral roll were in any position to hurt the interests of Australia and the Empire, should they so desire, by virtue of that fact. In any case, where foreigners were on the roll, and were likely to hurt the cause of the Empire, they should be removed; but no instances of this kind had occurred, and no discordant note had so far been sounded here.

THE MEN IN NEW GUINEA.

A FORGOTTEN FORCE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The tropical force which is serving in New Guinea under Colonel Pethebridge notes with envy the progress of movements for supplying comforts to troops bound for the front.

Discharging their daily round of duty without any tangible evidences of their country's affection, these soldiers see comrades leaving for other parts literally staggering under the weight of presents and "comforts." Naturally they feel that they have been overlooked. The matter is mentioned in a letter received by the Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, from Colonel Pethebridge.

The men in New Guinea, Colonel Pethebridge points out, are just as much at the front as men in Egypt, and they would warmly welcome a few crumbs of the comfort showered so generously upon other troops. The men in New Guinea, for instance, have to buy every pipeful of tobacco and every cigarette they smoke, and also provide their own books and other reading matter, and materials for games and entertainments. Colonel Pethebridge said that books would be a "God-send" to the men. "They have boxing, cricket, and fencing," he continued, "but have to buy most of the gear. Perhaps some of the cricket clubs could supply material now that the end of the season has come. Gramophones, not forgetting the records, would be acceptable, particularly at the out-stations, where life is lonely."

Colonel Pethebridge also referred to the great want that would be filled by the gift of second-hand bicycles.

In making the letter available for publication, Senator Pearce said that articles sent to the military authorities, addressed to Colonel Pethebridge, and marked "Gifts for Troops," would be sent on to New Guinea.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

His Excellency the Governor was present at the funeral of Sir Francis Suttor at St. Mark's Church, Darling Point, yesterday morning.

His Excellency left Sydney for Moss Vale yesterday evening.

On Friday next, Mr. C. G. Wade, president of the Liberal Association of New South Wales, will celebrate his silver wedding. The members of the Parliamentary party propose to meet Mr. and Mrs. Wade at the Hotel Australia, at 4 p.m. on that day to mark the occasion by presenting them with some silver plate.

The passengers booked by the Aldenham, which will leave Sydney for the East on Friday, include Captain and Mrs. G. Smith, Mr. Neil Bray, brother of the American Consul General in Sydney, and Miss Hughes, who is going to China to engage in missionary work. Captain A. W. Pearse will travel on the steamer as far as Brisbane.

Mr. Joseph J. Brittain, who is to succeed Mr. J. P. Bray as American Consul-General in Sydney, will arrive in Sydney by the Makura at the end of the week.

Mr. G. B. Killmaster, who has been succeeded as American Consul at Newcastle by Mr. Lucien Sullivan, will leave on his return to the United States by the Ventura on Saturday.

Mr. C. Hart Davis, secretary to the Western Pacific High Commission, accompanied by Mrs. Hart Davis and family, left Suva by the Niagara for Vancouver, en route to London.

Mr. F. G. Jones, an American oil expert, arrived in Sydney by the Tango Maru yesterday.

News reaches this city of Miss Ruby Winckler, a frequent exhibitor at the Society of Artists, and a pupil of Mr. Julian R. Ashton, who left Australia two years ago. This young artist went to Boston, where the imaginative quality of her illustrations of Eastern stories, so many of which were admired on this side, was at once appreciated. Miss Winckler has just completed an entire set of these drawings for a costly edition of "The Arabian Nights," issued by a great publishing house. This Boston firm thinks so highly of them that they are now having them shown at the Panama Exposition.

Mr. G. Richards, M.L.A., who has been compelled to take a sea voyage for health reasons, will not be back in Sydney until early next month.

Captain W. Newton has been appointed Deputy Superintendent of Navigation for the Port of Newcastle.

Mr. Morrish, M.L.A., and Mrs. M. Griffith have been appointed members of the State Children's Relief Board.

Mr. A. E. Fawn, who is leaving for England by the Orontes to-day, after 30 years' service with W. Gardiner and Co., Ltd., of York street, as departmental manager, was entertained at a valedictory social by the staff of that firm last evening. Mr. T. J. Hitchman, the managing director, and other gentlemen expressed their goodwill toward Mr. Fawn, and their hopes for his future welfare in the old country.

Mr. D. G. A. Cooper, stipendiary magistrate at Wellington (N.Z.), arrived by the Ulimaroa yesterday on a holiday visit to Sydney.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith returned to Sydney from India by the Morea on Sunday.

Mr. Clyde Meynell, one of the managing directors of J. C. Williamson, Limited, left Melbourne for London yesterday by the R.M.S. Malwa.

MOLYBDENITE.

TREATMENT WORKS IN SYDNEY.

AUSTRALIAN DEPOSITS.

Australia, particularly New South Wales, has failed to take advantage of the enormous jump in the price of molybdenite, caused by the war, by exploiting its marvellous deposits of the mineral. The Australian production is smaller with molybdenite selling at £700 a ton than when it was not worth more than £350. An extraordinary fact, but nevertheless true. The report of the Mines Department states that the value of the molybdenite produced in 1914 was £11,451. In that year the average price paid for the mineral was considerably over £5 per unit, hence the departmental valuation of £11,451 represents a little over 20 tons of pure mineral, or about 12 tons of the metal molybdenum.

In these columns early last year Mr. J. E. Scantlebury, managing director of the Whipstick Mines, Ltd., one of the State's chief producers of molybdenite and bismuth, estimated the production of molybdenite from that mine in 1914 would exceed 20 tons, and the fact that it did not do so brought forth a forcible explanation.

"Yes, my estimated production was rudely shattered," said Mr. Scantlebury. "It was not the fault of the mine, but none the less the misfortune of the directors. As long ago as April, 1914, we shipped to London by the Mooltan 35 tons of Whipstick hand-dressed ore, which, on concentration by the Elmore Vacuum Process Company, produced 6½ tons of high-grade concentrates. A certain metallurgical gentleman received the concentrates early in July, but so far we have not been paid for it. Imagine holding in London in July of 1914—a month before the outbreak of war—6½ tons of molybdenite which had hitherto gone to Germany. It has been represented to the directors of the Whipstick mine that the Germans bought but did not pay for the 6½ tons of concentrates. How much the Germans paid I do not know, but it is believed they did not get it under £1000 per ton.

"The proceeds from this 35 tons of ore had been ear-marked for the installation of a concentration plant on the mine. Having no confidence in making further ore shipments to London, we sold out another large parcel accumulated in Sydney, entered into a contract to supply bismuth ore to Elliott Brothers, and are again working the mine and dumps for their molybdenite and bismuth.

"Last year I tried to establish in Sydney works for the treatment of molybdenite and other works, but failed ignominiously. But it is some consolation to know that Mr. G. E. Baker formerly managing director of the Great Cobar, Ltd., has stepped into the breach by the erection in Kent-street of works specially designed for the treatment of molybdenite ores. If the works are the success anticipated, they will, under a Whipstick ore contract alone, turn out more molybdenite than the Mines Department states was produced last year, and this year's production will easily double that of 1914."

The establishment of the works, apart from any monetary consideration, will mean that a great service will be rendered to the British arsenal, and to the army and navy ammunition contractors, who are exceedingly anxious to receive from Australia as much molybdenite as possible during the next few months, and there is every reason to believe that over 100 tons will be despatched from Queensland and New South Wales in April, May, and June. Although of an intrinsic value of £70,000, the destructive value of these 100 tons is incalculable, particularly if the German supplies are becoming exhausted, as is indicated by the recent deterioration in their shells and ammunition. This supply of mineral will make the superiority of the British and French artillery still more pronounced.

MR. HALL'S WARNING.

FARMERS AND WHEAT.

"MUST DELIVER FORTHWITH."

The Attorney-General, Mr. Hall, who is administering the Wheat Acquisition Act, finds that the grain is not coming forward at a sufficiently rapid rate. He thinks the farmers are withholding it, but a view entertained by some is that, quite apart from the question of any wheat that may be withheld, the official estimate of the State wheat yield was excessive, and is not being realised.

Mr. Hall issued the following warning yesterday:—"It is very clear that a large percentage of last year's crop has not yet been delivered to the Government. The result is that, whilst there is ample wheat in the country to supply the needs of the people of New South Wales, the withholding of crops by a number of farmers is already causing a serious temporary inconvenience. This cannot be permitted to continue. Whilst the case as to the constitutionality of the Wheat Act was before the High Court the Government purposely refrained from taking delivery from the farmers against their wishes. It was recognised that whilst there was any uncertainty as to the legal position the full power of seizure need not be exercised. But this time has now gone past.

"The wheat on the farms belongs to the King. The holders are merely custodians. They must now prepare to deliver to the local Government agents forthwith, and get their money. If they do not do this in the immediate future, the Government will exercise its powers, and itself take delivery, charging the farmers for the cost of loading and cartage.

"I am anxious that anyone who wants to keep his wheat for seed purposes should not be inconvenienced by having to cart it back from the nearest mill after it has been carted there at his expense. Any farmer who wants wheat retransferred to him for seed purposes should at once apply to the secretary of the Wheat Acquisition Board, Sydney, and permission will be readily given in all bona fide cases; but if this permission be not obtained then the seed wheat, as well as the rest of the stock, will in the very near future be removed forthwith.

"It is much to be regretted that the Government cannot see its way to sell wheat back to owners who desire to feed stock on it. All the grain in New South Wales is required for seed purposes or for human consumption, and must be so used."

UPPER HOUSE.

POSITION OF PRESIDENT.

MR. FLOWERS'S CHANCES.

Between now and the reassembling of the State Parliament the Government will be called upon to fill the position of President of the Legislative Council rendered vacant by the death of Sir Francis Suttor.

Unlike the position of Speaker of the Assembly, which is filled by a vote of members, in filling the analogous position of President the members of the Council have no voice. The position is one for the Governor, with the advice of his Ministers, to fill. The Premier stated yesterday that the Cabinet had not yet considered the question of filling the vacancy. "There is no hurry," Mr. Holman added.

In political circles Mr. Flowers, M.L.C., Vice-President of the Executive Council and Minister for Public Health, is generally regarded as likely to be the next President. He has been a member of the Council for nearly 15 years, and during the last four years has represented the Government as Vice-President of the Executive Council. The position carries a salary of £1000 per annum.

THE MURRAY.

BLANCHETOWN LOCK TENDERS.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

One of the first matters of importance which will have the consideration of the new Commissioner of Public Works, Mr. G. Jackson, will be the acceptance of a tender for the construction of the first Murray lock at Blanchetown. The Peake Government recently invited offers for this extensive and important work, and it is understood that seven tenders were received. The ex-Commissioner of Public Works, Mr. Ritchie, was unable to complete arrangements prior to leaving office, and the undertaking now becomes one of policy for the new Ministry.

Mr. Jackson stated on Tuesday that he intended to give the question early attention, so that there would be no delay.

GRADUAL GROWTH.

BRITAIN IN THE PACIFIC.

GERMANY'S GUILE.

For a hundred years British sailors, explorers, missionaries, and traders have been making the Pacific Ocean their study. The statement has been offered in this connection that at one time or another every principal island or group has been offered to Great Britain where actual possession has not been obtained; and this is broadly true, because each likely port or landing place has known our flag, and the natives there or behind have desired its protection when under stress from other visitors. But is is also true that nothing has been more difficult from time to time than to get British Governments to extend the Empire. Where they have not actually retired from desirable lands or groups they have declined to take action if pressed to annex; and, in many cases, they have literally been forced into possession. New Zealand, for instance, was only just secured against France. It is interesting to note that in 1875 a deputation from the Royal Colonial Institute waited upon Lord Carnarvon, Secretary of State for the Colonies, to urge the annexation of the eastern half of New Guinea. This was eight years before Sir Thomas M'Ilwraith tried to force the hands of the British Government of his day. Among the speeches made by this deputation to Lord Carnarvon was one by Mr. Frederick Young, who said that 36 years before—in 1839—France was about to annex New Zealand. The British Government was supine; so a number of persons (Gibbon Wakefield among them) found the necessary money, "bought a fast sailing South Sea whaler, and equipped and sent her to New Zealand under the charge of Colonel Wakefield. It was a perfect ocean race as to which should arrive first, a vessel from Brest having started for the same destination; and Colonel Wakefield only just succeeded in planting the British flag at Port Nicholson when Baron de Thierry arrived there with the same object on the part of France." Captain Owen Stanley, brother of Dean Stanley, secured the southern half of New Zealand for Britain in the same way. As a sidelight upon German naval ambitions, even as far back as 1875 there is a reference in the report of that deputation to the Hon. Arthur Kinnaird, one of the members, who said that "Germany was determined to be a great naval Power, and would look to colonisation as the principal means to that end, and if she looked to New Guinea we may lose a very important colony." But this goading of British Governments to do their duty was originally more concerned with France than Germany. As the secretary of the Royal Colonial Institute has pointed out, in one of the Oxford Pamphlets, 1914, Germans have never taken an active part in maritime exploration. They had no mercantile marine at the critical moment. The Hanseatic League had been more a safe and profitable commercial combination than a colonising concern, and after it fell on evil days there was nothing to take its place. "Thus there has been no German Columbus, Cabot, or Magellan in the Atlantic, and no German Vancouver, Cook, or Bougainville in the Pacific." One has only to look through the files of the "Sydney Morning Herald" 70 years ago to discover that Australia's anxieties were even then based upon French activity in Tahiti, not upon the possibilities of German enterprise from Hamburg in the Pacific.

While for a century Australia has looked out upon the Pacific with more or less keen attention, it has been within the last 50 years that her thoughts have been occupied with the actual occupation and use of islands as close as New Guinea, New Britain, and New Ireland—not to mention the New Hebrides and New Caledonia. Convict settlement has been quite a burning question in the time. As a makeweight, at the beginning of the half century—in 1865—there was a disposition to place immigration first. Two names famous in our history come into prominence during that time, because Henry Parkes and W. B. Dalley had been sent out of the way to England as immigration agents and lecturers without the means, however, of actually turning the tide of free population this way. They had gone home with fares and expenses paid, and had returned after touring the country and getting into touch with various eminent and unimportant personages, but practically without fruit for their labours. Curiously enough, it was Sir Henry Parkes who, in July, 1874, with the concurrence of his colleagues in the Government of New South Wales, wrote a minute on the annexation of New Guinea, which was forwarded to the Governor, Sir Hercules Robinson, for the Secretary of State for the Colonies in London. After remarking that there was probably no country in the world which offered so fair and certain a field for colonisation, Sir Henry advised that an Imperial charter should be granted to an Australian company to colonise the eastern side of New Guinea—with a Governor appointed from England. But it was no good. The British Government was not concerned with Australian fears or desires where they involved increased responsibility for Ministers in London, especially as just then Fiji was in process of being constituted a Crown colony. Probably the story of the latter event would better illuminate the unreadiness and unwillingness of British Governments to do anything in the way of extending British influence than the account of our disappointments with New Guinea. Samoa had been offered and refused, and Fiji had actually been reported upon, only to be refused. But persistency and the force of facts in connection with Fiji had at last prevailed, and Sir Arthur Gordon was sent down as first Governor of this new possession.

Pertinent comment may be found in respect to German activities in the South Sea Islands at that time, in the letters of some of our missionaries, especially as regards the presence of Germans in Fiji. Dr. Lorimer Fison was one of the shrewdest and ablest of these workers for civilisation in the Pacific; and he had returned to Fiji for a further term of service after a period of absence. In his letters written from 1875 onward there are several references to Germans with whom he came in contact, and, indeed, the very first man to attract his attention when reaching Fiji was a German. There had been an epidemic of measles, which had decimated the native population. Before the "John Wesley" actually reached port the erstwhile pilot, a Captain Hedstrom, came outside the reef and was refused permission to get on board. Then it turned out that he had been appointed assistant health officer, and when he had pulled in laboriously from seaward it was discovered that he was "foaming at the mouth with rage." He produced a blue flag, and ordered them to hold no communication "mit de shore," and only the arrival of the health officer himself helped to smooth matters out. But the mission vessel had on board a distinguished personage, a German baron, who had embarked as a passenger, who swore at the children before the missionary's wife, and "told a barefaced lie in denial of it afterwards"—who, in fact, played the Prussian overlord so well that Dr. Fison had to take him aside one day and speak to him in terms which promised "an event of a British nature" if he did not behave. This same German aristocrat is to be found in Miss Gordon Cumming's book, "At Home in Fiji," where he figures as a persona grata at Government House, and as a continual maker of trips about the islands exploring, investigating, and asking questions. Evidently the system of espionage, of which we now know so much, had begun too in those days. Dr. Fison mentions the baron later as having used the Governor in presenting a complaint about his treatment as a passenger by the John Wesley, in respect of fares and accommodation.

When the missionary went to his station at Lakeba, he found an old-established German firm still in existence there, and doing well; and when the copra tax had to be collected on one occasion for the Governor, he discovered that Sir Arthur Gordon had arranged with another German firm for the transport and sale of the product. In the latter case, however, the Germans concerned had not boats small enough to handle the copra from the shore; and consequently it had to lie for so long that it deteriorated and lost weight, with the result that when the money was finally made up it was a substantial sum short. Little things like this led to friction between the Governor and the missionaries, but we do not find that the Germans involved ever lost anything. One can trace German enterprise through all the islands in this way, but it was apparently never supposed that there was anything behind it, except the natural desire for wealth. In Australia we know that some of our best colonists have come from Germany, and the second generation is composed of as good Australians as any of us. This is precisely what Treitschke and others have girded at. Such assimilation, they have declared, must cease; and they heralded a German Empire, which was to embrace Germans everywhere—Germans in Fiji, Germans in Australia, and, of course, Germans in Samoa. This was the avowed object of the German Colonial Union founded in 1882, and its developments have led to war on a scale such as the world has never before seen. But we may suppose that the earliest activities of German traders in the South Sea Islands were pacific enough. British sailors and missionaries had cleared the way, and British warships in those early days were in evidence. Under the folds of the Union Jack, and by leave of British Governments wherever the flag was finally flown, Germans entered the fields, won increasing wealth, and then began to covet the whole area for themselves. This has been the history of Germany in the Pacific.

AMERICA.

LATEST PROTEST.

A FRIENDLY NOTE.

STRENUOUS BATTLES.

The text of the United States Note to Britain and France regarding the Allies' blockade contests the right to place an embargo on all trade with Germany through neutral countries.

It is urged that for America to admit such interference would be an un-neutral act towards Germany.

The friendly tone of the Note is commented on by the English press.

A small British steamer, the Olivine, was torpedoed in the Channel, near where the Russian barque Hermes was sunk.

The French have made further progress towards the German line of communication behind St. Mihiel.

Fierce fighting is taking place between the Russians and Austro-German troops in the Carpathians and in Bukovina.

It is stated that seven German army corps are directly supporting the Austrians, indicating a fear that the defence of the latter is breaking down.

WESTERN FRONT.

FRENCH PROGRESS.

THE ST. MIHIEL SALIENT.

PARIS, April 6.

A communique states: We captured three successive lines of trenches south-east of St. Mihiel, and have gained a footing in the enemy's works north-east of Regnieville.

TEMPEST OF FIRE.

BATTLE IN CHAMPAGNE.

LONDON, April 6.

The "Daily Chronicle" says that an almost continuous battle has been raging in the Champagne district for three weeks, the French taking the offensive. The fight is the most violent north of Mesnil les Hurlus. Nothing of Mesnil remains but a heap of ruins. A perfect tempest of fire has swept the ground for nearly a month. Not a yard is unploughed by shells.

Terrible struggles have occurred in the enemy's trenches, and the melee is indescribable. Without room to fire a rifle the men fought with unfixed bayonets, pickaxes, pieces of iron, and fists.

The French tenaciously hold the ground taken.

NEUVE CHAPELLE.

GALLANT ATTACKERS.

A combatant who was at Neuve Chapelle states that the final success of the British was largely due to the dash of the Lincolnshires and Berkshires. In the preliminary [illegible] hand-grenades were thrown in the enemy's trenches, which caused many to surrender. The Germans were caught in a trap, and the Lincolnshires drove them across a strip of water five feet deep stretching along the front.

The Lincolns lost seven officers killed, including Colonel MacAndrew, and 298 men killed and wounded.

IN THE BALTIC.

GERMAN FLEET.

BLOCKED BY MINEFIELDS.

COPENHAGEN, April 6.

Large German Dreadnoughts are displaying activity in the Baltic.

The German fleet was unable to return to its base after attacking Libau, being caught in its own minefield, which was adrift. The warships have taken refuge between the islands of Gothland and Oeland until a passage can be cleared.

Advices from Stockholm state that the Russians have mined the Southern Baltic between Bornholm and Ruegen Island.

BY SUBMARINES.

ITALIAN STEAMER SUNK.

ROME, April 6.

The Italian steamer Luigi Parodi, from Baltimore, is regarded as lost. The newspapers attribute her loss to a German submarine in the Atlantic, stating that the Germans did not disclose the affair, fearing Italy's anger.

The families of the crew have now been promised pensions.

SOCIALISTS AND WAR.

I.L.P. CONFERENCE.

LONDON, April 5.

The Independent Labour party conference at Norwich yesterday discussed the war. Prominent Labour men refrained from speaking.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, M.P., explained that the French Socialists viewed the war differently to the Independent Labourites. It was, he said, no use talking at present about stopping the war.

He said that the Women's International Council of Socialists and Labour Organisations held at Berne was marked by cordial relations between British and German delegates, and had passed a resolution calling for a speedy end of the war by a peace expiating Belgium's wrongs without humiliating any nation, and recognising the integrity of large and small nations.

We also captured 25 officers and 2000 men, with three guns, on the front between Mezolaborcz and Uszok.

Desperate fighting occurred on Saturday and Sunday in the village of Okna, north of Czernowitz (Bukovina), where we took prisoner 1000 men who were left behind by the Austrians.

REINFORCEMENTS.

TO STOP THE RUSSIANS.

BERNE, April 5.

A German army corps has left Flanders to assist the Austrians in the Carpathians.

A large number of troops have been withdrawn from the Tyrol to assist in stopping the Russian advance.

GERMANY'S FEAR.

TURKEY.

THE DARDANELLES.

A GERMAN'S STORY.

LONDON, April 6.

The "Cologne Gazette" publishes an account by a German officer of the bombardment of the Channel forts. The writer claims that the forts sunk the battleships Bouvet, Irresistible, and Ocean.

He describes the heavy damage done by the Allies' shells, but states that the defenders were able to restore the forts to a workable condition.

THE BLACK SEA.

GOEBEN AND BRESLAU.

PETROGRAD, April 6.

A communique states: Our fleet, near the Crimean coast, exchanged shots at long range with the Goeben and Breslau, and pursued them until dusk.

During the night our torpedo boats encountered some of the enemy's cruisers, 100 miles from the Bosphorus. The enemy opened a vigorous fire, but avoided an engagement.

GREECE.

OFFER BY ALLIES.

CONSIDERED INADEQUATE.

ATHENS, April 6.

A memorandum by M. Venezelos, ex-Premier of Greece, explains that Roumania was unwilling to co-operate with Greece and Servia without Bulgaria. When Bulgaria obtained the recent German loan, M. Venezelos abandoned the idea of a Graeco-Bulgarian agreement.

Later the Allies inquired whether Greece would assist Servia if Britain and France each sent a division of troops to Macedonia to forestall the danger of a Bulgarian attack.

The Greek General Staff considered the offer inadequate, and negotiations with Sir Edward Grey were suspended.

COTTON AS CONTRABAND.

SCIENTISTS' APPEAL.

LONDON, April 6.

A number of leading scientists in support of Sir William Ramsay's contention as to the value of cotton to the enemy for making explosives, unavailingly have appealed to the Government to declare cotton contraband.

The "Morning Post" states that Germany received 200,000 bales in January and February.

IRELAND'S HOPES

WHEN THE WAR IS OVER.

LONDON, April 6.

Mr. Dillon, M.P., speaking at the National Volunteer convention at Dublin, said that some day the war would be over, and when the hour came there would be a supreme appeal to the National Volunteers.

"If we could march from 50,000 to 100,000 armed and disciplined men through Dublin," he said, "it would show that a free indivisible Ireland must be conceded."

ALLIES' BLOCKADE.

THE UNITED STATES.

LATEST NOTE.

NEUTRALITY QUESTION.

LONDON, April 5.

Mr. W. H. Page, United States Ambassador in Britain, handed Sir Edward Grey the United States Note on the Allies' blockade, emphasising that the protest has been made in the mostly friendly spirit, and in accordance with the uniform candour that has characterised relations between the two Governments for the past hundred years.

The Note points out that the unprecedented feature of the blockade is that it bars many neutral ports as though they were ports of Britain's enemies.

A novel feature of Britain's blockade is the placing of neutrals under the same suspicion as an enemy. This is a distinct invasion of Sovereign rights. The United States is not oblivious of the great changes in the conditions of naval warfare since the blockade rules were formulated, but whatever form of blockade is adopted it should be easily practicable to provide for passage through the cordon without conflicting with a belligerent's right.

If the course pursued by Britain's enemies proves to be tainted with illegality and disregard of the principles of war, sanctioned by enlightened nations, the United States does not suppose Britain will taint her acts or justify them by similar practices.

The United States notes with gratification that wide discretion is afforded prize courts, and confidently expects that the powers given by the Order-in-Council will be restricted by orders to the executive officers, which will modify in practical application those provisions which interrupt neutral legitimate trade.

If the Order-in-Council is carried out it will constitute the practical assertion of unlimited belligerent rights over neutral commerce, and an almost unqualified denial of the Sovereign rights of neutrals. Belligerents have already been conceded the right of search, and capture if contraband is found.

The Note assumes that Britain will not deny the right to transport innocent shipments to and from the United States through neutral countries to belligerent territory. Hitherto, Britain has not questioned these rights. For America to admit such interference would be an unneutral act towards Britain's enemies. If Britain made such a claim it would be equivalent to setting at nought the principles for which she has consistently contended in the past.

Relying on these modifications, the United States assumes Britain will adjust her practice in consonance with international law. If the order-in-council is strictly enforced, it will impose heavy responsibilities, and the Note expects that where such interference unhappily occurs Britain will make full reparation.

FRIENDLY NOTE.

TO FRANCE AND BRITAIN.

WASHINGTON, April 5.

The United States despatched a friendly Note to Britain and France, declaring that America is unable to admit the right of the Allies to place an embargo on all commercial intercourse with Germany through neutral countries.

The United States contends that if this is admitted it will be equivalent to an attitude of American unneutrality towards Britain and France's enemies.

ENGLISH PRESS COMMENT.

LONDON, April 6.

The press cordially welcomes the United States Note and comments on its friendly tone. The "Telegraph" says the suggestion as to the passage of vessels through the blockade cordon will doubtless receive attention.

The "Daily Chronicle" says that the Allies could not, without destroying their policy, permit non-contraband to reach Germany through neutrals.

FOR HOME DEFENCE.

A GROWING ARMY.

LONDON, April 6.

The home defence volunteer movement embraces mostly men over military age. There are 280,000 men enrolled, and this number is increasing by thousands weekly.

WAR NOTES.

THE CARPATHIANS.

The Russians are throwing greater and greater weight against the Austrian centre in the Carpathians, with the object of gaining command of further passes to the eastward of Dukla. This morning's messages speak of seven more divisions having arrived at the front in the vicinity of the Uszok pass from Przemysl. This tremendous pressure is now beginning to tell definitely against the Austrians, and there is an accumulating mass of evidence to show that they suspect that their centre will not be able to hold out much longer against it. It was significant that the Vienna paper, the "Neue Freie Presse," should have been allowed to publish the despatch from its correspondent, in which he emphasised the point that the Russians were "making superhuman attacks in the centre, with constantly increasing and seemingly endless reserves," and that other correspondents should have been allowed to dwell "almost hopelessly on the enormous strength of the Russians." It is now beyond doubt that the Germans have had to send very great reinforcements to stiffen up the Austrian defence, and the London "Times" estimates that no less than seven German army corps are directly engaged in the Carpathians. This great drain that has been made upon the German forces elsewhere, perhaps explains in part Von Hindenburg's long-continued inactivity between the Upper and Lower Vistula in Poland. But it also explains why the Grand Duke Nicholas was able largely to reinforce his line in the Carpathians even before the fall of Przemysl released the army lying around that fortress.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE CENTRE.

If the Russians can continue their present advance until they have secured control of the central Carpathian passes, they will have established a broad enough line from which to enter upon a serious invasion of Hungary, an enterprise which, as we have already pointed out, they could not undertake through a single pass. If the crumpling up of their centre begins to look imminent the Austrians will have to forego their present attempts to push northward at the eastern end of the mountains, and devote practically the whole of their strength to preventing the Russians from debouching on to the Hungarian plains. Such a development should render it comparatively easy for the Russians once more to overrun Bukovina, and so undo the work which the Austrians have been carrying out in this region during the past few weeks—a work which has for its object not only the pushing back of the extreme Russian left, but the clearing of the Roumanian frontier. This latter phase of the matter is highly important from the Austrian point of view because of the possibility of a Roumanian irruption into the war. At the present moment they hold their frontier here quite intact, and both political and military considerations demand that they should keep it so as long as possible. In view of all these things, a tremendous interest attaches to the battle now going on along the front from Dukla eastward to Uszok. On the result of that struggle depends the whole course of the campaign in this theatre of the war.

THE WESTERN FRONT.

As part of the news regarding the German reinforcement of the Austrians in Hungary comes an item from Berne to the effect that one German army corps has been withdrawn from Flanders and despatched to the Carpathians. If this is true it is certainly puzzling, and, if we are to accept the official statements as to the pressure now being exerted upon the whole of the German line in the west, we are compelled to doubt the Berne message. It was only the day before yesterday that the point was emphasised semi-officially that the Germans were now unable to reinforce any particular point of their line in France or Flanders, except at the expense of their strength at some other point; and as part of the reply to the question as to whether the recent lengthy casualty lists were "worth it" it was pointed out that the offensive in the west was assisting the Russians to withstand the Germans in the east. In the meantime we are told that tremendous fighting is still in progress in the Champagne district, concerning which the "Daily Chronicle" correspondent draws a terrible picture of the melees in the enemy's trenches where, without room to fire a rifle, men are fighting with unfixed bayonets, pickaxes, pieces of iron, and bare fists. The French have apparently gained a little more ground, and are tenaciously holding it against violent counter-attacks. The only other part of this front from which details of the fighting come is the St. Mihiel district, where the Germans hold that extraordinary salient dealt with at length in this column some days ago. The French have followed up their success at Heudicourt on the north side of the salient with a notable advance in the vicinity of Regnieville, on the southern side; and they are now less than four miles from Thiaucourt, which is on the main line of communications between Metz and St. Mihiel. It now at last begins to look as though the German hold on St. Mihiel is drawing to a close, the eastern end of their curious long "corridor" is becoming so perilously constricted. With the evacuation of St. Mihiel would vanish the last German hope of ever surrounding the great fortress of Verdun.

THE HOBOKEN RAID.

The French War Office has now received precise information as to the results achieved by the British air raid on March 24. This foray, it will be remembered, was directed against the shipbuilding yards at Hoboken, about three miles south-west of Antwerp, where five German submarines were in course of construction. Five pilots set out, but owing to the dense mist that prevailed at the time two of them had to return to their base, so the enterprise was carried through by only three. One report, emanating from Holland, stated that the success of the raid was largely due to the fact that one of the pilots flew a captured German machine, and thus pretended to chase the other two; but this picturesque version has not been confirmed. However, the work of the three airmen was characterised by remarkable pluck and determination. From the moment they were sighted near Antwerp a tremendous fusillade was directed against them by the Germans with all sorts of weapons; but, in the face of this tornado of shot and shell, they deliberately descended to within 300ft of their objective in order to discharge their bombs with as much accuracy as possible. That they were amply rewarded for their daring is now clear. At the time they gave it as their opinion that they had completely destroyed one submarine, and had seriously damaged another, besides setting fire to the works; but the official information on the point shows that two of the submarines were destroyed and a third was damaged; the yards were fired, and 40 German workmen were killed and 62 wounded. This certainly represents a very fair morning's work for a trio of airmen, especially when it is considered that one of the submarines was ingeniously concealed under a specially-built deck and superstructure, which gave it, from above, the appearance of a steamer. The principal source of regret connected with the affair lies in the fact that one of the pilots, Flight-Lieutenant Crossley-Meates, subsequently lost his way in the mist, and when he landed he was astounded to find that he was on Dutch soil. Thus Britain has lost the services of a remarkably fine young airman for the remainder of the war.

GETTING THE SUBMARINES TO THE SEA.

That the raid was carried out just in time is evidenced by the news published this morning telling of the Germans having towed two submarines from Antwerp to the North Sea. These two vessels are almost certain to be the couple which emerged scathless from the Hoboken affair, as the whole five in the yards were reported to be on the verge of completion when the raid was made. When it was first reported that the Germans were building submarines on the Scheldt it was thought by some people that these vessels could not be got to the open sea without a violation of Dutch territory, for the Scheldt enters Holland a few miles past Antwerp, and from that point on is wholly a Dutch stream. But the remarkable system of canals which cuts up Belgium in all directions has allowed the Germans to get their craft out without touching Dutch territory at all. They were taken up the Scheldt to Ghent, and thence to the sea by the Grand Canal, which runs via Bruges to Zeebrugge. This waterway allows vessels drawing over 17ft to reach Ghent, so there would be no difficulty about getting the submarines through to the open ocean. It is to be regretted that the British airmen were not able to repeat their raid on Hoboken and complete their work of destruction or that they could not have paid a little attention to these two submarines while they were in transit up the river and through the canal; but, still, three out of five must be conceded to be a good "bag" indeed.

HOLLAND.

GERMAN OBJECTIVE.

FREMANTLE (W.A.), Tuesday.

Captain Dahl, who is in charge of the steamer Natal, states that there is a feeling in Denmark that Germany is not likely to respect the neutrality of Holland any more than she has done that of Belgium. Holland's neutrality is a big drawback to Germany's plans for an invasion, and it is thought that when it suits him, the German Emperor will forward an ultimatum to the Dutch Ministry demanding the right-of-way from Antwerp to the open sea. The strategic importance of the Belgian capital would be enhanced by the declaration of war against the Dutch, whose territory, stretching across the mouth of the River Scheldt, hems in the waterway to Antwerp behind neutral land.

"Ever since the capture of Antwerp," continued the captain, "the Germans have been busy raising a large number of vessels which were sunk in the harbour before the Belgians vacated the port, and these vessels are now almost ready to take to the sea again. There is no room for doubt that Germany has designs for an invasion of England, and from the activity in Antwerp, the vessels in the harbour are apparently being fitted up as transports to convey the invaders. Until, however, Holland is embroiled in the struggle, those vessels cannot get out, and the general feeling is that a breach of Holland's neutrality is only to be expected."

INDIAN LOYALTY.

PRINCES' GIFTS.

ANARCHISTS IN BENGAL.

"I was greatly impressed with the manifestations of loyalty everywhere," said Alderman J. M. Sandy, managing director of James Sandy and Co., Ltd., yesterday, on his return from a five months' tour through India and Ceylon.

Alderman Sandy said that throughout Ceylon there was a strong wave of patriotism, while the people of India, with the exception of a section of those in Bengal, were enthusiastically loyal, and princes were vieing with each other in their offers of troops and money for war purposes. No one seemed to know (for the reason that the natives did not know themselves) exactly what the Bengalese wanted other than to be "agin the Government." There was, of course, a deep-rooted dislike among a section of the British Raj, but, as far as he had been able to learn, the unrest was confined only to Bengal, and did not by any means affect the whole of that province either, the anarchists constituting only a small percentage of the population. During his stay in Calcutta two murders had been committed by anarchists, one of a superintendent of police and the other of a professor. Whenever the Viceroy visited Calcutta (which was very seldom), the greatest precautions were taken to ensure his safety. Recently Lord Hardinge had made a train journey from Sara Bridge to Calcutta, a distance of about 100 miles, and along the entire route there was a line of soldiers, the men being stationed at intervals of a hundred yards to guard against any tampering with the rails. On that occasion the Viceroy had performed the ceremony of unveiling some statues, and no native other than those of high rank had been allowed within coo-ee of him. Even when the Viceroy was at Delhi the city was policed from end to end. "The display of loyalty by the Indian princes cannot but thrill any Briton with pride," continued Alderman Sandy. "Their contributions have been most generous. Maharajahs and rajahs have at their own expense raised and fully equipped whole regiments, and sent them to the front, accompanying them themselves in many instances. The Maharajah of Gwalior, who turned his back on the King at the Delhi Durbar, and seems to have bitterly repented it ever since, cannot do enough now to demonstrate his loyalty to the Crown. He has already given thousands of pounds, and is prepared to do much more. I travelled for some distance with one of the Indian princes, a brother of a maharajah, and when he heard I was from Australia he said he was at a loss to understand the reason why the Commonwealth shut out Indians. He reminded me that we were all members of the one great Empire, and said that it seemed rather a reflection on Indians that, though they were considered good enough to fight side by side with British and Australian soldiers, they were not considered good enough to be admitted within the portals of Australia. I told him that I had not the making of the laws of the country, but that I was of opinion that there could be no objection to the admission of Indians in limited numbers and under restrictions, especially in such places as the Northern Territory, which I do not believe can ever be properly developed by white labour. Tea, cotton, and other tropical products will grow splendidly there, but it would be no use growing them under present conditions. It seems to me that we might well favourably consider any proposal made for permitting Indians to go there, at all events, under whatever restriction might be deemed necessary. The flow of tourist traffic to India and Ceylon has, of course, been greatly interfered with by the war, and traders have suffered in consequence; but, on the other hand, there has been a tremendous demand for tea, and the jute trade is in a very healthy condition."

SIX WEEKS

WITH THE GERMANS.

UNPERTURBED BERLIN.

FOOD PROBLEM.

A journey to Berlin in war time: a "neutral" observer, who made the journey, tells of it in a series of articles in the London "Times."

"We bumped along the road through Amsterdam," he says, "past countless soldiers guarding the permanent way. Towards noon the dreaded frontier was reached. The Customs examination was, if anything, more mild than in peace times. A little blue label marked 'revidiert' was pasted on my bags, my passport was scrutinised and stamped, a porter placed my luggage in a car marked 'Berlin,' and to my intense surprise 20 minutes later we were steaming at full speed over the flat lands of the Ems valley. The dining saloon attached to the train served me an excellent meal for three marks, and I returned to my compartment to await events.

"Snow lay deep in the district around Osnabruck, where we caught up with the storm. Hanover was passed on schedule time, and at a little station near there we came to a dead halt. I saw a long Red Cross train—fourth-class carriages converted into sleeping cars, with a great red cross painted on a metal sheet at each end, and wounded men staring out of the windows near the top. Five minutes, ten minutes we waited. Then with a jolt we started off at full speed. Near Stendal I saw 20 small black freight cars with the words 'Louvain, Etat Belge,' stencilled in white letters, parked on a siding empty.

"It was still snowing, but we kept up our express pace, and Berlin was reached on time to the minute. I alighted from the train 11 hours after leaving The Hague. A porter, two, struggled for the privilege of carrying my bags, and I noticed they were young, sturdy fellows, quite of the arms-bearing age. Evidently some had not been mobilised. At the station I saw few or no troops, no military guards, and the usual routine of a brass check for a taxi-cab delayed me some minutes, and then through the brilliantly-lighted, thronged streets I was driven to my hotel. The hazardous journey was over.

"And so with other journeys. I crossed the country from one end to the other, and never was my train late. Every fast train was equipped with a dining saloon, and all night trains with sleeping cars.

LIFE IN BERLIN.

"I expected to find Berlin the throbbing heart of the Empire. Instead I found the cold, metallic, precise click of a great machine. One gets no impression of personal feelings, personal emotion. Merely the slow grinding rotation of duties, each carried out with perfunctory energy, but the whole the most magnificent organisation the world has yet seen. It is man reduced to an equation of efficiency. Of each individual is required just about one-half the effort of which he is capable. The result is that, not only are they amply provided for any emergency, but that ordinary life is less disturbed than in any other belligerent country. Though the life of the people goes its round undisturbed, in higher circles about the Court all social life has ceased, except for small parties given for the entertainment of officers invalided home. Officers on leave without serious cause I saw none, so that the war conversations lack the thrill of personal contact with a real warrior fresh from the trenches, who, speaking in the first person, recounts his adventures to admiring listeners. The wounded who reach Berlin are an unusually reticent lot, compared with those in other cities, though they must be the heroes of the war, for every other soldier in the capital has been decorated with the Iron Cross. In fact, not to have the big black and tin-edged bauble dangling from a long black-and-white ribbon from the third buttonhole of the 'field-grey' tunic, is becoming a mark of especial distinction. The national song will have to be changed to 'Kreuzland, Kreuzland uber Alles" if the war continues, a wit has recently suggested. Whether the Emperor prefers his Prussians to his Bavarian or other troops, as has been suggested, is difficult to say, though the fact remains that one sees many more Iron Crosses in Berlin than in any other city of the empire.

GERMAN DIPLOMACY AT A DISCOUNT.

"That the empire suffers thereby, particularly in its foreign affairs, was told me by a distinguished German. The open criticism of German diplomacy by all classes seemed to me extraordinary. That the 'haute finance' was not advised of the war in due time, in order to call in loans, etc., rankles in their minds. That the country was not informed of the English 'point of view' or was falsely advised is felt bitterly. In fact, German diplomatists are in such disrepute at the present moment that I heard more than one person emphatically declare, 'We will have no diplomatic peace;' and I know that the great industrial, banking, and commercial men of Germany expect to be consulted, should the occasion arise. For not a man of them but believes that the end will be favourable.

"Yet, strangely enough, one hears little talk of victory, little boasting over the prowess of the German arms, and, stranger still to a foreigner, the Emperor's name rarely, if ever, figures in the conversation. In point of popularity with the people he ranks about fifth. Hindenburg, the victor in Poland, is, of course, the national hero, though among the well-informed, his chief-of-staff, Ludendorff, is given the credit for these victories. Next comes the Crown Prince. After him, and running a close third, comes Count Zeppelin, the man who has made England shiver and quake with fear, and mope about in the dark, to the delight of all Berliners. Then, Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, and the Crown Prince of Wurtemburg, both having proved themselves great military leaders. Then the Emperor.

The Crown Princess is undoubtedly the most popular woman Germany has had since the days of 'Queen Louise.' 'The Smile of Berlin,' as she is called, and her four sturdy little sons, all in military dress, arouse the wildest enthusiasm whenever they appear.

GERMAN RESERVES.

"After six months of war Germany seems to me almost as strong as on the first day, closely united, little disturbed. The civil life of the nation appears to continue as in time of peace. To under-estimate Germany's military reserve strength would be very short-sighted. Military authorities state that her class of 1915, some 750,000 able-bodied, picked men, has not been called out. Apart from these, the numbers of 'untrained Landwehr and Landsturm' would run into millions. Though arms and ammunition factories are working night and day, I have it from a reliable source that Germany is only just beginning to use her 1914 small arms ammunition.

In connection with the question of ordnance it is interesting that I was unable to find a single person, military, official, or otherwise, who had actually seen one of the 42cm mortars which are supposed so quickly to have reduced Belgian and French fortresses. That two or three such guns exist was affirmed by all, but whether they are a success seems questionable. The photographs of the large batteries seen everywhere, pretending to be the famous Krupp 42cm. guns, are, in reality not German at all, but Austrian from the Skoda works at Pilsen, and are 30.5cm. in calibre. They have been of great service to Germany because of the ease of transportation by motor lorries. They have done practically all the work credited to their larger and more notorious confreres.

"The question of the deficiency of copper is being vigorously met by the opening up of mines which, in ordinary times, could not be profitably worked, but are able now to provide a material increase in the supply of that metal. Other sources of copper, such as pots and pans and telegraph wires, are being considered as of possible service.

"The seizure of Galicia by the Russians and the consequent stoppage of the supply of petrol, was one of the severest blows to Germany, which relies chiefly on motor transport for military purposes, and particularly for its aeroplanes and Zeppelins, not to mention the countless motors used for private purposes. It is unquestionably true that the situation was serious. For a time all private motor traffic was at a standstill. But now benzol, as it is called, which is easily and cheaply obtained in great quantities from coal, has taken the place of petrol. The coal is thereby converted to coke, and, with painstaking thoroughness, the German Government set about to find a market for the great coke supply that was thus created. Locomotives are being converted to burn coke economically in place of coal, as are other steam engines and furnaces. So that to-day, notwithstanding the enormous consumption of benzol for military use, the supply is more than equal to the demand, and taxi-cab and other motor traffic has again resumed almost normal proportions.

THE STATE SEIZURE OF CEREALS.

The question of wheat and other cereals, of which there is an undoubted scarcity, is more complicated. Patriotism, though fervent in Germany, never for a moment transcends financial self-interest. And so the seizure of the cereal supply by the Government was absolutely necessary in order to prevent prices from becoming prohibitive. That this measure was so long delayed and not taken the first day of the war, as advocated by the leading German economists, is due to the influence of the Agrarian party. The wheat supply is far shorter than is generally known. It will surprise many to know, on the authority of an eminent economist, that, had the measures not been taken in time, only enough wheat remained in the country to satisfy the demand up to March 15.

"Ever since the beginning of the present war the thinking people of Germany have been asking themselves, 'In case of a long-continued struggle, cut off, as we undoubtedly shall be, from our customary imports, can we hold out?' For with the entrance of England into the conflict every German realised that it was a life and death struggle, and that the matter of an adequate food supply would be vital.

"In the early months of the war 'starvation' was only discussed by theorists; but, with the beginning of the fifth month the stern reality of the actual possibility of a deficiency of food was impressed on the people by a series of official proclamations. By the cutting off of supplies from abroad Germans have been thrown back on themselves. They realise that they must now rely on themselves alone, and yet I found no weakening of spirit anywhere, but rather a grim determination to fight to the bitter end.

HATRED OF ENGLAND.

"I had made it an especial object of inquiry to discover how the Germans really feel, and whether the 'Hymn of Hate' finds a true echo among them. I questioned all sorts and conditions of men—ministers, artists, bankers, merchants, professors, waiters, porters, railway guards, etc., and the most surprising result was that, though among the 'people' the feeling against England is that of a living antagonism, summed up in the words 'they want to starve us,' it is in the highest social, intellectual, and political circles that the hatred flames forth with brutal ferocity. The Germans feel that they have been wronged, abused, fooled, maltreated by England. 'With England's aid we could have ruled the world,' I heard expressed many times. Their hatred seems to be based on resentment, on disappointment. It has in it a feminine quality not usually associated with the Germanic mind. But many declared to me that, in their opinion, the hatred against England had gone too far: 'We must live and trade again after the war, and England was one of our best customers' sums up the feelings of many."

OUR TROOPS.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS ENLIST.

A GOOD MUSTER.

In spite of the pouring rain there was a very fair muster of recruits yesterday at the enrolling office. Again trades and professions were well represented, for three dentists, a flourmill proprietor from the country, and a man from the barracks pay-office were enrolled.

A motor mechanic also offered his services, and not only that, but explained that if he was accepted he would place his own car at the disposal of the military. He went through.

Three engineers, three railway men, and a railway storekeeper also passed the enrolling officer, and, to cap all, came a shorthand writer and stenographer.

The next to offer his services was a Dane, who, besides being naturalised, had papers to show that he had served 14 months in the Danish army. He was a thickset, short man, but of the very type Australia is anxious to get to send to the front with her infantry.

An armourer-sergeant of the citizen forces also was enrolled, as well as an employee from Garden Island, who, so he said, preferred to join the land forces to those on the sea. A surveyor, two farmers (one of whom owned his own farm), and two more commercial travellers were added to the list.

Though the Dental Corps has not yet officially been made a unit of the forces, men continue to offer their services in this particular branch, and yesterday a dentist in a good way of business offered his services, and was passed into the reserve of the Army Medical Corps until such time as the Dental Corps is an established unit of the forces.

A station overseer, a boot manufacturer, and several other tradesmen were included in yesterday's list of recruits. A Russian also paraded with the offer of his services. He was a tall, well set-up man, 25 years of age, and spoke English fairly well. He said he cared not in what capacity he served, as long as he could get a chance of a shot at the hated Germans. He was sent along to the infantry. A master jeweller also offered his services, as well as another Water Policeman and a member of the foot police from Newcastle.

Two more men from the Postmaster-General's Department were also anxious to enlist, but each had forgotten to arm himself with permission in writing from the department, to take such a step. They were told to produce such permission, otherwise they could not enlist.

The enrolling officer was anxious that the regulation governing the enrolling of men from this department should be adhered to. It has already been published several times in this column, and is to the effect that no man from the Department of the Postmaster-General—no matter what his qualifications—can be accepted unless he produces the written permission of the Postmaster-General to enlist.

Colonel Wallack, the District Commandant, was seen after the day's enrolling, and said that he was satisfied. He did not expect any records prior to or during Show week, but anticipated a large influx of country men at the conclusion of the show. When the number of commercial travellers offering their services was brought under the notice of the District Commandant, he remarked that they were the most enterprising men on earth, and had joined probably to open up a new line in Europe, and to see a little fun in the meantime.

"Wonderful men, these travellers," said the Colonel; "and some of the finest men we have. There's nothing they won't do or sell—if they get the opportunity."

There is a growl among some of the permanent officers, and it is not without reason. They say that now that the Pacific is clear they ought to be sent home to take their place in the ranks of those who are on active service. They maintain, that militia officers or citizen soldier officers (it comes to the same thing) could easily carry on the administrative and instruction work in the Commonwealth. There are hundreds of officers perfectly capable of doing this work and liberating the permanent men so that they could go home and do their share where they are most wanted. They hold that they are wasted out here, whereas if they were allowed to proceed to the front they might be of a great deal of use. It is understood that the matter is not going to rest in abeyance, and that representations will be made from highly-placed officers, who consider their services will be of greater use to the Empire at the front than in signing papers in Australia.

Mr. John Russell-Jones (son of the late Mr. L. C. Russell-Jones) left by Sunday's express for Adelaide, en route for England, where he will join the Imperial forces for the front.

NEXT CONTINGENT.

SEND-OFF ARRANGEMENTS.

The Railway Commissioners have decided to run excursion trains from Nowra, Singleton, Harden, and Orange, on the occasion of the official farewell to the next contingent, which takes place on Saturday afternoon week, April 17. It is intended to run the excursion trains so as to reach Sydney in plenty of time to see the march of the troops through the city, the trains returning the excursionists on the same day.

Mr. Carmichael, ex-Minister for Public Instruction, who has been deputed by the State Government to supervise the arrangements, stated yesterday that the Education Department was co-operating in order to allow school children to take part in the demonstration. A committee of teachers was being called together to make arrangements for a number of school choirs, and it has been suggested that the children should line one side of Park-street through Hyde Park. The flags used in the P.S.A.A.A. demonstrations could possibly be obtained. Mr. Carmichael thinks it easily possible to have several thousand children under effective control singing patriotic songs as the troops march by. It has also been definitely decided that the troops from Noumea, who will be passing through Sydney, will take part in the route march.

"This," said Mr. Carmichael "will be an added incentive, if any were needed, to ensuring a rousing patriotic send-off." Mr. Carmichael has already received assurances from a number of business firms along the route that they will do everything possible to ensure that the streets are well decorated. It is intended that the march will begin at the Railway Station, and the troops will pass along Elizabeth-street to Park-street, turning through Hyde Park into College-street, thence into Macquarie-street, as far as Bridge-street, and along Bridge-street to George-street.

STATE WORKS.

NORTON GRIFFITHS SCHEME.

ATTACK BY MR. HUGHES.

PREMIER'S DEFENCE.

The Norton Griffiths scheme for the provision of between £8,000,000 and £9,000,000 for the carrying on of public works in New South Wales was debated at last night's conference of the Political Labour League.

Mr. G. Down, on behalf of the St. Leonards League, moved: "That the Norton Griffiths scheme is a contravention of clause 3 of plank 4, and being unsound should not be adopted." He explained that when the branch had submitted the notice of motion it did not have the information that had since been published. An explanation was, however, still required as to why the Government was prepared to enter into private contracts without open competition. The interest question was one that had not been fully explained, and he would like to know what would be the gross amount that would have to be paid.

Mrs. MacNamara moved the notice of motion from the King P.L.: "That in view of circumstances, no member of the State Labour party who does support the Norton Griffiths proposal shall be eligible for selection at next election." She said this was a return to the capitalistic system, and was a shattering of all their ideals of giving a person the fruits of his labour. Every loan brought its own interest and increased the load of the taxpayers.

Mr. Weier (Trolly, Draymen, and Carters) said the system of bringing in a company as a second party was "rotten." There was no guarantee what the company would do in the way of exploiting the people. He believed it was one of the worst things the Government had ever entered into.

Mr. Davis (Woollahra) thought the credit of the State was sufficient to build the city railway, and the North Shore Bridge, or do any other work without calling in outside assistance, which may be comprised of foreign shareholders.

Mr. Burke (Singleton) said he would oppose the scheme if we were in ordinary circumstances, but there must be money to afford work for the workless, and the present was not an opportune time for the State to go into the market.

Mr. Brandston (Livery Stable Employees) hoped New South Wales would never lose control of its public works.

Mr. Murray (Boilermakers) said there had been no attempt to raise the money required in the local market. He predicted that the public here would have over-subscribed any money required for reproductive works.

Captain Toombs, M.L.A., recalled how a loan was put off at the time of the Boer War. We had neglected finance, and it was only this scheme that would save the situation.

Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan, general secretary of the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association, stated that the 17,000 men in his union depended upon the continued expenditure of money, and for that reason, among others, he strongly advocated the adoption of the scheme.

Mr. Power (Paddington) said he was surprised to hear that the 5 per cent. had to be paid in addition to the ordinary charges for underwriting.

Mr. Dooley, M.L.A., claimed that the scheme was against the best interest of the Labour movement. He did not believe that the condition of things in New South Wales was in such a plight as to necessitate the outside assistance of a private firm. If the idea had any merit, why was it that a number of local big firms were not given the opportunity of providing the money? Would the Premier say that he could not get two or three millions on the London market at the present time?

PREMIER IN REPLY.

In replying to the criticisms, the Premier (Mr. Holman) said that when the scheme first came up some 18 months ago he opposed it. Why? Because he said then they could do better for themselves. If they could do better for themselves now by borrowing the money and using it themselves, they would do it. The matter was open to argument as to whether it was wise. In some works, such as big tunnels for the city railway, Norton Griffiths had had great experience, and it would perhaps be advantageous that they should do the work. But since the beginning of the war the Government had not been able to get the money in any other way. He made the statement categorically. When the war broke out they were on the verge of floating a loan of £4,000,000. Then the war cloud came and eventually the war, and that loan was not floated. The Treasury was empty of loan money, and 18,000 men were looking to him every pay Saturday for their wages. The ordinary channels of the London money market had remained closed to them. It was utterly unlike anything that had happened before. One of the first results of the war was to partially close the Broken Hill works and the Government had to take on 4000 men, and spread the 18,000 men's work among 22,000 men. The Government exhausted the resources of the local market. Mr. Fisher also was then making certain arrangements. He issued £10,000,000 in notes to the banks, and drew the amount in gold. At that moment the resources of the trading banks were being so heavily drawn upon by Mr. Fisher and by this State that they were unable to go further. He (Mr. Holman) had obtained from the Bank of New South Wales £1,000,000, the same amount from the Bank of Commerce, and about £400,000 from the Commonwealth Bank. He did not want to go through such times again. Then Mr. Fisher told the Premiers that it was possible, owing to the good offices of the Imperial Government, to grant them a loan.

This State was enabled to carry on till November next. When they got another offer of £4,000,000—that was what Norton Griffiths offered—they saw that they would be able to carry on for another six months. They spent a fortnight or three weeks catechising the Agent-General. He referred his hearers to the paper issued by him on the previous night. Without the assistance of the Imperial Government they could do nothing. The Imperial Government was not able to do anything. The problem before them was to accept the offer before them or go on living on their hopes. It was a very responsible position. The war might be over at any time before their present resources were exhausted. But he could not get a written guarantee that the war would soon be over. However, the offer was presented, and they took it.

The Act was a departure from the platform. The work would be done by day labour under a private firm's supervision. He recognised that that was a departure from the spirit of the platform. But it was equally the duty of the Government to keep its people in employment, as it was to keep to the platform. The law of the land was "preference to unionists," and Norton Griffiths would have to obey that. The industrial conditions would not be changed, but the employer would be. They took a step which some people might think cowardly. They met the Executive and put the position before them fairly and fully.

WAS THERE AN ALTERNATIVE?

The whole question then was and now is—Was there any alternative? It was suggested that they should make a further local loan. Was that possible? About £25,000,000 of the money in the Government Savings Bank was loaned to the Government, but the depositors were entitled to ask for that at any time. They paid 3½ per cent. on that. They were advised to make a local loan, with a minimum of £5000 for any one person. But most of that money was in the trading banks—75 per cent. he had been told—and those banks had already been drawn upon to the fullest extent. There were some who believed that a large issue of paper money would meet the situation. That was not in the State Government's power, but within the province of the Federal Government. He did not believe in the issue of a large amount of paper money beyond a certain limit, and that limit was fast being approached. The Commonwealth Bank was also suggested, but their resources were limited. They had, as he had pointed out, been generous towards the State.

The Government had made full inquiries of other firms in Great Britain. Only one other firm tendered, and they asked a supervision fee of 7½ per cent., as against Norton Griffiths's 5 per cent. Several Australian firms approached the Government, but they could not do the work from their own resources. They would have had to go to the banks. The underwriting charge on the Norton Griffiths loan was one per cent. The firm agreed that it should be underwritten through the normal channels, if possible, but if the loan could not be floated on the Lon-

Ben market, they would finance it themselves. It was no use telling him that the City Council could raise all the money they wanted locally. He (Mr. Holman) could not do so. He thought, then, that he had shown them that there was no alternative but to go to Norton Griffiths.

Mr. Dooley had said that surely New South Wales had never reached such a crisis as to make this necessary. It was not case of crisis in New South Wales. They were in as good a position as ever as far as this State was concerned. Norton Griffiths were tapping a reserve fund of money which would not otherwise be available to this State. With this they would be able to carry on for a year after next November. After that, if they were lucky, they would be able to get a further £4,000,000. If they were not lucky it would be £3,000,000. This was not the ideal way. If they paid first-class fares on a boat, they expected, in normal times, first-class accommodation and attention; but if they were wrecked, and put on a raft, then they had to take what they could get. The platform of the party was made for normal and not abnormal times. There was no good in attacking the scheme unless a better one were brought forward. He was in a position to get the best information, and he would say—not in any spirit of challenge—that no better one was at present visible or possible. The Executive of the movement had agreed that no other means was available. He trusted that the conference, in its wisdom, forbearance, and liberality of spirit, would say that the Government acted for the best interests of the State. (Applause.)

COUNTERBLAST BY MR. HUGHES.

Mr. W. M. Hughes, M.P., said he was trying to understand the scheme. He would not have risen were it not for some observations that had been made as to the Commonwealth Bank and note issue. The minute would not, perhaps, mislead a politician, but there was a probability that the ordinary man in the street would not understand it. Was it intended to infer that the Commonwealth was unable to finance the States? As a member of the Commonwealth Government, he felt it to be a duty to foster the financial, commercial, and industrial fortunes of his country. In this he hoped he was in perfect harmony with Mr. Holman, which had not always been the case at other conferences. Other States had their financial difficulties just as New South Wales had. He had made inquiries respecting these matters, and had that afternoon received the following reply from the Prime Minister:—

"When we came into office it was discovered that the finance proposals agreed to at the conference convened by the Cook Government during the war had broken down. Immediately on discovery of the fact I invited the Premier of Victoria, Sir Alexander Peacock, to see me. He came, and I put the whole question before him, and outlined the scheme, which was ultimately approved and brought to success by the Commonwealth Government borrowing for war purposes through the British Government £18,000,000. I asked Sir Alexander Peacock to communicate the facts to Mr. Holman, as senior Premier. I then invited the representatives of the banks to see me on the same matter, and made certain suggestions to them for meeting the situation, which was agreed to after protracted negotiations. At that time the British Government would not guarantee any loans, except for war purposes. We were confident we could have financed our first year's war expenditure without borrowing at all. Having secured £18,000,000 for war purposes, and with an arrangement with the banks for an advance of £10,000,000 in gold, to be repaid at the end of the war, we were in a position to provide for the States' requirements up to November, 1915, as per agreement (see "Hansard," page 1340). On 12th March I wired all Premiers that, in order to prevent competition and increased cost, I was willing to act for all States borrowing on London market. New South Wales replied: 'Requirements for some time relate only to loans for renewal in respect of which arrangements already complete, and that at present Government did not desire Commonwealth intervention or assistance.' I take most serious exception to reference to the Commonwealth methods of finance, which are so inaccurate as to lead one to believe they could only be made through want of knowledge of the actual position. (Signed) FISHER."

Mr. Holman (with emphasis): This was after the whole business was fixed up and settled.

Mr. Hughes: The present position of the States, including New South Wales, is not down to need any such proposal as this. The Commonwealth has financed this State as it has every other State. That is one point. Next, reference has been made to the difference between the position of Labour here and elsewhere. That has nothing to do with the proposal under observation.

CUTTING COMMENT.

I do not even now pretend to understand this scheme in detail or in general principle beyond what I have heard from Mr. Holman. I do know this: It is a scheme which Mr. Holman himself opposed some few years ago. He then thought it was a most undesirable scheme. He accepts it now because he says the position is desperate, or might speedily become so. I say this proposal is a step backwards. (Applause.) How great a step backwards many of the delegates do not realise. (Hear, hear.) Whether it is desirable or not depends entirely upon circumstances. Did we as a Labour party come into existence for this? Did we have our minds made up to call upon the capitalist in our hour of need? We brandished our sword every time, and had sticks in their hearts. Are we now to be recalcitrant? Look at the thing. We will give up our platform, our ideal. What for? For £4,000,000 for five months from November 15 to May. For these five months are we to undo all we have striven for for years? I will not say that there is not good reason for it. But we have not heard what these good reasons are. While I say it is the duty of a Labour Government or any other Government to provide work for its people and continue its works policy, I say, too, that it can never be right for a Government to turn its back on principles that are dear to us when, by any understanding at all, it can avoid doing so.

WHY NO MONEY?

We are told there was no money to be got in London, yet the Norton-Griffiths people could get it. What are you paying for this? Mr. Holman says 5 per cent., and 1 per cent. Can you imagine that the Norton Griffiths people are philanthropists, and doing all this for 5 or 6 per cent.? That is too great a strain on our credulity altogether. Sir Timothy Coghlan says "there is no money" in London, or words to the effect that "it is no use trying to float a loan." Yet, are we to believe that in a time like this the Norton Griffiths people are doing it for 5 per cent! Now, I ask, what is this thing going to cost us? There are other Labour Governments in Australia besides this one. If this scheme is right for this Government it must be right for us, too. I remind you this: That the State Governments have not found one penny for military expenditure so far as the war is concerned. We found all that money.

Mr. Hall, Attorney-General: Yes; borrowed it in London.

Mr. Hughes: Of course we did.

Mr. Holman: And you will have to pay it back like we do.

Mr. Hughes: We pay very little interest. This Norton-Griffiths scheme, we are told, is an alternative to the principle of borrowing money in the open market. We have never been against borrowing money in the open market for legitimate public works. But we have never been in favour of borrowing money by hiring capitalists to take the place of the State in the employment of labour. (Applause.)

AN EVIL PRECEDENT.

This is an evil precedent—a turning back on the right way. I feel sure, however, that Mr. Holman has striven to promote the best interests of the workers. At the same time I think he has done wrong. At all events, it is a way of overcoming a difficulty that the Commonwealth will not emulate.

[illegible]: "What are your proposals?"

Mr. Hughes resumed his seat.

At this stage the adjournment was moved, but the motion was lost. A motion that the question be put was carried.

The motion by the St. Leonards P.L.L. was then put and lost by 99 votes against 60, amid great cheering. The second motion was also lost.

Conference then adjourned.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

A welcome was accorded Alderman Gurr, of South Australia, who captured a seat for Labour in the city of Adelaide at the last State election.

Notice of motion was given by the delegate of the Printing Trades Council to the effect that the Public Service Act should be so amended that absolute preference to unionists should be given to all new appointments in the Public Service of the State.

The vacant secretaryship of the executive to be caused by the retirement of Mr. J. Grant, now a Senator, will be contested by the following:—Messrs. J. F. Burke, P. C. Evans, D. Guinea, A. Rae, G. J. Sinclair, and T. Slade.

Notice of motion was given suggesting that the system of boarding out State children to farmers should be discontinued.

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

NEXT SESSION.

MR. FISHER AND PREMIERS' CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

To-morrow week when the Federal Parliament meets there will be no speech by the Governor-General, and, consequently, no Address-in-Reply. Parliament adjourned on its own motion at the conclusion of last session.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Fisher, will first make a statement to the House covering what has taken place while Parliament has been in recess. The statement will deal with the finances of the Commonwealth, the war and Australia's contributions in men and equipment, and will, in fact, deal with all that has happened during the intervening period. The statement will also contain an outline of the business for the session, including matters connected with the tariff.

So far as arrangements have been completed it is intended to hold the forthcoming Premiers' conference in Sydney, but definite answers from each of the Premiers have yet to be received as to whether that place of meeting will prove suitable or otherwise. In the meantime Mr. Fisher, who has also been invited to the conference, is communicating with the Prime Minister of New Zealand, Mr. Massey, asking him to be present. There are many matters which it is necessary should be discussed between representatives of the Commonwealth and the Dominion of New Zealand, and in which the States are also directly and indirectly interested.

After his recent visit to New Zealand Mr. Fisher is anxious that representatives of New Zealand should visit the Commonwealth more frequently, and he thinks that the time of the conference would be a suitable one at which to ask Mr. Massey to be present. If Mr. Massey does consent to come to Australia then Sydney as the meeting place for the conference would not be suitable. The Federal Parliament would be sitting, and Mr. Fisher would probably find it inconvenient to make any extended stay in Sydney, as the finances of the States are now, to some extent, bound up with the Commonwealth, and details of further loans are among the chief subjects to be discussed. It will be necessary for Mr. Fisher to be constantly present at the conference. It is understood that Mr. Fisher will probably make direct representations to the Premiers on the subject of the place of meeting.

DR. THRING'S RETURN.

SIX MONTHS AT THE FRONT.

"WAR OVER BY AUGUST."

PERTH, Tuesday.

Dr. Thring, who had charge of the surgical ward of the Australian voluntary hospital, which has been operating in the north of France almost since the beginning of the war, is a passenger by the Maloja, which arrived from London this afternoon. Dr. Thring put in about six months at the front, and is now returning in order to arrange matters in connection with his own practice in Sydney. He hopes to be able to return to the front in a few months' time—that is, if the war is not over by that time.

"From what I could gather from some British staff officers, I am inclined to believe that the war will not last beyond August," he said. "That seems to be the opinion of quite a number of well-informed and competent men in the British army with whom I came in contact. Looking at the matter dispassionately, one cannot see how Germany is going to last much longer, in view of the tremendous economical pressure which is being brought against her. Although she may not be actually short of food supplies, she must soon run short of munitions and horses."

Referring to the developments in the Dardanelles, Dr. Thring said that it was generally felt that the Allies would be successful in taking Constantinople before long. This would be of great advantage to the Allies, as it would enable England to obtain a free supply of wheat from Russia, and would also enable Russia to obtain a plentiful supply of munitions.

Alluding to the work of the Australian hospital, Dr. Thring said that the splendid work performed by the unit had been favourably commented upon by the authorities. Most of the voluntary hospitals had been placed under Red Cross authorities, but the Australian was still administered from the War Office. When he left it had accommodation for about 200, but, should circumstances arise, it is not unlikely it would be increased to 500 or even a thousand.

THE HOSPITALS.

ADMINISTRATION DEFENDED.

The Minister for Public Health, Mr. Flowers, made the following reply to a letter signed "Citizen," in a recent issue of the "Herald," criticising the administration of the hospitals, and pointing out that the repeated references to nationalisation were militating against public subscriptions.

"My first impression is that, 'Citizen's' letter—to use his own words—'indicates a deplorable lack of perspective and wisdom' upon the part of 'Citizen.' It is not so long ago that the 'Medical Journal of Australia,' which is the official organ of the medical profession, gave what amounts to a general endorsement of my public health policy. Naturally I attach some importance to that.

"'Citizen' shows up his ignorance to disadvantage in making the statement that the Government discourages private contributions to hospitals, and encourages well-to-do people to go there. We welcome gladly all public subscriptions, but, at the same time, don't believe in going cap in hand to beg. That would be just as degrading as putting up the sign over all hospital doors 'None but the very poor need apply here.' That is evidently what 'Citizen' wants, and I am not going to permit it to be done; especially as the State provides, roughly, three-fourths of the funds used by the hospitals, which to that extent are nationalised already. As I have said before, there are mean people everywhere; and a few of these will always take advantage of the hospitals, no matter what precautions are taken. But, on the other hand, there are people with refinement of feeling in the community whose restricted means do not enable them to pay private fees. Such people would rather suffer and die than submit to attending a hospital under the extremely inhospitable and uncharitable conditions present in the mind of 'Citizen.' There is such a thing as false charity, as well as false pride. I have no time for either, and it affords me some pleasure to reflect that I have not worked in vain to dispel what is sometimes falsely called charity and substitute something better.

"As to the establishment of a State drug factory, this will be based on the recommendation of the Hospitals' Advisory Board. Perhaps 'Citizen' does not know of the existence of this. It is composed of the secretaries of the big metropolitan hospitals whose scheme I am now considering. He had better have a talk to one of them about it, and try to set himself right.

POLISH FUND.

Arrangements have been completed for the meeting to be held at the Queen Victoria Club on Friday afternoon to form a committee to establish a fund for the relief of distress in Poland. The Chief Justice, Sir William Cullen, will preside, and the speakers will include the Primate, Archbishop Wright, Mr. Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., Mr. George Earp, M.L.C., Mr. T. A. Welch (Imperial Russian Consul), and Miss Czbykowska.

GIFT OF MOTOR AMBULANCE.

Mr. H. J. Preston has presented a motor ambulance to the British Red Cross Society, and has enlisted as the driver of the ambulance on the battlefields of Europe for a period of 12 months. He left Sydney a few days ago for Melbourne, where he joined the R.M.S. Malwa for London.

His son, Mr. R. G. Preston, who is travelling by the same steamer, has enlisted with King Edward's Horse.

BELGIUM.

NATIONAL FUND.

There was a falling-off in the receipts of the National Belgian Fund yesterday. During the past six days the necessary £1000 per day has been well maintained.

The Minister for Works, Mr. Cann, yesterday declared that the executive had every reason to feel pleased with the progress that had been made. "The magnitude of the task imposed on New South Wales of finding £1000 per day is sufficient," Mr. Cann said, "to show that if we are to succeed we want the help of everyone—rich man and working man alike. The call of the Belgian nation in her hour of extremity is one which not only touches the heart by its pathos, but it touches our honour closely; and this is a case in which a man can fairly give more than he can afford. The pinch of sacrifice will not hurt us. When we consider that the Belgians have sacrificed literally their all, and in our battle, what little pecuniary help we can give them will surely be rendered freely and readily."

Messrs. Hunter and Beavis, joint honorary secretaries, Challis House, Sydney, acknowledge the receipt on 6th instant of the amounts mentioned hereunder:—

BELGIAN CLOTHING FUND.

Mr. Balthasar, Consul for Belgium, has received from Mr. Davignon, Belgian Minister for the Foreign Office at Le Havre, and from the Comte de Lalaing, Belgian Minister in London, letters asking him to communicate to the ladies of New South Wales who have given their valuable support to the Belgian Clothing Fund the expression of sincere gratitude and thankful feelings of the Government of King Albert, and of all the Belgians, to whom the gifts have helped to soften their sufferings and privations.

He also takes this opportunity to let the public know that fully £20,000 worth of goods have been shipped home in connection with the Belgian Clothing Fund in Sydney. Mr. Balthasar regrets having to inform the Sydney public that the shipment of clothing per steamer Afric, which left here some six months ago, has been destroyed by fire, but fortunately the goods were insured to the extent of £2490, which amount has been handed to the Belgian Relief Fund in London.

The total shipments from the George-street Clothing Depot have been 242 bales, 25 cases, and 83 bundles; and from the Elizabeth-street depot 42 bales and 27 cases. These shipments are exclusive of very large quantity of clothing that has been shipped by Messrs. Farmer and Co.

The total subscriptions to the Clothing Fund at the George-street Depot amount to about £550. This amount has been used for the purchase of material for making clothing for the Belgians. The principal subscribers were:—The McArthur Shipping and Agency Company, £25; Mr. and Mrs. H. Jefferson, £7 7s; Girls' High School, Fort-street, £8 8s; Girls' Infant School, Elizabeth-street, £2 5s 3d; M. J. S. White, £5 5s; Mrs. Bannei, £1 8s; Matinee Geo. Willoughby's Company, Adelphi Theatre, £28 14s; half proceeds Glebe Patriotic Concert, £10 9s; Nurses' Home, Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, Camperdown, £3 11s; concert given by Miss Tilson, Glebe Point, £4 12s 6d; collection at performance at Muswellbrook by Mrs. E. R. White, £22; donation of a gold chain by Mrs. Robertson, £25; donation of a gold chain by Miss Davies, £5; collection box by Miss M'Leod, £5; donation of fowls through Miss Farmer, £5 0s 6d; donation of a doll by Mrs. Banter, £5 5s; material purchased, proceeds concert, North Sydney, per Miss D. Penfold, collected by Mrs. Turnbull, £125 4s; from the War Chest worth of material, £50; other subscriptions, £150.

The balance of subscription, not spent, from the Belgian Clothing Fund, of 255A George-street, amounting to £169 9s 10d, which has been transferred to the Belgian Fund, 14 Castlereagh-street.

ELECTIONS FIXED FOR MAY.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Election day has been fixed for May 22.

LATE MR. E. L. RUTLEDGE.

Mr. Edward Lloyd Rutledge died on Sunday, at the Commercial Bank, Oxford-street, of which he had been manager for 22 years. Previous to coming to Sydney he had been bank manager at Moss Vale, Warren, Camden, and Grafton. Mr. Rutledge had only complained of illness on Friday last. He was the elder son of the late Mr. Lloyd Rutledge, and was born 61 years ago, at Port Fairy, Victoria. He leaves a widow.

Mr. Rutledge was well known in commercial circles. He was a member of the Australian Golf Club, the Union Club, and the Australian Jockey Club.

Canon Beck, of St. John's, conducted the funeral service at the Waverley Cemetery yesterday. The chief mourners were Mr. Percy Rutledge (brother), Mr. Eric Lloyd Rutledge (nephew), Dr. E. H. Rutledge, Messrs. P. Rutledge (Gidley, Bungendore), E. W. Knox (Colonial Sugar Refining Company), Adrian Knox, K.C., T. F. Knox, F. W. A. Downes (cousins), P. Denne (brother-in-law). Others present were—Messrs. Hugh H. Massie, M. Grant, Platt (representing the Commercial Banking Company, Sydney), Captain Pascoe, F. A. Campbell (Duntroon), F. W. Stoddart (Robert Reid and Co.), A. E. Allan (Savings Bank of New South Wales), H. H. B. Bradley, Dr. Maxwell Allen, Captain Wray, Messrs. Augustus Hooke (Tia Station), Charles Foster, C. R. Walsh (Prothonotary), F. W. Walsh (Parliamentary Library), and Alister McDougall.

ROMAN CATHOLICS AND THE WAR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Archbishop Kelly recently caused great umbrage to many Protestants by reason of his sneering remarks about the Book which Protestants treasure above all other books, and concluded by saying that "he would not touch it with a forty-foot pole."

Now, let me ask the Archbishop a few plain questions. How is it that the men who read and who reverence the Holy Bible as the Word of God are the men who are going to the front to fight for their country and to avenge the foul wrong done to Belgium? The Protestants are doing the work not only for their own country but for Belgium as well. Recent statistics show that about 84 per cent. of the men enlisting in England are Protestants, and about 85 per cent. of the Australians are Protestants.

Now, is this a fair thing? The Archbishop congratulates the Hibernians and the members of the Holy Catholic Guilds on their progress. He gives a great deal of praise to the Belgians, but he does not exhort his young men to enlist and to serve their country in the ranks of the fighters for the liberties of their country.

In plain words, it is the Roman Catholic young men who are the shirkers, and it is up to the Roman Catholic priesthood to use their influence to see that the stigma is removed.

The men who read the Bible are the men who are loyal to their country's call and are going to the front. They have been taught out of that Book the duty they owe to their fellow-men as well as to their Maker and to their King, and it is to the disgrace of the Roman Catholic young men of Australia that they are not responding in proportion to their numbers to the call to defend their nation and to avenge the wrongs done to the Roman Catholic Church in Belgium. If they do not wish to be branded as shirkers they will see to it that this state of things is altered.

Who is to avenge the wrongs done to the nuns of Belgium? Who is to bring the slaughterers of the priests to account for their butcheries? Oh, let those poor Protestants do the work. Those Bible-readers, poor, misguided men, are good enough for the task. But the Church can spare none of her flock. Let Archbishop Kelly and his followers ponder some of these questions, and out of common decency refrain from stirring up sectarian strife at the present juncture.

I am, etc., F.W.

April 6.

SIR FRANCIS SUTTOR

STATE FUNERAL.

A LARGE GATHERING.

The funeral of the late Sir Francis Suttor, President of the Legislative Council, took place yesterday. Sir Francis was accorded a State funeral, and the great esteem in which he was held by all sections of the community was shown by the large attendance at the service at St. Mark's Church and at the graveside.

The service at St. Mark's was conducted by the Archbishop of Sydney, assisted by the Rev. E. H. Lea, rector of St. Mark's, the Rev. S. E. Wiseman, assistant priest at St. Mark's, and the Rev. Stacy Waddy, headmaster of the King's School. A short address was delivered by Dr. Wright. He said:—"We mourn to-day one whom we can ill spare. Sir Francis Suttor has played a great and honoured part in our community through the whole of his long life, and we miss him now that he is gone. A distinguished figure has passed from our midst. We think of him in the Public service of the State. He has given the best years of a long career to public work and public office. He has been called to fill many parts. For many years he has been the respected President of the Legislative Council, and he has adorned every post he filled. He was manly and straightforward, with a lofty integrity, and gracing all that he did with an old-time courtesy.

"He has established a great tradition for those who come after. As a church warden he has been a loyal and faithful son of the Church, ready to spend himself in advancing its welfare. For many years he was chairman of committees in the Synod of the Diocese of Bathurst, and repeatedly he would make the journey from Sydney at great inconvenience to discharge his duties. More than this, we whose privilege it was to know him personally miss him as a friend. He had a genius for friendship. He was always genial, considerate, and kindly. It pained him even to differ from friends, but he never permitted differences to abate friendship. We are thankful that he died in harness. It was what he would have wished. A long wearing illness would have been a grievous trial to his active, indomitable spirit. By the mercy of God he was spared that suffering.

"It is for us who remain to endeavour to follow in his good example, devoting our powers to the service of others, as he did, and in his spirit. We pray that God will comfort those who mourn him, and give them the full consolation of Jesus Christ, who is the resurrection and the life. Sir Francis Suttor passed away on Easter Day. May the Easter peace be with them and comfort them."

After the service the funeral procession was formed, and proceeded to the South Head cemetery, where the remains were interred in the family vault. The chief mourners were:—Mr. P. W. Suttor (son), Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Suttor (son and daughter-in-law), Mr. R. B. Suttor (son), Mr. and Mrs. Consett Stephen (son-in-law and daughter), Mr. and Mrs. R. Collum (son-in-law and daughter), Miss Suttor (daughter), Messrs. George Suttor, Herbert C. Suttor, Horace Suttor, A. Bruce Suttor, G. R. Suttor, Norman L. The hearse was preceded by an escort of mounted police under Inspector Mills. The band of the National Rifle Reserve, under Bandmaster O'Brien, also attended, and played the "Dead March" in "Saul," Chopin's "Funeral March," and Dykes's "Funeral Hymn." The service at the graveside was carried out by the Archbishop (Dr. Wright), assisted by the Rev. E. H. Lea, rector of St. Mark's.

The Court of Quarter Sessions yesterday adjourned till 2 p.m. as a token of respect to the late Sir Francis Suttor. Judge Docker, in adjourning the Court, said that he [illegible] Sir Francis Suttor [illegible], and they had always remained close friends.

SCHOOL BOARDS.

MINISTER'S NEW IDEA.

WORK OF PARENTS.

The third annual conference of the Parents and Citizens' Associations was opened last evening at the Turner Hall, Technical College, the president (Mr. J. W. Hill) being in the chair.

It was stated in the annual report that representations had been made to the Minister with regard to cigarette-smoking by young boys, the extension of kindergarten teaching, the establishment of hostels for the accommodation of all bursars and scholars compelled to reside away from home, the more liberal treatment of country centres by the University Extension Board, and many other matters.

The hon. secretary (Mr. J. C. Eldridge) read a number of apologies for unavoidable absence, including one from the Minister for Education (Mr. Griffith), who was to have opened the conference. In his communication the Minister expressed high appreciation of the work the associations were doing, and stated that he proposed to utilise their energy and interest in the future to a far greater extent than had been possible in the past, and for this purpose he was prepared to readjust matters so that the executive officers of the various associations should be an effective school board.

Mr. Peter Board (Director of Education) explained the powers and functions which the Minister proposed to give the associations. The Minister, he said, felt that the parents of children attending schools were the persons most directly interested in their efficiency, and was convinced that the conferring of wide statutory powers upon the associations would materially strengthen the hands of the department in dealing with the important subject of the education of the rising generation. The school boards had been established 30 years ago, and for a while had maintained a certain degree of efficiency, but for many years past the large majority of them had done nothing, partly because they considered that there was nothing to do. There were over 200 boards in the State, and with the exception of one or two they might be said to be inoperative. The failure of the boards was in part attributable to the fact that they were nominated bodies, holding their positions indefinitely, and in many cases they had got out of touch with school life. The Minister desired to see the boards revived on an elective basis, and his idea was that each of the Parents' Associations should select and elect from its own members annually an executive of three, and on these being nominated the Minister would be prepared to constitute them a school board for the particular district concerned. (Applause.) They would thus still retain the provision of the Act, but give it a vitality that it did not at present possess. (Applause.)

The chairman said that this was a very satisfactory announcement. The relations between the associations and the department had always been of a most cordial character, and the department had always shown a desire to meet their wishes in every possible way.

Mr. Meredith Atkinson (Director of Tutorial Classes at the University) delivered an address on "The Meaning of Progress."

INVALIDS FROM EGYPT.

ARRIVALS BY MALOJA.

PERTH, Tuesday.

On board the Maloja, which arrived this afternoon, are 50 members of the Australian Expeditionary Force, who have been invalided home. Accompanying them is a guard of 10 men, under Lieutenant Ireland. The men are anxious it shall be known that they have not been sent back for misbehaviour, but simply on account of sickness.

According to the Rev. Pitt Owen, who went over with one of the contingents as chaplain, and who is returning to Sydney by the Maloja, the majority of the men had been found to be physically incapable to withstand the strenuous work of campaigning, and their behaviour on board had been all that could be desired. A guard had been sent back with them, but that was done at the request of the captain of the Maloja. At first it was intended to send them back without even an officer, but in response to the captain's request it had been decided to send a guard.

STREET AFFRAY.

MAN DIES FROM INJURIES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A street disturbance at the corner of Cardigan and Victoria streets, Carlton, last night, in which two men, William Hawke, 21, and James Gregory, 55, were belaboured with pickets, has resulted in the death of Gregory from a fractured skull.

Hawke and Gregory took one side in an argument against other men in an hotel. At 11.30 p.m. Hawke and Gregory went away together, and at the corner of Cardigan-street stood talking. Two men, it is alleged, sprang from behind and struck at them, rendering them unconscious. The police arrived and conveyed both men to the Melbourne Hospital. Gregory, who lives in Drummond-street, Carlton, died to-day from his injuries.

Detective Bannon and Constable McCaffrey have interviewed Hawke, and it is expected that arrests will follow to-night.

BOILER BURSTS.

A ROOF BLOWN EIGHTY YARDS.

WEST MAITLAND, Tuesday.

Great excitement was caused in Greta today by the report of an explosion, which occurred in the engine-room of Central Greta colliery about midday. One of the set of three boilers was blown bodily out of its bed, taking with it the roof of the building, which it landed 80 yards away.

Fortunately, no one was injured. The damage is estimated at fully £1000.

FORTY SHEEP DROWNED.

PARKES, Tuesday.

Considerable damage to fencing was done by the recent storms in the district. Fences which had weathered the storms of a generation were washed away. The railway line at Nanardine siding, on the Peak Hill line, was flooded, and a large tank close to the siding, the catchment area of which was reduced to five acres by the construction of the line, was half filled. Messrs. Skinner Bros. had 40 sheep depasturing in a small paddock, and all were drowned.

PILOT CENSURED.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The Marine Board to-day gave its finding with regard to the grounding of the steamer Cyrena, on Twin Reef, on February 28.

The board was of opinion that the pilot exhibited want of care in attempting to navigate past Home Islands during such weather that land-marks could not be distinguished, and in disregard of Queensland sailing directions, which draw attention to the prudence of anchoring under conditions obtaining at the time of the accident. The board, therefore, considered that the pilot was deserving of severe censure, and he was censured accordingly.

STATE POLICY.

The following resolution carried by the Glen Innes Branch of the P.L.L. was handed to the press by Mr. Hickey, the secretary of the Parliamentary Labour party:—

"That the Glen Innes Branch of the P.L.L. expresses its entire confidence in the State Government, and emphatically declines to endorse the arrogant attitude adopted towards the Ministry, and particularly the Premier, by various Labour bodies and a section of the Labour press."

LAND FOR SOLDIERS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Mahon) is considering a scheme under which soldiers, when the war is concluded, may be induced to settle in the Northern Territory.

Mr. Mahon said the Northern Territory might attract some of these soldiers.

R.M.S. MOREA.

The quarantine authorities stated last night that, all being well, the R.M.S. Morea will be released from quarantine at about 2 o'clock to-day. Five first-class and nine second-class passengers will, however, remain in quarantine.

WHITE CHAMPION.

AFTER SIX YEARS.

JOHNSON KNOCKED OUT.

WILLARD'S WIN.

HAVANA, April 5.

Jess Willard defeated Jack Johnson in the twenty-sixth round of a contest for the world's heavyweight championship.

A crowd of 15,000 was present. The day broke dull, but the sun was shining brightly when the contest commenced. Both men were greeted with prolonged applause. The event was postponed for half an hour, owing to the officials forgetting the gong.

Round 1.—Johnson feinted and landed his left on Willard's jaw. He delivered repeated uppercuts with his right to Willard's jaw. Willard drove two lefts to the negro's body. Johnson drove his right to Willard's body.

Round 2.—Johnson neatly blocked Willard's leads, scoring a right and left to the jaw. He then hooked a left to the stomach, but Willard only laughed. The negro drove Willard to the ropes, and delivered a tattoo of lefts on the face.

Round 3.—Johnson rushed in and scored a left to the body and right to the jaw. Willard's lip was now bleeding. Willard scored a left on Johnson's nose.

Round 4.—The negro smashed hard blows to Willard's ribs, and drove three hard punches to the stomach. The champion rushed Willard to the ropes, scoring head and body blows. Willard was badly distressed and rattled, and looked like an amateur.

Round 6.—The negro beat Willard to the ropes with a fusilade of lefts. He rubbed Willard's cut lip at every opportunity. He landed three blows on Willard's unprotected body. At the bell, Johnson was hammering hard body blows, and Willard's left cheek was cut.

Round 7.—Johnson, using every artifice to force the fighting, rushed Willard to the ropes, slugging with both hands repeatedly. Willard's long left temporarily blinded the negro's left eye, but Johnson came back with a series of swings to the body. It was a clean fight so far.

Round 8.—Willard, gaining confidence, tried forcing the pace. Johnson accepted the challenge, and both battered each other across the ring, neither getting the better of matters. Willard landed one on Johnson's mouth. Johnson uppercut Willard over the heart. Willard bounced to the ropes, and landed his left to the jaw. The round ended with the negro swinging blows to Willard's head.

Round 9.—Willard assumed the aggressive. The champion landed frequent blows, which appeared to lack their oldtime force. Johnson started a rally, driving three hard blows to the stomach. A left started the negro's mouth bleeding. Later, he drove the white man to the ropes.

Round 10.—Johnson was slow coming from his corner. Willard scored two left-handed blows to the face. The negro swung his left to the ribs, and delivered half-a-dozen blows to the body and jaw. A hard right staggered Willard.

Round 11.—The crowd derided Johnson, who, while fighting, answered the sallies at the same time. Willard drove his left to the mouth, and took a right hook to the body in return. Johnson tried to annoy Willard by talking loudly.

Round 12 consisted chiefly of clinches, in which Johnson drove heavy, smashing blows to his opponent's body, but with apparently little result. Willard's ear and cheek were bleeding.

Round 13.—Johnson played continuously on Willard's stomach. Then Willard drove Johnson to his corner, and landed repeatedly on his face.

Round 14.—Johnson was beginning to miss his leads. Good exchanges took place, but Willard was laughing at Johnson's efforts.

Round 15.—Johnson rushed Willard to the ropes, with heavy body blows.

Round 16.—Johnson again scored, beating Willard to the ropes.

Round 17.—Willard took the lead, getting home heavily on Johnson's body.

Round 18.—The negro smashed his opponent heavily on the jaw and head.

Round 19.—Both men were showing the effects of the fighting, and there were slower rallies with light interchanges.

Round 20.—The crowd frantically cheered Willard when he landed several blows on the body, obviously distressing Johnson.

Rounds 21, 22, 23, and 24 degenerated into a slow punching fight, in which there was little apparent effect achieved.

Round 25.—Both were going well, but were weak in clinches. Slams with the right and left by Willard effectively stopped Johnson's aggressiveness.

Finally, Willard, in the 26th round, smashed Johnson with a terrific right swing on the jaw, and knocked the negro out.

The crowd rushed the ring, threatening Johnson.

Soldiers were needed to clear the mob and protect the boxers.

[Johnson was considerably past the age usually considered a boxer's prime when he met defeat, having just turned 37. He held the title for a period of over six years, having won it from Tommy Burns, in Sydney, on December 26, 1908. His ring career extends over a period of nearly 15 years, and the fact that the contest was not limited to 20 rounds, like most championship bouts, must have made youth and stamina a more important factor in the struggle than otherwise. No champion under modern conditions has retained his title when over 37 years of age, and, according to the record books, Fitzsimmons was the same age when beaten by Jeffries as was Johnson when beaten by Willard. John L. Sullivan was 34 when he was beaten by the more youthful Corbett, while Jeffries was 35 when he returned to the ring to be beaten by Johnson in 1910. Johnson had only once before been knocked out, Joe Choynski effecting this in 1901, when the big negro was a comparative novice.

Jess Willard, the new champion, is a man of magnificent physique and stamina. He is 6ft 6in tall, and weighs 16st 6lb. He is 28 years of age. Johnson is 6ft 0½in in height, and probably weighed a stone and a half less than Willard.]

CORBETT'S OPINION.

AN ESTIMATE OF WILLARD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

"The result does not surprise me in the least," said J. J. Corbett, the one-time holder of the championship, who is in Melbourne. "On the other hand," he continued, "it would have not surprised me if Johnson had won. However, I had thought that he would soon meet a better man, for I felt that he was not living as a champion should. It is essential that one should lead a clean life if one expects to win the championship and hold it. It is only now by reading through the report of the fight that one can realise how Johnson's staying power has diminished. He followed his old tactics of nursing his opponent in the ring, but Willard is not a man to be fooled in that way. It is clear that Johnson wore himself out early, and that Willard took his own time in finishing him. Four years ago Willard came into my dressing-room in Chicago and asked me to take him into my care. I told him that my vaudeville engagements prevented me from training anyone. I could not help admiring his wonderful physique. He is a big, slow fellow, but so enormous in height and weight that a blow which ordinarily would knock a man out affects him hardly at all. This is what helped Jeffries in so many of his fights. Corbett was knocked out by Jeffries in 23 rounds at Coney Island in May, 1900. It was impossible to hit him hard enough to hurt him.

"Willard is most popular with those who know him. He never loses his temper, and when he receives a hard punch he laughs in his own quiet way. Those that were well up in the game in America will not be surprised at Willard's victory, but to the general public it will be a revelation. To them Willard is no better known than any other good heavyweight, but he has, I know, prepared himself well for his fight. I said before I left America that the sporting world might well prepare for a big surprise, and now the thing has happened."

CRICKETER'S SUICIDE.

DEATH OF MR. A. E. STODDART.

LONDON, April 5.

The "Echo" states that the wife of Mr. A. E. Stoddart, the well-known cricketer, who was captain of two representative teams to Australia, discovered that her husband had committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver in a bedroom in London. It is stated that deceased was in financial difficulties.

At the inquest, deceased's widow gave evidence to the effect that Stoddart resigned the secretaryship of the Queen's Club owing to nervous breakdown. He had been out of work since, and was very depressed. He lost money through the war. Late on Saturday night he took a pistol from his pocket and said he was "going to finish it." His wife advised him to consult some friends. She had a slight struggle with him, and secured the pistol. She returned it, as it was unloaded; but she took a box of cartridges from him. Later she found him dead in bed, and afterwards found he had another box of cartridges.

Medical evidence showed that Stoddart was on the verge of pneumonia, which had increased his depression.

A verdict of suicide was returned.

Andrew Ernest Stoddart was born on March 11, 1863. He was a fine all-round athlete, but he was pre-eminent at Rugby football and cricket, having represented England in both games. As a cricketer he was one of the finest amateur batsmen of his time. Stoddart first visited Australia in 1887-8 as a member of the late G. F. Vernon's team, his batting average being 22 runs per innings. After the tour Stoddart remained behind to play with the first team of English Rugby Union footballers that visited Australia.

Stoddart was a member of Lord Sheffield's team (1891-2) and he captained the next two teams that came out, in 1894-5 and 1897-8 respectively. In 1891-2 he scored 134 in the third test at Adelaide, and in 1894-5 he scored 173 in the second test at Melbourne. In all he scored 996 runs for England against Australia at an average of 34.34 runs per innings. In August, 1886, he made the huge score of 485 for Hampstead v. Stoics; this is the fourth highest individual score on record. At one time he was a member of the London Stock Exchange, and latterly was secretary of the Queen's Club, London.

The report of the above company covers the 12 months ended January 31. It shows a gross profit of £6281, which, with £7455 brought forward, made £13,739 available. After providing for depreciation, etc., there was a balance of £6585. A dividend of 5 per cent. is recommended. The directors regard the result of the year's trading as highly satisfactory, and the finances of the company are on a sound footing. The shareholders met yesterday, when Mr. R. W. S. Harris presided. The report and balance-sheet were adopted, and Mr. W. J. Harding re-elected a director, and Messrs. David Fell and Co. auditors.

BRIBING BULGARIA.

GERMAN LOANS.

Does the juggle by which German and Austrian banks—for they are all in it, although the Disconto-Gesellschaft is the nominal leader—are lending money to Bulgaria mean that its Government is the other ally of the German Emperor in the Balkans; that it is to make common cause with the Turk? asks the "Investors' Review." Probably, unless the Bulgarian people rise and turn the Coburger and his gang adrift. They sold Bulgaria to the Prussians last year, when Tsar Ferdinand and his minions arranged for the loan of £20,000,000, a £6,000,000 instalment of which, partly now evident, is to be "paid." The transaction was arranged so as to place the life and labour of the Bulgarians at the mercy of the Prussian concessionaires; rights to initiate and develop industries, construct railways, build factories, etc., were bestowed at the expense of the Bulgarian people and for the benefit of the lending bankers and capitalists. No money was to pass, or next to none. The transaction was arranged on the well-known usage of the tailor who first supplies a customer with a new suit and then lends him the money to pay for it at interest more or less usurious. "We execute so many 'notes' and you issue so many bonds tying you down to furnish so much annual interest," etc. Apparently the Germans have been doing things, building fortresses and supplying ammunition probably, with here and there a bit of strategic railway, and want to get paid by selling Bulgarian bonds to the investor. Hence the present transaction, and we should not be surprised at all were the Bulgarian people to repudiate the whole imposition, together with the people who snared them into it. They had better, else there will be no place left for them among the Powers in the Balkans when the terms of final peace have to be settled.

WAR PENSIONS.

The actuarial estimate of the war pensions and allowances as presented to the House of Commons was that the cost, extending over the whole period, would be no less than 346 millions sterling, as compared with an estimate of 202 millions sterling prepared in November last, when, of course, the individual allowances were at much lower rates. The maximum yearly expenditure, it is now said, will amount to a little over 13 million pounds.

ASSETS IN LIQUIDATION.

A correspondent writes:—

Sir,—If a banking institution suspends payment, goes into liquidation, or reconstructs, in what priority and proportion do the following creditors have claim against the assets of the company: 1. A customer with money to his credit on current account? 2. A customer with money placed at fixed deposit? 3. A person holding shares in the company?

1 and 2 stand in an equal footing as ordinary unsecured creditors. 3 would get nothing till all creditors, that is, depositors and other creditors, were satisfied in full.

THE WOOL EMBARGO.

WHAT BROUGHT IT ABOUT.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS FROM U.S.A.

Possibly one of the most notable commercial developments of the war has been its effect upon the Australian wool trade. Early in the season Great Britain announced her determination, if possible, to prevent Germany from getting any wool from the Dominions. This was supplemented by direct action by Australia, New Zealand, India, and Cape Colony, so that early in October a general embargo on shipments of wool to the United States was in force in all of these colonies, as well as in the United Kingdom. This was a matter for long and wearisome negotiations between the United States Government and England, supplemented by the determined efforts of wool importers in the United States and shippers in London and Australia.

After a tiresome wait of three months' duration, these negotiations were in such condition as warranted the hope that the bars had at last been definitely let down, and that importers into the United States who could be depended on not to allow their wool to go to Germany would be able to get their purchases shipped. This arrangement proved to be fairly workable in Australia, and some heavy shipments were made via Vancouver and San Francisco. At least three steamers were chartered, and two were loaded with wool to come to Boston direct, via the Panama canal. Financial and commercial arrangements were completed to meet all the requirements of the colonial authorities regarding bonds, importers, and ultimate consumers.

Apparently, every possible safeguard had been thrown around the business to prevent any of the Australian merinos filtering through to the German mills. While matters were at this promising stage and shipments were being made from Australia to the United States in constantly-increasing quantities, the situation was, however, complicated anew, as a Boston correspondent of "Bradstreets" informs us, by the despatch to Bremen of two American steamers with substantial shipments of wool. Not much attention was paid the Carolyn, which sailed in December with 277,000 pounds of domestic wool, but when this was supplemented in January by the steamer J. L. Luckenbach, with over 2,900,000 pounds of wool, there was a sharp change in the situation.

The embargo was placed in force again, more rigidly than ever. Interested parties called attention to the fact that the wool shipped was entirely a domestic product, that the vessels carrying it were under the American flag, and that the shippers and all parties concerned were well within their rights as neutrals, as wool was not contraband. On the other hand, it was pointed out that the needs of the New England mills were by no means so pressing as had been represented, or so large a volume of wool would not have been allowed to go out of the country. Therefore, no more wool could come from Australia, if its sole office was to make up for the deficiency caused by shipment of domestic wool to Germany.

This was the situation until the Textile Alliance entered into the field. This is an incorporated body, originally formed as a voluntary committee to fight alleged frauds in the foreign dyestuffs trade, and later continued with a permanent organisation to prevent undervaluations in the importations of foreign manufactured goods and to secure for the American mills much-needed supplies of dyestuffs. This latter feature proved its special efficiency, for under its auspices cargoes of dyestuffs were secured and brought to the United States.

The negotiations which finally brought the Alliance into its present position as the wool censor of all Australian and English wool importers appear to have been conducted with such a measure of secrecy that few, even among those most directly affected, had an inkling of what was going on. Apparently it was the purpose to withhold particulars until all the details of the scheme had been completed. Australia made the matter public prematurely, cables to interested Boston parties announcing that hereafter shipments of wool were not to be allowed unless they were consigned to the Textile Alliance.

When this fact became known, sharp opposition was aroused and strong protests were made to Washington and to the British and Colonial authorities. Thus far these protests do not seem to have had any perceptible effect. According to the latest official statements, the British Board of Trade, "in so far as the requirements of Great Britain and allied countries may allow, will grant licenses to export merino wool tops, noils, and black-face wool to the United States of America, if consignment is made in accordance with an agreement entered into with the Alliance." As to this agreement, notice has been given in London to intending shippers, and presumably the same is true of Australia, that consignments of wool will be received by the Alliance and held at the shipper's risk until delivery has been taken by destinatories. Before deliveries destinatories must give satisfactory undertakings to the head of the Alliance in such manner as he may from time to time prescribe. As to the disposal of wool, it is understood that wool so consigned shall not be released in the United States of America by him until undertakings previously approved by the British Ambassador shall be executed by recipients of wools. Licensees must understand that the granting of licenses does not necessarily assure the release of wool on arrival in the United States, and the Textile Alliance must be held harmless in the matter, and reserves the right to refuse release in its absolute discretion.

In accordance with this notice, legal forms for the "undertakings" called for have been furnished the Boston wool trade, and it is understood that such forms must be properly filled out, signed by principals, and approved as required, as a necessary condition before licenses will be granted, either in London or Australia for the shipment of merinos or black-face wool. Crossbreds are absolutely barred, and at no time has there been any chance of securing shipments of such wools.

JUTE CONTRACTS.

MR. SMITH'S RETURN.

Mr. W. R. Smith, of James Bell and Co., returned to Sydney on Sunday, after having successfully arranged a new and more equitable jute contract as between Calcutta shippers and Australian importers. Particulars of the contract have already been published in the "Herald."

"Clause 1 is the same mill clause as we incorporated in former contracts," said Mr. Smith yesterday, "with the exception that a notification of delay or probable delay must be sent to the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, as well as to the buyer. This is a distinct gain in so much, and buyers have now an independent party to whom to apply for particulars.

"Clause 2, which has regard to shipments, is a compromise, but as the shipping companies are now charging for all space which is booked—not only for space actually filled—the shippers will have no loophole through which to escape their responsibilities. They will make every effort to ship, for should they fail to do so they will have to pay both for the space and the penalties for shut out goods.

"Clause 3 defines the loss to the Calcutta shipper for defaulting. This is another advantage which has been secured.

"Clause 6 arranges the matter of interference by war or mobilisation. This is a clause which is embodied in contracts when purchases are made from Liverpool, and which has been adopted into this contract.

"Clause 7, which is the arbitration clause, seems to be more the bone of contention with buyers here than any other. The millowners called a special meeting of their committee to meet me and discuss matters. The question of arbitration was brought up, but they maintained that they would not allow anyone who was not an expert at the business to pass judgment or arbitrate in any dispute which might arise; and, as in Calcutta alone are these experts to be found, they refused to consent to arbitration, except in that centre. It has been mentioned that the various shippers have agents in Sydney or Melbourne, but it must be borne in mind that Sydney and Melbourne are not the only ports in Australia which receive jute goods from Calcutta, and in many ports the Calcutta manufacturer is not represented. Arbitration in Calcutta is conducted on the fairest possible lines, and anyone having a dispute with a Calcutta house can confidently place his case before the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, which appoints an arbitrator. The expense of the arbitration is borne by the loser, and when it is necessary to return a certain number of bales to Calcutta the expense of so doing is, of course, paid by the loser of the case. Many other parts of the world have pressed for arbitration at the port of destination, but in every instance the mills have held to the decision to adjudicate only at the port of shipment.

"Clause 9, in which it is stated that sellers are not liable for any loss arising out of the Australian Government's proclamation dated February 12, 1908, fixing the standard for cornsacks, is a stipulation made by the mills on their contracts when selling to the shippers, and the shippers consequently pass on this condition to their buyers. The difficulty could be got over as suggested by the Calcutta mills if the Commonwealth Government were to appoint inspectors at the port of shipment, charging a small fee for each consignment inspected."

Mr. Smith found that the time was ripe and the moment opportune for the consideration and arrangement of a universal contract. The new contract is universal in so much that, without exception, the whole of the shippers of Calcutta have signed an agreement, sealed by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, to sell only under the conditions mentioned in the contract. So satisfied are some of the Calcutta firms that they are adopting the contract for markets outside Australia. On the whole, Mr. Smith is satisfied with the result of his mission, and feels sure that the majority of traders in Australia will find that many causes of friction are now removed, and that trade will henceforth be on a more definite basis. At Mr. Smith's suggestion the whole of the Chambers of Commerce of Australia have been officially notified of the new contract by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce.

BUTTER PRICES.

ARE CO-OPERATIVE PRICES LOW?

MR. MEARES SAYS "YES."

Mr. C. E. D. Meares, general manager of the Coastal Farmers' Co-operative Society, writes:—

Sir,—In the absence of all the necessary facts, your sub-leader of Monday unwittingly does the co-operative movement a grave injustice.

In lieu of inflating values during the season from October to March, the leaders of this movement have consistently pursued an opposite course, so that consumers have not in any one particular been imposed upon.

In the "Herald" of January 26, there appeared a lengthy article, condemnatory of our refusal to raise values. In this the following comprehensive assertion was made:

"More than once we have pointed out the remarkable disparity that existed between the price of butter in this and other main centres of the Commonwealth. In Melbourne and Brisbane for several months butter was selling for more than in Sydney, the difference running from 4 to 6."

Again, in your issue of the 28th of the same month, the dairy expert, Mr. M. A. O'Callaghan, is reported as stating at Tamworth:

"As a matter of fact, judging by the London market now, the price of butter in Sydney could have been a penny higher, and still leave a handsome profit to the exporter."

Hereunder I give current prices ruling in all the States:—

New South Wales	124/
Victoria	140/
Queensland	112/

In the non-producing States of Western Australia, South Australia, and Tasmania prices are higher still.

In our letter to the Necessary Commodities Control Commission on the 31st March, the only reason given for the advance to 130/ was the following:

"In order to maintain Sydney supplies to meet local consumption, it is necessary to advance prices here to-morrow to 130."

And the fall to 124/ only aggravates the position.

Is Mr. Meares prepared to go to the country, and argue that one of the chief benefits that the butter factories are receiving from co-operative control of the market is that they are getting lower prices than they would obtain were the laws of supply and demand quite unrestrained? Has he been telling the cheese makers, whom he has been of late endeavouring to bring in under the co-operative wing, that one of the great advantages that he can hold out to them is that they will get lower prices than heretofore? If so, then he, indeed, deserves a bonus from the consuming public. The fact that on one occasion prices were low in no way excuses the fact that prices generally have been high, often far above a London parity.

124/ OR 126/, WHICH?

GROCERS CHARGED FOR BOXES AND CARTAGE.

There was great indignation amongst Sydney grocers yesterday, when they found that Sussex-street produce agents were not prepared to sell the best butter at the proclaimed price of 124/ per cwt. The proclamation fixing the prices stated: "The maximum selling price for butter shall be 124/ per cwt. for first grade, with the cost of transport added." No mention was made of boxes, and the agents contend that they are perfectly justified in charging 1/6 per cwt. for boxes, and 6d for cartage.

The grocers, however, take a serious view of the position, and the secretary of the New South Wales Retail Grocers' Association, Mr. E. F. New, yesterday afternoon addressed the following letter to the Attorney-General, Mr. D. R. Hall:—

"We notice from statements published in the daily press that the Government, by proclamation, has fixed the wholesale selling rates for first-grade butter at 124/ per cwt in Sydney. The selling agents state that despite this proclamation they are justified in charging an additional 2/ per cwt for boxes and cartage (1/6 for boxes and 6d for cartage) on the prices as fixed by law, and inform purchasers this morning that they intend to charge in this way, viz., 126/ per cwt.

"We wish to draw your attention to this action on the part of the selling agents, and respectfully ask for a decision from you as to whether they are justified in thus going beyond the commission's fixed price.

"We further wish to point out to you that from the introduction of this extra charge for boxes two years ago, the retailers have strenuously opposed what they consider an unfair imposition on the public, but as the selling agents combined and refused supplies—a circular to this effect was distributed to purchasers—unless the buyers agreed to pay the extra box charge, it was impossible to obtain supplies of butter in Sydney without paying this extra charge. The retailers were reluctantly compelled to do so, but always under protest. This statement can be verified from the columns of the 'Sydney Morning Herald' during March and April of 1913.

"We consider that the present is an opportune occasion for your commission to make a definite and legal pronouncement on the question, and thus protect the retailers against the combination of the selling agents, and further save the purchasing public from the extra unfair charge which has been passed on to them.

"In connection with this we wish to point out that of this 1/ charge for boxes 9d is said to go to the factory, and 3d to the selling agent. It is worked in connection with a new system of charging for deliveries, which the selling agents combined to initiate at the same time. This charge has been repeatedly claimed to be excessive, because the agents have been charging a great deal more to the buyer than were their actual out-of-pocket expenses. On the face of it, this system is unfair, opposed to the time-honoured custom of the trade, and is enforceable only by reason of the combination effected by the selling agents. The real reason for these increased charges is that the agents in their cut-throat competition for consignments have reduced their rates of commission so low that they cannot (they say) payably conduct their businesses, and so a flourishing and highly profitable industry that should bear its own reasonable marketing charges is released from its responsibilities, and the public as usual mulcted for their benefit. Both the box charge and the delivery charge should be abolished, and if the agents cannot make their businesses pay the proper remedy is an increase in the commission rate, thus placing the dairy produce industry on the same footing as other manufacturers, who are only too glad to deliver their products free of carge.

"That this matter is one for serious and urgent action is borne out by the fact that it has been computed by the produce reporter of the 'Sydney Morning Herald' that for the boxes alone the extra charge inflicted upon the local consumer amounts to £20,000 per annum.

"We trust that we may be favoured with prompt decision and action, as once payment is made it will be a difficult matter to get the agents to refund the extra amount charged."

THE RETAIL TRADE.

"Butterman" writes:—

Sir,—With regard to the fixing of the price of butter, will you please allow me to voice a protest against the low margin between the wholesale and the retail price?

There is in the community a certain person, familiar to housewives as the "butterman," who goes round to his customers twice or three times a week with the necessary commodity. In hot weather he keeps the butter on ice, and also keeps ice in his cart on delivery, and by that means the butter is delivered to the housewife in a fresh and firm condition, instead of being just so much oil; for this service he has been in the habit of receiving a half-penny per pound above shop price. Now, 2½d has always been recognised as a fair profit per lb for the grocer (except, perhaps, some of the larger firms who can afford to cut this down to twopence), so the butterman has been receiving 3d a lb profit on his goods, which cannot be considered excessive, seeing that he has to buy ice, feed his horse, and keep him shod, and also spend his whole time as well. You will now understand that this proclamation has taken away from the "butterman" a third of his living, not of his surplus profits by any means, but a third of his living.

I am not contending by this letter that the Government did wrong in fixing a price for butter, but I do say that the margin between the two prices is too low. They would have hit the real guilty party if they had fixed the wholesale price lower, say, 120s, and the retail price at 1s 3½d, which is even then a halfpenny lower than the "butterman" has been in the habit of receiving.

The writer of this letter was thrown out of his own employment by the war, and, rather than join the ranks of the unemployed, he invested his savings in a butter run, which has just provided himself and family with a bare living, but now, with a third of it taken away, he is faced with losing all he has, as naturally a butter run is now unsalable, and a man cannot live on his losses.

CO-OPERATION.

A TWO-SIDED PROPOSITION.

GOOD OR EVIL?

Co-operation has proved very useful where its object has been to reduce the selling price of goods, but where its object is to increase the selling price of goods for the benefit of the producer at the cost of the general public, then it is quite a different matter (writes "Inquirer"). We have both kinds of co-operation in our midst. So far there has been little to object to from the public point of view in the first kind. If, however, co-operation is a good thing for the few in it, it should be a good thing for all. Suppose all private shopkeeping ceased, and one huge co-operative store for the whole State were established, from which all purchases were made by the consumers of the State, now would the power which this consumers' co-operation could exercise over the producer be wielded? It could dictate its own terms, and a duty is cast upon it to lower prices on behalf of the consumer. Would the farmer who wanted to sell eggs at 9d per dozen be paid his price without question, as a matter of brotherhood, or would he have 4d offered by the co-operation? The obvious reply move on the part of the producers would be co-operation amongst themselves. A co-operation amongst butter producers could refuse to sell butter to the consumers' co-operation, except on its own terms, and similarly with other industries. Would the idea of brotherhood impel them to be very considerate? We really come down to the simple case of there being one consumer and one producer. Each can set out what he would like to get. What, however, would happen if the producer went on strike? He would probably be the one who could dictate terms. But perhaps Mr. Pulsford could find for me the "brotherhood in industry" and elimination of competition, to which he refers in this state of affairs.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

TEA AND JUTE FREIGHTS ADVANCE.

In the general markets of the city yesterday business had not settled down after the holidays. The advent of the rain throughout the country, however, caused a more optimistic tone to prevail, and it was the general impression that the demand for many lines would shortly improve.

During the day a cablegram was received from Colombo, which stated that from April 1 the freight on tea consigned to Australia would be increased ¼d per lb. This is a sharp advance, and, coming on top of the record high prices at present ruling in producing centres for all leaf suitable for the Australian market, is not likely to make pleasant reading for blenders. There was no mail to hand yesterday, and the only teas available were those which arrived from Java in the Tasman.

There was a strong demand for woolpacks ex the Janus, and all supplies offered at 3/2 net to rails were eagerly bought up by a city house. Spot stocks were worth 3/1, and March shipment 3/1. April-May-June shipment was to be had at 3/. Branbags were steady at from 4/11 to 5/, and holders wanted 4/10 ex the Janus. Cornsacks were unchanged at 6/ net to rails. It was announced that freights from Calcutta had been advanced 10/, thus making the rate 50/.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday was 477 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

Flour was unchanged at £11/17/6 a ton. Bran was quoted at £8 and pollard at £7/10/ a ton.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 569 tons of wheat and 200 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

PRICE OF POLLARD.

"Puzzled" writes:—

Sir,—Regarding the fine inflicted by Mr. Justice Edmunds upon a trader in the suburb of Sydney as stated in your issue of Thursday for selling pollard at a higher price than one shilling and tenpence halfpenny, it will be interesting to all the country storekeepers to know as to whether this restricted proclaimed price applies to the country, or only to Sydney. Pollard now costs us £8/7/6 per ton landed at the store, which is 1/8 per bushel. If we are to sell at 1/10½ then the profit is 2½d per bushel. Now, as the margin of profit has always been 3½d when pollard cost 9d per bushel, it does not require a mathematician to see that the same margin on twice the outlay is no good to the trader. At 2½d per bushel this is 12½ per cent.; and at the present time, with the high price of fodder, to keep horses to cart pollard about, the price of pollard in the country should be more than 2/ per bushel, as the working expenses of the best managed store are never less than 12½ per cent. Besides, many of the farmers who buy pollard keep you waiting for three to six months before they pay.

Kindly reply as to whether the country storekeeper is restricted to sell at the price as stated above, 1/10½, as, if so, none of us will stock this item at all.

In the counties of Cumberland and Northumberland the prices of bran and pollard have been fixed at £7/10/ and £8 respectively, a retail price being also fixed. Outside these two counties the price is £7 wholesale, for both commodities. No retail price has been fixed in the country. So storekeepers may sell at the price they deem advisable.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

THE PRICE OF BUTTER.

In fixing the price of butter at 124/ for first grade, the Government did not state whether this figure was to include boxes or not. Accordingly agents took the view that they are entitled to charge 1/6 extra for boxes and /6 for cartage charges. Thus, first grade butter was being sold yesterday morning at 126/ per cwt., though the Government proclamation provided for 124/.

The wording of the proclamation is as follows:—"That the maximum selling prices for butter shall be, wholesale, at Sydney: First grade, 124/; second grade, 119/; third grade, 114/ per cwt. Wholesale, at factory, the above prices less the freight to Sydney. Wholesale, at other places: The above prices with cost of transport added. Retail: Twopence per lb. in addition to the above prices."

CASE EGGS CHEAPER.

Trade generally was quiet in Sussex-street yesterday after the holidays. There were large supplies of case eggs to hand, including consignments by the river boats at the end of last week. This, in conjunction with a slackening demand, caused the market to ease somewhat. Northern River eggs were quoted at 1/5, and South Coasts and Railways at 1/5 to 1/6. New laids were unchanged at 1/10 to 2/. There was a fair inquiry for bacon, at late rates.

Other lines were unchanged.

Quotations were:—

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

TASMANIAN BOAT NOT UNLOADED.

Not very much business was transacted in the forage and grain section owing to the wet weather. The Tasmanian boat was in, but unloading operations were being held up until the rain cleared. The shipment included some 20,000 bags of potatoes, a small consignment of chaff, and 400 or 500 bags of oats. The oat market was particularly strong, and as high as 5/8 and 5/9 was being given for choice Tartarians. Giants were quoted at 5/4 to 5/5, and Sparrowbills at 5/4. The maize market was unchanged at 5/9.

Fifteen hundred bags of Victorian onions were to hand, and the smallness of the shipment caused the market to be a trifle firmer. Brown Spanish were quoted at £7.

At the firewood auction sales 11 trucks were offered. On account of the weather, and the likely smallness of this week's supply, high prices were realised.

Quotations were:—

RAILWAY MARKET.

Sales at the Sydney goods shed were resumed after the Easter holidays yesterday morning, when a fairly large yarding of produce was offered at auction. Despite the heavy rain, a large number of buyers were present, but bidding was rather slow, especially during the earlier stages of the sale. A strong demand, however, ruled for choice consignments, and these lines cleared at figures which showed a slight improvement on those of Thursday last. Only 35 trucks of forage were manifested to arrive.

Wheaten chaff was well represented, and sold at auction from 6/4 to 9/3, the latter being obtained for a parcel from Borenore. Oaten was not so plentiful as wheaten, and, generally, was of medium quality, and brought from 4/9 to 9/, whilst a consignment of nice green lucerne chaff was worth 8/9. Oaten hay cleared at 8/, and lucerne realised from 7/6 to 8/ per cwt. Oats changed hands at 5/3½ per bushel.

Consignments placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw, chaff, 96; grain, 5; potatoes, 2.

Produce manifested to arrive:—Hay, straw, chaff, 35; grain, 11.

Wheaten Chaff.—Ex Perthville (686), 8/4; Munro, Roslyn (7851), 8/5; Bullock, Blayney (18176), 8/3; ex Wongarbon (13625), 8/10; Stocks, Cunningbar (8807), 8/3; Bullock, Blayney (1265), 8/11, balance oaten 9/; Bullock, Millthorpe (5090), 9/9; Dowling, George's Plains (9400), 8/6; Renshaw, Wongarbon (7832), 8/10; Birch, Tarana (4081), 8/; ex Borenore (11065), 9/2; ex Borenore (7788), 9/3; ex Mandurama (16169), 9/; ex Mandurama (706), 9/; Moloney, Roslyn (11254), 6/1; ex Millthorpe (11233), 9/1; Bullock, Millthorpe (17763), 9/2; Bullock, Millthorpe (7711), 9/2; Bullock, Millthorpe (4896), 8/9; Stocks, Cunningbar (2504), 9/ per cwt.

FRUIT MARKET.

There were small supplies of local fruit at the Bathurst-street exchange yesterday. Rain is preventing growers from picking, and there is not much demand at present. Consequently the market had an easier tendency.

Quotations were:—

Passionfruit.—Local: Choice, 6/, medium 3/ to 4/, small 1/6 to 2/ a half-bushel case.

Pineapples.—Queens, 6/ to 7/.

Lemons.—Choice 5/ to 5/6, medium 3/ a bushel-case. Small and inferior unsalable, Italian 9/ to 10/, American, 6/ to 8/.

MINING.

NOTES.

Miss Sachs, of the Sachs of Kingsgate molybdenite and bismuth mine, wishes it stated that when her late father started to work the molybdenite and bismuth formation at Kingsgate many years ago, the price of molybdenite in Sydney was about £37 per ton, but the first parcel of concentrates sold by him realised £70 per ton.

The managing director at Bright, of the Buckland River Gold-dredging Company, reports that the dredge worked 266 hours for a yield of 12oz of gold.

"Prospector," writing on the subject of the high-priced mineral molybdenite, states that as one of a party of prospectors he found several shows carrying from 3 to 4 per cent. molybdenite, whilst one assayed 10 per cent. The assistance of some of the biggest mining brokers was asked to help in the development of the 10 per cent. show, but they declined, as they said that no formation would pay unless it carried from 15 to 20 per cent. of molybdenite. "Prospector" contends it is the duty of the State Government to erect treatment works, which would change fair-grade ore, say 10 per cent., into a high-grade concentrate. In this way work would be found for a large number of men in the production of a metal greatly wanted at the present time.

Mr. E. F. Joseph, writing on the same subject, states his experience is that there is no sale for low-grade ore of say 2, 3, or 5 per cent, and he contends "that the only solution and possible way out is for the Government to erect a plant and concentrate our ore."

For the week ended April 3 the No. 2 dredge of the Araluen Redbank Gold-dredging Company recovered 57oz 5dwt of gold for 127 hours' work.

Our Bombala correspondent writes:—"Underground operations at Bendoc have been suspended at Earle's mine, pending the erection of a fresh engine on the adjoining workings at the Victoria shaft. Since the breaking of the crank shaft there a few weeks back, the water in the open ground gradually accumulated, the old winding plant being barely able to keep the water down without being able to devote the necessary time to other haulage. The new winding plant taken from the old Bonanza mine should be sufficient for all requirements, and when working in conjunction with the present hauling appliances should easily cope with the situation. Reports state that good stone is showing in the levels opening out from either side of the new shaft. When stone raising is again resumed from both sets of workings there should be a good account from this property, which has long been waiting proper and systematic development.

GRAFTON, Tuesday.

The manager of the Garibaldi Consolidated gold mine reports for the five weeks ended on Friday:—Main A level has been advanced to 252ft; reef 15in, with 15in calcite running alongside. B level in 137ft, and retimbered. Reef split up. Stoping proceeding in D and intermediate levels, reef varies, averaging 12in. 28 tons ore delivered at battery, 16 tons treated for 9oz of gold. Owing to the dry weather operations at the plant are suspended till there is a fall of rain.

At Mountain Maid, the battery has been dismantled ready for removal to the new site.

CARPATHIA TIN MINE.

The mine manager reports for last week as follows:—

No. 1 shaft, 104½ft level.—North winze: Sinking 10ft, making 47ft, on ore of milling and seconds values, showing all over the winze, and remaining on sides and ends. At a depth of 40ft rich values came in from the south end and east side, and are still showing in the winze. South winze: Sinking 10ft, making 18ft, on low grade ore over the winze.

Two hundred and five feet level. North drive: Driving 6ft, making 6ft, on ore of rich milling values, showing 6ft across the face. This drive has been consistent in size and values the whole week. The footwall is showing on east side of drive, with ore all along the western side. South drive: Driving 7ft, making 7ft, on ore of above values, showing 4ft wide, with a porphyry boulder on the western side. Since last report this drive has exposed milling ore for the advance made of high grade.

No. 2 shaft, north drive. After driving 1ft, making 25ft, showing the ore 4ft wide, of seconds values, have had to temporarily abandon this work.

No. 3 shaft stope.—Since last report the usual high values in milling ore have been won from this stope, which is now opening up well west of any former workings. This is now showing 8ft across.

No. 4 shaft.—During the week all workings off this shaft have been secured, and the level timber caught up.

Ore in transit.—Since last report, despatched 85 tons of milling ore to Barmedman battery.

The battery manager reports for last week as follows:—The battery ran 36 hours, treating 60 tons of ore, for a return of 5¼ tons of concentrates, assaying 65.1 per cent.

EASTER TRAFFIC.

FALLING OFF.

The records kept at the tables office of the Railway Department of the traffic on Easter Monday show a large falling off in the number of passengers carried in comparison with last year's totals: 45,656 was the number of passengers, and £1339 10s 9d the amount of the decrease. The comparative statement for the two years is given hereunder:—

Line.	1914. Pass.	1914. Amount.	1915. Pass.	1915. Amount.
Main Suburban	89,169	£1232 8 3	75,348	£1094 10 4
Illawarra	65,522	1936 9 0	38,043	569 0 3
Northern	32,206	908 13 8	28,678	633 14 4
Western	6,431	547 4 11	5,892	374 15 1
Southern	5,172	404 12 5	4,885	506 17 6
Totals	198,502	£4518 8 3	152,846	£3178 17 6

In the tramways also a falling off is shown. For last week 5,349,732 passengers were carried, the revenue being £39,463. Last year the figures were 5,798,734 passengers and £42,137, so that the decrease in passengers is 449,002, and in revenue £2674. For the three principal days, viz., Good Friday, Easter Saturday, and Easter Monday, 2,468,303 passengers paid £21,667 to travel, as against 2,623,478 who paid £23,128 last year. The decrease was 155,175 passengers and £1461. The wet weather was mainly responsible for the smaller figures.

For the first two days of the races (Saturday and Monday) 104,887 passengers went to Randwick, and paid tram fares aggregating £2700. Last year 123,453 passengers paid £3169. The decreases are 18,566 passengers and £469. An approximate decrease of 43,000 in the number of persons who travelled by tram to the Show is also recorded. In 1914 the number was given as 253,000 up to and including Saturday. This year it is estimated at 210,000.

The loading for seaside resorts was very much lighter than last year, though the figures are not given. The traffic was carried without serious hitch or accident.

SCHOOL HEALTH.

A correspondent complains that at the Bondi Public School "the boys of two classes have absolutely no place to put their outdoor clothes in whilst in class, it being necessary to sit in or on their wet overcoats and caps." Inquiry at the Education Department shows that it is the practice of the department to make adequate provision for hanging up caps and cloaks outside the schoolroom. In many places, however, temporary accommodation has to be provided for, and hitherto it has not been found practicable to furnish hat and cloak rooms for these temporary premises. All new buildings of a permanent nature have ample accommodation, and it has been decided to provide verandah cupboards even for the portable classrooms.

INDUSTRIAL REGULATION AND APPRENTICESHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Within the next few months we have to face the customary triennial revision of the Industrial Arbitration Act. We profess to regard our system of industrial regulation as experimental—one which is to be periodically reconsidered after vigilant observation of results.

In theory, each revision is to remedy defects, but in practice, if the whole scheme is looked at from one point of view only, the tendency is to perpetuate mistakes, which, before long, will produce serious economic results. It is extremely difficult to get reliable data as to the effect of different phases of experimental legislation, but even with the fragmentary information available, I think it is clear that the present law is lessening efficiency and seriously hampering the production of skilled artisans. The possible results of the war make this a matter of extreme importance.

In times of normal prosperity we drift along without worrying much about the future. But the war has at last taught us that the strength of a nation is based on the efficiency of its people, and that the great need of Australia is the creation of new relays of skilled mechanics, to keep the "made abroad" label off the commodities we consume. Many fine speeches have been made on the necessity for Australia becoming more self-contained. At every street corner patriotic Australians agree that we should, with our great natural resources, be more independent of foreign supplies. But without a national effort to create a new army of skilled mechanics who will be able to make the things we import, the fervour of the moment will subside with the conclusion of peace.

From the first Act, industrial tribunals have had wide powers of control of youth labour. While in many directions this power may have been wisely exercised, it has, unfortunately, settled into a dangerous groove, by adopting a rule of thumb limitation of the numbers of youths and apprentices in different callings. I have often heard visitors to Australia express astonishment at the ease with which our youths can pick up a living without training, and at the absence of an intelligently organised system of apprenticeship. This astonishment is natural.

The average youth in Australia is irresponsible and inefficient, because our laws offer a premium to inefficiency.

His way to a skilled trade is often barred by awards and regulations, while the minimum wages prescribed for youths in unskilled occupation are generally higher than in callings to which apprenticeship is essential.

Surely the duty of Parliament is to reverse this order of things; to make it more difficult for the untrained youth to pick up a living, and, at the same time, give him ready access to a skilled trade, with every facility for technical education, in conjunction with apprenticeship.

The amendment of our apprenticeship laws, the closer linking of apprenticeship with technical education, and the establishment of vocation bureaus are the essentials.

The mere limitation of numbers of apprentices is non-essential, and a menace to future development. I would even go so far as to urge that Parliament should not delegate its powers on this important matter to courts or boards; but should deal with it in an Amending Apprentices Act—an Act which will encourage youths to take up skilled trades, which will make technical education an essential part of apprenticeship, and which will deny the right of any union, court, or board to refuse any youth access to a trade to which apprenticeship and technical education are attached.

Might I suggest that employers who have a direct interest in this question should organise a committee of investigation for the collection of information. A general protest against the law is of little avail. But facts, marshalled and vouched for, if placed before the public, might induce Parliament to investigate more carefully what has become a matter of supreme importance.

I am, etc.,

April 6. GEO. S. BEEBY.

THE TOTALISATOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The proposal to legalise the totalisator is radically wrong at the root. All reforms should proceed upon ethical lines. To arrange to do evil that good may come, to sin oneself out of trouble, is against the principles of right citizenship, and should be heartily condemned. Gambling is unjustifiable, and to legalise it by officially providing for it, by approving and admitting the totalisator, would be simply going from bad to worse. The law now prohibits betting everywhere except on a racecourse, it simply leaves private action there alone, which, at least, shows the general policy of the State. It is a very different thing to recognise and help it on as now proposed.

I can understand legislation to diminish an evil; but to nurse it and pamper it seems to me to be absolutely wrong. If it should be said that in other ways the State has acted in the same direction, I reply that two wrongs do not make a right.

It is a poor compliment to Australians when asked to maintain charities largely in part by gambling. They may button their pockets and substitute a system to provide for the sick poor and the hungry that the noblest minds have condemned. Surely the kindheartedness of our people has not sunk as low as that? Is it not a reflection on their sense of compassion and mercy? So far our hospitals and asylums have been generously and lovingly supported, and any especial want in the future, I am confident, will be met in the same right spirit, and so the national honour will be preserved.

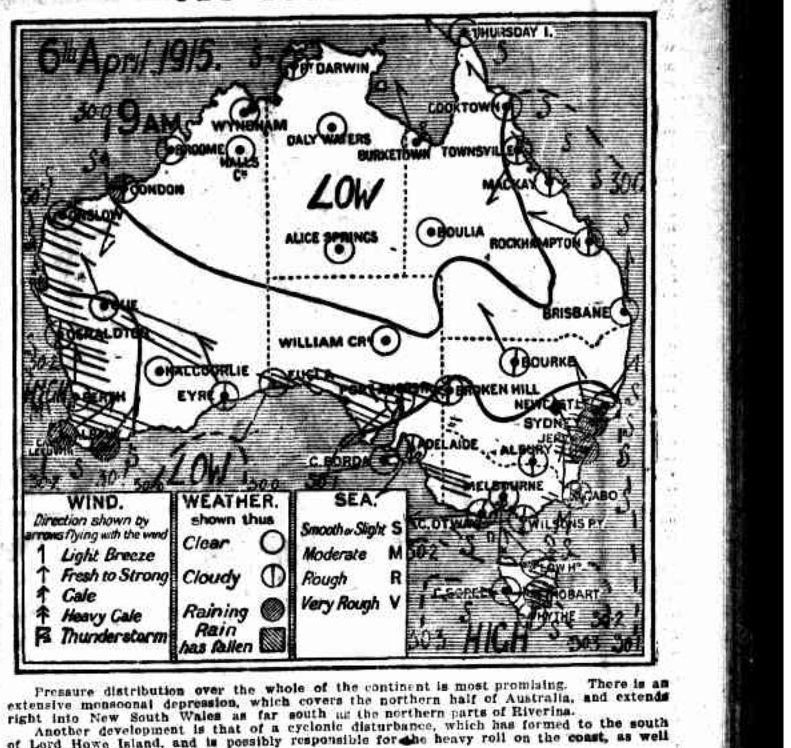
I thank Mr. Holman very much for his speech to the Labour Conference, but I do not wish now to enter upon the general question of the success or failure of the totalisator; though I know that it has turned many of its friends against it, and that some of them have become strong opponents. I now only desire to bring out and emphasise the point that it is thoroughly wrong in principle, and immoral for the State to take up and recognise gambling. It is a root doctrine that all legislation should be on ethical lines.

April 6. I am, etc., F. B. BOYCE.

The Leichhardt Political Labour League was represented at the funeral of Mr. H. Howe, M.P., on Saturday.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



Pressure distribution over the whole of the continent is most promising. There is an extensive monsoonal depression, which covers the northern half of Australia, and extends right into New South Wales as far south as the northern parts of Riverina.

Another development is that of a cyclonic disturbance, which has formed to the south of Lord Howe Island, and is possibly responsible for the heavy roll on the coast, as well as the heavy showers.

Another good disturbance is in evidence over the Bight, and taking the outlook generally, the prospects are good.

Ocean Forecast.—Generally smooth to moderate.

AMUSEMENTS.

ST. VINCENT'S HOSPITAL CONCERT.

Influential committees have organised a highly attractive concert for next Saturday evening at the Town Hall, in aid of that beneficent charity, St. Vincent's Hospital. A long list of favourite artists will include Mmes. Grace Millar Ward, George Earp, Allard, Constance Brandon Usher, Kathleen Beattie, Messrs. Allen Doone, Henri Staell, Bryce Carter, Ernest Truman (grand organ), Malcolm M'Eachern, Wellington, Philip Wilson, George Castles, and Lawrence Campbell. The Governor-General and other distinguished patrons will be present. The plan is at Paling's.

LEICHHARDT BELGIAN FUND.

A concert and social evening in aid of the National Belgian Fund was held in the Town Hall, Leichhardt, on Tuesday, when, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the hall was crowded by an appreciative audience. The concert was tendered by the members of the S.S. Nestor Athletic and Social Club, and included musical numbers and the farce, "Motoring." About £50 will be realised for the fund.

FURTHER RAINS.

ON THE COAST AND HIGHLANDS.

CONDITIONS UNSETTLED.

Since 9 a.m. on Monday, the rain has persisted over coastal and southern highland districts, but it was of a rather scattered nature, though concentrated in various districts, as the metropolitan area, and parts of the Hunter and Manning.

Sydney received the heaviest quantity in 116 points, as the result of a series of steady showers, which occurred chiefly on Tuesday morning. At about 7.10 a.m., 14 points fell in about six minutes, or at the rate of 140 points per hour.

The distribution of atmospheric pressure yesterday morning still favoured coastal and highland rains, but the disturbance responsible for the recent wet weather has worked eastward to the Tasman Sea, and has assumed a cyclonic character south of Lord Howe Island.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was fine and clear on the North Coast and parts of the north-west slopes, but otherwise the weather was cloudy to overcast, with showers at places along the coast south from Port Stephens.

A new disturbance is approaching this State from the westward, and up to 9 a.m. yesterday had resulted in two points at Wentworth (in the far south-west), where it was still showery.

The present indications favour more scattered showers associated with thunder.

IN THE CITY.

INCESSANT RAIN.

OVER EIGHT INCHES THIS MONTH.

From 4 o'clock yesterday morning rain fell in the city practically without cessation. Overcoats and umbrellas predominated in the streets, where wet pavements, muddy roads, and gutters running level with the footpath made conditions very uncomfortable.

At times the showers were heavy, but there were no abnormal downpours to register record rates of fall.

That the rain was steady and continuous throughout the day, however, can be seen from the fact that 160 points were registered between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. This brings the total rainfall in the city up to 830 points since the first definite break in the dry conditions occurred on March 30.

The rain caused a good deal of inconvenience in the suburbs, where streets were cut up by the running waters. In some cases the tram services were affected owing to the water carrying down large quantities of sand and earth and depositing them on the rails.

The rain was accompanied by little or no wind, the greatest velocity being only six miles, from the south-south-west, at 3.40 p.m.

STEAMERS DELAYED.

WORK ON WHARFS AFFECTED.

The heavy rain in the city yesterday caused a cessation of work on the wharfs, and a number of steamers will accordingly be delayed.

The Orient Company announce that, owing to the continual rain yesterday, the departure of the R.M.S. Orontes for London, via ports, has been postponed until 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The E. and A. Company's steamer Aldenham, which was to have left for Manila, Hongkong, Shanghai, and Japan at noon to-day, has been unavoidably postponed until noon on Friday next.

The Royal Packet Company's steamer Tasman will also be a day late in leaving for Melbourne.

CATHOLIC FEDERATION.

Between 200 and 300 delegates to the annual conference of the Catholic Federation attended Mass at St. Mary's Cathedral yesterday, and were addressed by Archbishop Kelly.

The ideal of the federation, said Dr. Kelly, was the salvation of society by permeating it with Christian principles. The present war was the best evidence of all that society had denied God, and forsaken the principles enunciated by Christ. The federation would go on influencing public opinion, and that in turn would influence the legislation of the country. Here in Australia, he continued, there was no other organisation to oppose them, at least openly. In some of the European countries Masonry was publicly organised to destroy everything that made for the working out of the will of God. They could see it developed now in Mexico by the patronage of the Masons by the United States. And they might go still further there. But here in Australia there was nothing to hinder the organisation of Catholics. Here they had a free constitution.

The second annual conference of the Catholic Federation of New South Wales opened in the Southern Cross Hall on Monday evening. Mr. P. S. Cleary presided. There were 302 delegates.

Mr. A. A. Lysaght (Wollongong) spoke regarding the justice of demanding from the Government some fair measure of support for Catholic hospitals and charities. He reduced the question to a business basis for consideration by the executive, and the whole matter will become prominent in the near future. Following on Mr. Lysaght's arguments it was resolved on the motion of Mr. L. Courtenay: "That this conference protest to the Premier against any proposal to tax hospitals and charitable institutions in the proposed Amending Local Government Bill."

STATE ABATTOIRS.

The official opening of the State abattoirs and meatworks, at Homebush Bay, will take place to-day. Special trains will leave No. 4 platform at 10 o'clock and noon, returning at 2.45 and 3.55 p.m.

A NEW INVENTION.
One of the most practical and useful of all New Inventions exhibited at the Royal Easter Show is a SELF-LOCKING ALL-STEEL FENCE, built with the Rawson Moody Patent Self-locking All-steel Gate and Straining Posts, Holdfast Standards and Droppers, with No. 8 Galvanised Wire.

This new fence possesses many big advantages over all other present methods of fence construction, being much stronger and cheaper than wooden fences, yet only 25 per cent. the weight of a wooden post fence or anything near the same strength; and this at a cost of only 12/6 per chain.

It is very simple in design and easy to erect. Two men can erect half a mile per day, and when once erected it will last a lifetime.

It is being used by the N.S.W. Government, leading Pastoralists, Farmers, and men with large and small areas, with much success, and is now recognised by experts and users as the greatest fencing invention on record.

Those intending fencing in their properties should write for a catalogue, or call on the Rawson Moody Manufacturing Coy., 343 Kent-street, where a fully erected fence can be seen, and will be shown with pleasure to all interested callers.

MUSIC AT SEA.

LATEST WONDERS OF WIRELESS.

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

That experimenters in the newly-invented wireless telephonic communication are making headway with their investigations is evidenced by an experience of the wireless operators on board the steamer Port Kembla, which arrived at Fremantle yesterday.

When leaving New York one of the operators (the vessel carries two in accordance with American maritime law) had the receivers to his ear, and was surprised to hear a human voice come from the instrument. Listening intently, he was able to hear a voice call, "Hullo, Philadelphia," to which the response came, "Hullo, Boston," followed by a further call from the first station, and then, "Stand by for a little music." After a slight interval the grating sound of a gramaphone preceded the rendering of the song, "Sister Susie Sewing Socks for Soldiers," which the operator could hear without difficulty, each note being recorded as though the gramaphone were in the wireless room. So novel was the incident that Captain Hoad and other officers were called to the room, and in turn they placed the receivers to their ears, and listened to the playing of other popular songs.

On the arrival of the Port Kembla at Bermudas, the wireless operator learned that other operators had experienced the same musical treat, and it was ascertained that the cause was that some experiments were being carried out by the wireless telephone station at Boston. While the incident was highly entertaining to those on board the vessel, it must have been very annoying to the shore stations, whose instruments refused to receive or transmit messages during the rendering of the musical selections. The only explanation offered for the recording of the telephonic waves on telegraphic instruments was similarity of technicalities of both systems.

In the meantime, they had decided that each should hold the cup for six months without inscription.

PALMER CORD TYRES.
PALMER CORD TYRES.

The Palmer Cord Tyre is uniquely strong, because STRENGTH is built right into it at every part.
At the bead, where most tyres are weakest, the impregnated cords which form the basis of Palmer Tyres are looped round non-rotatable anchors. Thus the bead is kept strong, but always sufficiently flexible.

NO CANVAS IN PALMER CORD TYRES.

WARM YOUR HOME
WITH A ROOM HEATER AND BANISH COLD FEET.

Already you can feel the cold coming, and if you sit for any length of time you get COLD FEET.

It's a sure sign you need a ROOM HEATER—a house warmer that is as portable and convenient as a Kerosene Lamp—a warmth producer, a cold chaser, that you can carry from room to room—place near the window, by the sofa side, under the table, in the bathroom, or wherever fancy or requirement may suggest.

"NEW PERFECTION" ROOM HEATERS BURN KEROSENE—they don't smoke—they make no soot, cause no dirt—besides which every atom of heat produced is KEPT IN THE ROOM, whereas the old fireplace flame puts a fourth of heat in the room and wastes three-fourths up the chimney.

Here are our prices for these wonderfully efficient cold chasers:—

NOCK AND KIRBY'S
NOTED LOW PRICES.

"NEW PERFECTION" ROOM HEATERS, nicely finished in Black Metal, with Nickel-plated fittings—handles that never get hot—patent non-smoking, heat diffusing, oil economising burners—glass window, and movable grate on top for water heating.

As described above, in 3 different sizes, with lead-coated steel Oil Font—16/6, 19/6, 22/.

As described above, with BRASS OIL Vessel—25/6 each.

HANDSOME BLUE ENAMELLED "NEW PERFECTION" ROOM HEATERS. The drum is enamelled a beautiful turquoise blue, which harmonises perfectly with the bright nickel-plated fittings.

With Lead-coated Steel Font—26/ each.
With Brass Oil Vessel—29/ each.

EXTRA LARGE OIL HOLDING ROOM HEATERS. These "New Perfections" meet a long-felt want, inasmuch as one allowance of Kerosene lasts a long time.

Finished Metal Drum, nickelled trimmings—22/ each.

Blue Enamelled Drum, nickelled trimmings—27/6 each.

TABLE LAMPS.
INCANDESCENT GAS MANTLES.
HURRICANE LAMPS, LANTERNS.

ENTERTAINING AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

"Are the Newriches entertaining this season?" asked Quiz of Quip. "Entertaining?" replied Quip, "not very."

To all who intend to entertain and be entertaining we recommend

"REX" HAM PATE.

It has its own particular place at almost all social functions, and that place is between thin slices of freshly buttered bread served with tea or any other liquid refreshment. "Rex" Ham Pate is made from first quality "Rex" Ham, which you know goes through a very slow, careful sugar-curing process, the Ham itself being round to a practically premasticated state, and finally seasoned with pure spices.

Result: A piquancy of flavour that is delightful. Procurable in tins from any Grocer. Ask for it by name—"Rex."

Other REX CANNED GOODS ARE:—
Veal and Tongue Pate.
Pork Brawn, 1lb tins.
Pork Sausages, 1lb tins.
Pork and Beans, 1½lb tins.
Pigs' Feet in Jelly, 1lb tins.
Lunch Tongues in Jelly, 1lb tins.
